BAER K. O.'S CARNERA, WINS TITLE

Knockdowns Mark Title Thriller in Huge Bowl

Many Notables Crowd Ringside

Farley, Tunney Among Onlookers at Fight in New York.

Madison Square Garden Bowl, New York, June 14 (A.P.).—Challenger Max Baer, of California, won the world's heavyweight title here tonight when he won by a technical knockout in the eleventh.

Ringside, Madison Square Garden Bowl, New York, June 14 (AP).—Champion Primo Carnera, of Italy, and Challenger Max Baer, of California, entered the ring here tonight for what has been predicted as the most colorful fight in years.

The crowd was approaching the 60,000 mark and the near-capacity gathering indicated that the "gate" might reach $400,000, a figure that exceeded even the fondest hopes of the Madison Square Garden officials.

Interest at the ringside had mounted at the last minute when word came that Baer, the man who has boasted far and wide that he would take the title easily, had gained a strong backing among the "big money" boys. The challenger went to a 7-5 favorite to defeat the huge Italian—a pronounced switch in odds.

Various Court Orders.

Both men had been served with various court orders in the last several days. Supreme Court Justice Ernest Hammer signed an order today restraining the Madison Square Garden Corporation from withdrawing $88,000 alleged to have been deposited on May 22 with the Commercial Trust Co. of Jersey City to the account of Louis Soresi, manager of Carnera. The special receiver of Carnera's assets, appointed Tuesday, charged the deposit was a scheme to defraud the champion's creditors.

Meanwhile, a deputy sheriff had gone today to the Garden to serve a writ of attachment on Ancil Hoffman, manager of Baer. The writ was taken out in a suit by Hamilton Lorimer, one of Baer's former managers.

Leaders Are Present.

The ringside rows boasted a notable gathering of social, business and political leaders for the scrap between the 263-pound Italian Goliath and the 210-pound Californian, Hollywood hero and one of the hardest-hitting heavyweights to emerge from the homebred ranks since Jack Dempsey hung up his gloves.

The potency of the Baer punch apparently was the principal item in the discussion revolving around the belated switch in betting odds, influenced by a flood of money wagered on the Californian's chances of winning. Carnera had been a fairly consistent favorite, at odds of 7 to 10, for the past week.

Rumors of Condition.

All this naturally gave rise to ringside reports that something had happened to the champion or that his condition, despite the doctor's favorable reports, was not all that it should be for a giant about to face one of the most careless clouters in the fistic business. Indignant denials, however, came from Carnera's manager, who said that Carnera, despite some irritating influences and the remaining effects of a slight sore throat, was in "perfect shape" and confident of stopping the challenger.

Baer's own flat prediction, confided to everybody, was that he

France Votes New Millions for Defense

Action Follows Plea by Premier Doumergue.

Paris, June 14 (AP).—The French government today was assured $208,000,000 more to strengthen France against invasion after Premier Doumergue told the Chamber of Deputies he has lost faith in the Disarmament Conference.

The aged premier appeared before the Chamber, made a vigorous fight for the government's national defense bills, and received two rousing votes of confidence.

The government, after watching efforts at Geneya to reach a disarmament accord, is convinced of the necessity of strengthening the nation's defenses, Doumergue said.

Tugwell Wins Senate Battle

No. 1 Brain Truster Confirmed as Undersecretary of Agriculture.

By Franklyn Waltman, Jr.

Rexford Guy Tugwell, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, former economics professor at Columbia University and the "Number One" man in the Roosevelt brain trust, yesterday was confirmed by the Senate as Undersecretary of Agriculture, effective at once.

The vote was 53 to 24, with more Republicans voting for him than there were Democrats opposing him. Immediately after the vote the Senate unanimously agreed to waive the rule requiring the nomination to lay over two days after confirmation before notifying the President. Dr. Tugwell, therefore, may get his new commission today.

Starting today Tugwell also will receive $10,000 a year instead of his present $7,500 salary. His duties as undersecretary will be virtually the same as they are now. He is the first person to hold such a title.

Tugwell's nomination was confirmed after several weeks of bitter controversy between Democratic leaders, and Chairman Ellison D.

The Fight by Rounds

(Associated Press.)

Round One—Baer, his face suddenly serious, slouched lazily from his corner as the gigantic Carnera boxed toward him, left carefully extended. They fell into a quick clinch without striking a blow and Baer missed a left to the head as they came away. Baer's face contorted fiercely as Carnera pumped three lefts to his mouth and the challenger ripped him furiously. He banged a left and right on the champion's side, but Carnera, stepping about lightly for all his awesome bulk, fended him off to the left. A right-hand smash knocked Carnera down. He was up without a count. Baer chased him from one side of the ring to the other and Carnera was up and down three times under the frightful pounding of Baer's furious fists. The champion reeled from rope to rope. There was no count on either of the three times he hit the floor. Baer was trying to measure him at the bell.

Baer's round.

Second round—As Baer tore out viciously for the kill he nailed Carnera with a right to the head and both tumbled to the floor. They crashed down again, both of them, as Baer landed a right high on the head. Again they fell, Baer on top as he drove the champion to the floor with a right high to the head. Game and dogged, Carnera fought to hold the challenger at bay, his left stuck out, his right high, as Baer stalked about him. But for a moment Max seemed to have punched himself out, Carnera quickly recovered. Another long overhand right smashed Carnera's temple, but again he recovered quickly and driving Baer to the ropes, clubbed him about the head with both hands, his first real offensive show of the fight. Baer patted him reassuringly on the shoulder as the bell rang.

It was Baer's round.

Round Three—They came out with a rush. They fought their way from the ropes like a pair of prehistoric cave men. They battled all the way to Carnera's corner, where the giant again was crushed to the canvas under the fury of Baer's two-fisted smashes to the head. The referee pulled them apart as the bell rang.

Baer's round.

Round Four—Baer waited in his corner for the champion to come to him and again with a reckless show of stamina for the punishment he had taken, Primo marched to the attack. The champion tried to reach Baer with his long left as they circled in the middle of the ring. Sneering, Baer backed to the ropes as Carnera, sticking doggedly to the task, moved in ponderously behind his long left hand. Baer ducked and swept both fists deep into Carnera's body, but he quickly moved away again, slow and tiring, as the champion kept ceaselessly after him, stabbing with lefts that landed once in every two tries. When the bell rang, Carnera marched bright-eyed and apparently in full possession of his faculties again to his corner.

It was the champion's round.

Round Five—There was no letup in the fierce action as they came out for the fifth round. The champion staggered as Baer smashed another right to the side of his head. Like some strange monster fighting for his life, Carnera hung desperately to the challenger and when the bell rang he wobbled rubber-legged to his corner. His face a bloody mask, his lips twice their normal size.

It was Baer's round.

Round Six — Baer came up slowly, danced across the ring and shuffled his feet in the resin of Carnera's corner. There he cut loose with a right that buried deep in the champion's body, and with face contorted, swept both hands madly for Carnera's face. Max missed with both lefts and rights before he drilled a terrific left hook to the head, crossed his right to the champion's jaw, and then ran himself into a two-fisted blast to the body

Freight Agent, Riding Train Through Tunnel, Is Killed

His skull crushed when he struck his head on the First street southeast tunnel while riding atop a Chesapeake & Ohio train, Eugene S. LeGette, 45, of East Orange, N. J., general Eastern freight agent of the Atlantic Coast Line, was killed here early yesterday.

His body was found in the tunnel 100 feet from the entrance by two switchmen, R. Erich A. Gebhardt, of Silver Spring, Md., and Joseph L. Condelier, of Capitol Heights. They had been dispatched to find LeGette when he was missed after the train pulled into Union Station.

LeGette had walked through the baggage car and apparently was climbing over the tender when his head struck the tunnel ceiling, trainmen said. Atlantic Coast Line officials here said LeGette boarded the train in White Sulphur Springs, Va.

A native of Naylor, Ga., LeGette had been with the railroad 29 years. He joined the staff at Quitman, Ga., in 1905, and later went to Albany, Ga. He became commercial agent at Nashville, Tenn., in 1912, and went to Atlanta as general freight agent in 1922. He was transferred in 1926 to the position he held at the time of his death.

LeGette is survived by his widow and a small son.

The body was taken to the District Morgue. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald is investigating the case.

Maryland Is Set For Fete Today

High Federal Officials to Participate in Tercentenary.

(Several pictures of rehearsals of the Maryland Tercentenary Pageant at St. Marys City today and tomorrow are on pages 6 and 7.)

By Marion Butler.

St. Marys City, Md., June 14—On the eve of Maryland's great two-day celebration of her 300th anniversary, this quiet spot, the first capital of the State, is tense with anticipation.

Far into the night, workmen will be laboring throughout St. Marys County to perfect roads by which 75,000 visitors will make their way here tomorrow to witness impressive dedication exercises at the reconstructed first Maryland Statehouse of 1676, and the huge land and water pageants of early Maryland history.

At Leonardtown, Point Lookout, Scotland Beach, Piney Point and other noted Southern Maryland resorts, hotel owners and housewives were preparing for some 4,000 guests expected to spend tomorrow night in the county.

400 Water Craft.

The advance guard of over 400 water craft which will be anchored off St. Marys City tomorrow, represented all the principal yacht clubs of Maryland, the District of Columbia and bordering States.

Representing the United States Navy, two destroyers anchored off St. Marys City wharf today. They are the U. S. S. Manley and the U. S. S. Overton. H. M. S. Dundee, from the British destroyer squadron at Bermuda, is expected hourly. Six Chesapeake Bay and Potomac River steamers tomorrow will bring crowds by water.

On the bleacher-covered pageant grounds, known in the days of the Royal Province as Governor's Field, broadcasting equipment, floodlights and press stands were being put in readiness.

Trim canvas tents of Fort Meade troops and 1,500 Maryland National Guardsmen, under Gen. Milton A. Record, also were here, while mounted and motorcycle details of State police prepared to handle crowds. Additional police have

10% Slash In City Phone Rates Upheld

P.U.C. Order Challenged as "Confiscatory;" Appeal Planned.

A reduction of 10 per cent in the telephone rates of household subscribers, ordered by the Public Utilities Commission October 10, 1932, was supported in an opinion by Justice Jesse C. Adkins, in the District Supreme Court yesterday.

The decision may mean that all persons, other than those with switchboard service, may receive 10 per cent refunds of their bills, dating back to the time of the order. Actual compliance with Justice Adkins' decree, however, must await the outcome of an appeal that is being planned by the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

William A. Roberts, people's counsel and who, as attorney for the commission, led the fight against the telephone company, estimated last night that about $750,000 would be due Washington telephone subscribers if the court order became effective immediately.

If the telephone company appeals, this amount will increase in proportion to the time consumed in the courts. The utility has furnished bond which guarantees repayment of the difference between present rates and the 10 per cent cut ordered by the commission should it lose its final appeal.

Although he affirmed the reduction order, Justice Adkins held that a companion order, setting up different means of establishing the company's depreciation, was illegal. The order, he said, "was beyond the power of the Public Utilities Commission to make and the enforcement of that order and of order 1221 should be enjoined."

Following the issuance of the Utilities Commission order reducing rates, the telephone company announced its determination to seek recourse in the courts from what it considered "confiscatory" reductions. Exhaustive hearings were held before Justice Adkins, and both sides filed briefs after they had introduced hundreds of pages of evidence.

In his opinion Justice Adkins said, "The rates being charged by the plaintiff (phone company) prior to the making of order 1072 were unreasonably high and unjust.

"The rates fixed in order 1072 by the Public Utilities Commission are reasonable, just and adequate. The order appealed from should be affirmed."

Justice Adkins held that the rates decreed by the P. U. C. would have enabled the phone company to earn a return of 6.3 per cent in 1933. This was based on a "fair value" of all the company's plant in the District. The value quoted by Justice Adkins as "fair value" was $30,200,560 for 1931.

This was made up of a working capital of $550,000; lands and right of way, $1,136,560, and other physical assets of $28,514,000. In 1932, he said the fair value was $32,559,560.

Dead Man Not Spouse, Says Slayer Suspect

Los Angeles, June 14 (AP).—Mrs. Nellie Madison, on trial for murdering her husband, testified today that the man buried as Eric Madison, film studio employe, was not he, and she believed the body found in their apartment also was not his.

Mrs. Madison said her husband left their apartment the night of March 24, and had not returned when she left the following morning for a ranch at Lebec, Calif., where she was arrested two days later and charged with Madison's murder.

Hitler, Il Duce Face Future In Long Talk

Venice, June 14 (AP).—Europe's two most colorful national leaders, Chancellor Hitler of Germany and Premier Mussolini of Italy, went into a room by themselves today and talked for more than two hours about international problems.

The two, after being given a rousing demonstration, met in the Villa Pasina, near here, told their retinues to stay outside, shut the door and exchanged views without even the benefit of an interpreter.

The conversation was carried on in German, a language which Mussolini learned when he worked as a bricklayer in Switzerland before the war and has studied since.

Hitler had brought along two interpreters, but for the first meeting, at least, they were not needed.

Important Questions Covered.

It was stated authoritatively that the two men covered every important question relating to European and world politics.

After the 145-minute conversation, Hitler motored back to his

Trades Council Urges Arbiters For D. C. Strike

Union Leaders, Employers Will Hold Parley on Plan Today.

Recommendation that the strike of Washington carpenters be settled by arbitration will be considered today at a meeting of union representatives and employers at the office of Commissioner George E. Allen.

Meanwhile, union leaders were claiming an opening victory in their fight against the open shop, as contractors received only a few responses to their offer to employ carpenters at $1.10 an hour. Union carpenters are demanding $1.37½.

No violence was reported, although all buildings being erected in the downtown triangle, as well as other Federal projects, were under a heavy police guard.

Employers Unreceptive.

Canvass of several large out-of-town builders indicated they will not be receptive to the arbitration proposal when it is formally presented today. It is also necessary to obtain consent of the carpenters' union before arbitration can be adopted.

The resolution unanimously adopted by the building trades unit follows:

"Resolved, that the council recommends to the Carpenters' District Council and the builders that both parties agree to place their difficulties in arbitration and that a committee be appointed by the council to consult Representative Loring Black, Commissioner Allen.

Police and Tear Gas Rout Milk Picketers

York, Pa., June 14 (AP).—Three hundred gallons of milk were destroyed by pickets at the Julius Dairy Plant in York today

The farmers organization declared a strike because, they allege the owners refuse to take milk from four of them. Tear gas was used by deputy sheriffs to drive them off.

Dillinger, Two More Hunted For Three Iowa Kidnapings

Davenport, Iowa, June 14 (U.P.).—An automobile containing men believed to be John Dillinger and two members of his gang roared westward tonight away from the scenes of three abductions.

Broadcast alarms sent hundreds of police in pursuit of the fugitives. Three men who fell captive to the gang were missing.

The flight started in Davenport, at the Mississippi River waterfront, where traffic policeman Elmer Schleuter sought to question three suspicious persons. He was forced to surrender his gun after the trio drew revolvers. He was compelled to walk half a block to the Davenport Western League Baseball Park with them.

The party came upon Al Schultze, secretary of the ball club, as he was about to enter his automobile. Schultze was forced to drive the men at gun point.

Pursuers traced the men westward from Davenport. Three hours later they were sighted near Iowa City, where they were seen transferring to the automobile of Dr. W. A. Fitch, a veterinarian.

Dr. Fitch likewise was forced to accompany the gunmen. Only Fitch was menaced by a gun, they said. Peace officers believed that Schleuter and Schultze probably had been tied up and hidden somewhere or had been killed.

The belief that the outrages were the work of the Dillinger gang gained credence when Davenport police reported that a man known as Albert W. Reilly, a companion of Dillinger, had been seen in Davenport.

Reilly is sought on charges of harboring the notorious criminal. He is supposed to be the brother-in-law of Jean Crompton, Dillinger gang companion, arrested after Waterloo police fatally shot Tommy Carroll, gang member.

Radical Left Wing Appears in Saddle

By Raymond Clapper.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 14.—Left Wingers, who appear to dominate the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, said tonight after the first day's strike vote session, that only action by President Roosevelt could head off a walkout in the steel industry.

There was still a slight possibility that this determined attitude might be changed tomorrow when William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, appears before the reconvened convention, but it was remote. The younger heads of the union, which is affiliated with the A. F. of L., appear to be in the saddle, and they declare they will no longer listen to anyone except President Roosevelt.

They want from him a guarantee that the steel industry will recognize the Amalgamated Union in collective bargaining, wherever it demonstrated, in elections held outside of steel plants and supervised by the Government, that Amalgamated is in the majority among employes of a given plant.

Demand Union Recognition.

"We are not asking for the closed shop," said Earl J. Forbeck, leader of the "rank and file" Left Wingers. "That is a fake issue raised by the steel companies to get away from the main point. The closed shop has never been the issue. All we want is recognition under majority rule. Congress could pass a law to give us that in three hours. We don't want to listen to any more talk. We want action."

Green is due to appear before the convention tomorrow on invitation of M. F. Tighe, veteran president of the Amalgamated, who has been conservative and bent on holding the more aggressive younger element in check. His plea, to be successful, will have to overturn strike sentiment among the younger members.

Forbeck said he intended to make a counter-request of Green, to urge all A. F. of L. unions to join the steel workers in a general sympathetic strike.

Employers Stand Firm.

The Amalgamated convention has been reconvened after its April meeting, at which it was voted to strike if union recognition was not granted. Steel companies have refused this to date, and their counter-propositions have been rejected.

Today's meeting was devoted principally to checking in new delegates and to hearing reports from union leaders who had, under instructions of the earlier convention, gone to their respective employers and made formal requests for union

$87,175 Zukor Jewels Stolen While She Sleeps

Chicago, June 14 (AP).—While Mrs. Zukor, wife of the movie magnate, slept in her thirteenth floor Blackstone Hotel suite last night, a thief stole into her room, took from her side a bag containing $50 and gems valued at $87,175, and escaped unheard.

Mrs. Zukor and her maid, Anita Sachs, 29, were sleeping in nearby rooms. The thief, who turned on and left burning a light in an intervening room, took the bag from Mrs. Zukor's room.

It was the light left burning that awakened Mrs. Zukor at 4 a. m. She discovered the theft and called police.

The principal item of loot was a $75,000 necklace of 79 graduated pearls whose clasp was set with an 8-carat diamond. Mrs. Zukor said the jewels were insured.

Church Corner Stone Is Looted by Thieves

Atlanta, June 14 (AP). — Even a church corner stone isn't safe from burglars.

B. T. Turner, a member of the business board of the Church of God, today reported to police that thieves last night stole a quantity of jewelry from the church corner stone. Jewelry and money contributed by the congregation were sealed in the corner stone in 1925. He said some one removed the corner stone from the church with a crowbar.

Berlin Orders Moratorium On All Debts

Nation's Financial Plight Put Squarely Up to Foreign Creditors.

Berlin, June 14 (AP).—Germany told foreign creditors today that they will receive no interest for at least six months on medium and long-term obligations, including the Dawes and Young loans, to the payment of which the "full faith and credit" of the Reich government was pledged.

The moratorium was not unexpected, but the announcement placed the problem of what to do about the financial condition of Germany squarely up to her creditors.

The position of Germany, as outlined in a communique of the Reichsbank, announcing the moratorium, is that transfer of payments out of the country is impossible because of the low supply of gold and foreign exchange and that there would be no profit to anybody in devaluing the mark.

The mark, now almost wholly a national currency, has been held firmly on its "gold standard" basis, although the gold coverage has dropped to 3.4 per cent.

Young, Dawes Loans Included.

The Reichsbank statement dealt with all obligations except the Young and Dawes loans, and was followed by an announcement from the ministry of finance that interest and amortization on these would be suspended "until further notice."

Payments on the other obligations were suspended for six months beginning July 1, 1934, the bank statement said. These payments already were on a restricted basis, but the Dawes and Young loans had been exempted from previous partial payments.

These two important loans were floated to refund certain obligations of Germany resulting from World War reparations.

The Dawes loan, issued in 1924 to insure currency stabilization, bears interest at 7 per cent, and the Young loan of 1930 is on a 5½ per cent basis.

Huge Saving Expected.

The total saving in foreign exchange during the six months was estimated to amount to 300,000,000 marks (more than $120,000,000), of which 245,000,000 marks is represented by private loans and the remainder by the Young and Dawes obligations.

The Young and Dawes obligations bear the names of two American financiers, Owen D. Young and Charles G. Dawes, chairmen of the international committees arranging them.

The Reichsbank communique stated firmly that "we will keep the mark stable, and we have the power to do so," asserting that foreign pressure had been brought to bear for devaluation and denying that such a step was contemplated.

"There is not the slightest reason for assuming that foreign currencies would quietly stand for a policy of forced exports made possible through the devaluation of exchange," said the communique, "nor can we expect from such forced exports an increase in our exchange funds, for we would have to pay much more for the raw materials necessary to us in a devalued exchange than is the case today."

Exchange Offer Explained.

The communique then explained the offer recently made to representatives of foreign creditors by which refunding certificates, bearing 6 per cent interest, will be exchanged for interest coupons during the moratorium.

The government will guarantee these certificates, which will be payable in the currency of the original bond on January 1, 1945.

For bondholders refusing certificates, the Reichsbank will undertake to take up the coupons at 40 per cent of their face value after the six months' moratorium ends.

The confidence expressed by the Reichsbank in its ability to control the stability of the mark is not shared in all financial circles.

International Pressure Seen.

International pressure, it was said, would result from the present tendency toward rising prices in the Reich and can not be regarded highly, nor can the scant 3.4 gold coverage be looked upon as a bolstering agent.

There is a feeling in some quarters that foreign currency may be allowed to rise slowly against the mark, thereby keeping the fear of inflation out of the minds of the German people, who never forgot the conditions in 1923.

Nothing could so dampen the spirit of the German people, the government realizes, as to face the prospect of seeing their savings once more swept away by inflation.

On the contrary, others maintain with Schacht that Germany has nothing to gain by devaluation and point out the numerous restrictions now in effect on export of capital, which was free to move out of the country in 1923.

Improvement Seen In Work Situation

An improvement in the employment situation in Washington during May is noted in the monthly report of Adjutant H. Mills Eroh, commander of the Volunteers of America, made public last night.

Adjutant Eroh reported that about 120 men given aid by the Relief Mission during the month were able to obtain outside employment on their own initiative. During May, the mission served 11,894 meals, of which more than 3,000 were served to needy women and children. The mission distributed 1,625 baskets of food, 166 pairs of shoes and 1,052 articles of clothing.

would knock the "big guy for a loop" inside six rounds.

The switch of favoritism to Baer was so pronounced that it was one of the most sensational shifts before a big title fight in years and the first since 1927 that a heavyweight challenger assumed the role of favorite. Seven years ago at Chicago an eleventh-hour shift made Jack Dempsey the favorite to turn the tables on Gene Tunney and regain the heavyweight crown.

Reminds of Old Days.

Boxing officials from more than 15 States were in the gathering, together with a score of old-time champions. Two former wearers of the heavyweight crown, Gene Tunney, who retired undefeated in 1928, and Jack Sharkey, who lost it a year ago to Carnera, were on hand.

Tunney was with a gathering of friends and declined to say what he thought about the outcome.

Sharkey, accompanied by his wife, apparently was much happier to be on the outside looking in. He said: "I've got no choice. I'm just here to see somebody else take a punching around, for a change."

Farley at Ringside.

Postmaster General Farley, onetime chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, was with a big party of friends, keeping intact his record of never missing an important championship fight. Governors of several States, including A. Harry Moore of New Jersey, Joseph Ely of Massachusetts, and T. F. Green of Rhode Island, hobnobbed with other political notables, including Mayor F. H. La-Guardia of New York and Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City.

Other ringside seat-holders included Col. Theodore Roosevelt, Kermit Roosevelt, Bernard Baruch, Mr. and Mrs. Enzo Fiermonte, Vincent Astor, Mrs. Edward B. McLean, of Washington; George M. Cohan, Clark Gable and Babe Ruth.

that nearly swept him from his feet. Carnera pressed forward, looking like a wrecked battleship, and as Baer met him with another terrific right to the head, he held desperately. The champion's legs were buckling, he could scarcely stand, but he never stopped punching. He was wild, though, and Baer rammed a right, then a left, into the champion's huge body before crossing his right to the chin. The bell caught them with Carnera retreating into a corner.

The round was about even.

It was Carnera's round.

Round Eight—Carnera seemed to have all his great strength back as he danced across the ring and stabbed at Baer's face with a long left. Max took a few and then turned slaughterer. He drove a terrific left hook and right smash to the body, then flung a crashing overhead right to Carnera's temple. The giant shook off the terrific punishment, but ran back into another straight right to the side of the head that mashed the flesh under his left eye. Baer's right was low but he drove another terrific right back of Carnera's ear. The giant was wobbling again and a left hook brought a fresh stream of blood from his nose. Baer stood and looked him over, and Carnera, his face now the mask of a Gargoyle, weakly beckoned him to come in. Baer did and as Carnera lunged to get away from him the champion fell flat in his own corner. As the bell rang, Referee Donovan called a low blow on Baer which automatically cost him the round.

Round Nine — Carnera seemed much weaker as he came up this time. Baer stalked him like a merciless panther, grunting, baring his teeth, for the kill. But Carnera's courage was not undermined. He crowded forward, jarring Baer off balance with his left, and he brought up a thunderous left hook to the challenger's face. Baer missed a long left to the head, but drove a long right to the body and Primo beckoned him to come in and fight. Baer did, diving in headlong, and his right smashed on Carnera's chin as his left swung again into low territory. Carnera didn't complain. He fought back with two right uppercuts that shot Max's head back, though the champion's legs were floundering under him. Baer dove in with a left hook to the body and a right that glanced off the champion's shoulder.

Carnera seemed to have a shade in this round.

New Parking Ban Protested

Revenue Workers Join Other Departments in Opposition.

Proposals to extend parking restrictions on roads in and surrounding the Mall area and the Lincoln Memorial were strongly protested yesterday by Internal Revenue Department Lodge, No. 47, in a resolution addressed to Arno B. Cammerer, director of the National Park Service.

Similar action has been taken by employes of the Munitions, Navy, Public Health Service and Naval Hospital buildings.

"The parking restrictions as they now exist are totally prohibitive as well as impracticable," the Revenue Lodge protest stated. "It is necessary for literally thousands of us to drive our cars to and from work. Most of us can not now secure paid parking space in the very limited parking area available within walking distance of our offices.

"The adoption and continuance of such a policy will mean forcing us to leave our cars home, incur additional unnecessary expense for other means of transporation which even now is inadequate and unsatisfactory for the still more thousands of us who are forced to use them," the protest added.

George Terrell Irked Aplenty As Lawyer Adopts His Name

There is only one original George B. Terrell, of Texas, and all others are political imitations, the recalcitrant Texan yesterday told House members in a parting shot before leaving Congress for his native cow country.

Jefferson T. Baker, a Dallas lawyer, changed his name in the courts to George B. Terrell, and the one and only Texas Representative, who has passed most of the session voting "no" against Administration measures, didn't like it a bit.

Sardonically, he appealed "to the Great White Chief who sits on the Throne" for an NRA code to "protect the people of my State against further imposition of the Terrell family in politics."

"If there are to be any more Terrells in politics," said the Texas champion of the Constitution, "I want them made according to the Divine plan and not by court decrees."

Terrell said a friend wrote him that Jefferson Baker, alias George Terrell, had filed as a candidate for State treasurer, and was considering moving into Terrell's own district to run for Congress.

Boy Bitten by Mad Cat May Be Dying of Rabies

Flat Lick, Ky:. June 14 (U.P.).—A 7-year-old boy who was bitten by a mad cat on March 12 and didn't tell anybody about it, was believed dying in convulsions tonight.

The boy, Ralph King, first told his parents that the cat had bitten him when he had his first attack of rabies seven days ago. He has had ten convulsions since then.

Trades Council Urges Arbiters For D. C. Strike

Union Leaders, Employers Will Hold Parley on Plan Today.

the Department of Labor and others to effect an adjustment in the matter and that the employment of nonunion carpenters be stopped pending negotiations."

Contrary to expectations, the council, which is the local unit of the American Federation of Labor building trades department, did not order a sympathy strike of all union workmen on jobs where nonunion carpenters had been hired.

Plan Commended.

Howard T. Colvin, Labor Department conciliator, who was called into the meeting after the resolution was passed, commended the arbitration plan and praised the council's restraint in not calling a general strike.

Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, chairman of the National Labor Board, had been invited to attend the conference.

Should the arbitration suggestion be voted down, there is no indication how long the strike or the open shop will continue.

Officials of George A. Fuller Co. and James Stewart & Co., two of the largest concerns which opened their jobs to nonunion carpenters yesterday, expressed unwillingness to comply with the building council's request to cease hiring pending arbitration. They withheld detailed comment until conferring with Allen.

The greatest number of carpenters were hired at the Labor-I. C. C. job, so far as could be learned. Eighteen were put to work there on interior trimming and building a subway ramp, according to the Stewart Company officials.

One Man Ready.

At the Library of Congress annex, where there was work enough for 60 or 70 carpenters, only one presented himself ready to take up his tools. About half a dozen were sent by the United States Employment Service—this was the procedure, the annex being a PWA project—but all apparently decided not to take the jobs.

The single workman who was prepared to start building forms for concrete appeared so late in the day he was not hired.

At the new Supreme Court Building, a few blocks north, six carpenters were taken on. More were available, but shortage of materials held down the number who could be used right away, according to the superintendent.

Carpenters were at work on the Justice and Archives Buildings, but their numbers were not disclosed. A few also were put on by John W. Cowper Co., contractors for the new Calvert Street Bridge, who needed them to put approaches to the old span in condition for motor and foot traffic.

Blanton Warning.

Adoption of the open shop, with its attendant picketing, police guards, threats of violence and a few sporadic fist fights, had a repercussion in the House when Representative Blanton, of Texas, took the floor to warn "those fellows had better not injure our new Government buildings while the fight is going on."

He said it was ridiculous to station Washington policemen as guards on Federal buildings. But the police kept their posts. The tear gas squad, held ready for any emergency, saw no action.

Two striking carpenters were arrested by detectives when they attempted to enter the Labor-I. C. C. job on Fourteenth street near Constitution avenue to identify carpenters at work.

Proposal Renewed.

The B-W Construction Co., only one of the large general contractors which is not going along with the open-shop plan, renewed its proposal yesterday to end the strike by taking back union carpenters at the old rate of $1 an hour and placing in escrow 37½ cents for each hour of labor until a wage rate is finally agreed upon.

"The plan is that the men resume work," said a letter from the company, which is erecting the city postoffice addition, to O. C. Rickard, president of the Carpenters District Council, "draw the prevailing wage before the expiration of the contract and the B-W Construction Co. will place in escrow 37½ cents per hour for each and every hour these men work, so that there would be available immediately upon agreement every cent that these men finally were entitled to under this new wage scale."

The same offer was made soon after the strike began May 1, but was rejected.

Union carpenters are on strike for $1.37½ an hour and a five-day, 30-hour week. They have turned down, by referendum of full membership, compromise offers of $1.25 and a 40-hour week, and, later, $1.25 and a four-day, 32-hour week. The latest compromise, which was rejected last week, had the approval of William L. Hutcheson, president of the international union.

Carpenters being hired by the Federal building contractors and by local employers, members of the Master Builders Association, are receiving $1.10 an hour, the PWA scale, on a 40-hour week basis.

Another Labor Row.

Another labor dispute will be threshed out today in District Supreme Court when officials of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union appear to show cause why setting of accoustical stone in the auditorium which joins the Labor and I. C. C. buildings should not be divided with the Operative Plasterers and Cement Fnishers International Association.

Application for an injunction against the B. M. P. I. U. was made two weeks ago by the rival union. The jurisdictional dispute resulted in a general strike being called on the project last month by the Washington Building Trades Council, supporting the operative plasterers.

Despite the strike order, seven trades have stayed on the job, according to James Stewart & Co., including electrical workers, hoisting engineers, laborers and crafts allied with the bricklayers' union.

Pickets Dissuading Carpenter

Ship Sponsored By Farley Child

Daughter of Postmaster General to Launch Destroyer.

Elizabeth M. Farley, 4-year-old daughter of Postmaster General Farley, has been designated sponsor for the U. S. S. Aylwin, destroyer No. 355, Secretary Swanson announced yesterday.

The Aylwin is named in honor of Lieut. John Cushing Aylwin, United States Navy. It will be launched from the Philadelphia Navy Yard, July 10, 1934.

The vessel is of 1,500 tons displacement and the second named for Lieut. Aylwin. He was born in Quebec, Canada, and served in the Constitution under the command of Capt. Isaac Hull.

Aylwin was wounded in an encounter with H. M. S. Guerriere. He was prominent in the fight between the Constitution and the Java being fatally wounded in that engagement. He died January 28, 1813.

10 Per Cent Cut In Phone Rates For City Upheld

District Supreme Court Decision Sustains PUC Order.

"In order to ascertain whether the existing rates were unreasonably high it became necessary to determine, as of December 31, 1931, the fair value of the plaintiff's property used and useful in its business; its net income under the existing rates; and finally whether this net income produced an unreasonably high return upon the value of the property," Justice Adkins wrote.

Pointing out that the burden of establishing the fairness of its rates was upon the company, Justice Adkins said the C. & P. was bound "to show by clear and satisfactory evidence that the determination, requirement, direction, or order of the commission complained of, is inadequate, unreasonable, or unlawful." This burden, he indicated, had not been sustained.

While winning its rate case, the commission lost its fight for control of the depreciation accounts of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. Even this victory for the telephone company may prove hollow, however, as the communications act which became a law last week accorded State commissions much of the power which they have been unable to wrest from the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The court sustained the utility in its appeal from an order by the commission directing the telephone company to credit monthly to its depreciation reserve interest at 5 per cent per annum upon the balance in that account.

The practical effect of the order would have been to reduce the company's annual charges for depreciation by the amount of such interest, which would exceed $330,000 a year.

Justice Adkins, in sustaining the appeal, said: "I think it is clear that by the transportation act of 1920 amending the Interstate Commerce act, Congress clothed the I. C. C. with authority to fix rates of depreciation to be charged by the plaintiff and to prescribe the character of accounts to be kept by it."

The I. C. C. has consequently prescribed the character of these accounts, the court stated, and this basis does not provide for interest on the balance in the account. The I. C. C. is in process of fixing rates of depreciation to be charged by telephone companies, the court said.

All authority over the telephone systems passes, however, on July 1, to the Federal Communications Commission, which is to be created under the terms of the communications act.

Tugwell Wins Senate Battle With G.O.P. Aid

(Cotton Ed) Smith, of the Agriculture Committee. Smith was joined by several other Democrats, who assailed Tugwell as inexperienced, exceeding his authority, possessing ideas subversive to the Constitution and being "evasive" before the Agriculture Committee.

A six-hour debate, which, on the whole, was neither exciting nor brilliant, yesterday preceded the vote on Tugwell's nomination. The youthful brain truster was sharply assailed by a half-dozen Democrats and one Republican. He was ardently defended by two Republican progressives and several Democrats.

The issue against Tugwell was not well drawn. Senator Smith contended that it was the "little Cabinet" officer's inexperience as a "dirt farmer" which demanded his rejection. Senator Harry F. Byrd (Democrat), of Virginia, argued that Tugwell believed in theories dangerous to constitutional government. Senator Josiah W. Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, based his opposition on Tugwell's "evasive answers" and his lack of "candor, frankness and intellectual honesty" before the Agricultural Committee Monday.

Backers Scoff at Foes.

The Tugwell defenders ridiculed or brushed aside all these contentions. Senator Hugo L. Black (Democrat), of Alabama, argued that the issue was between "those looking backward" and those wishing "to go forward." Senator Bronson Cutting (Democrat), of New Mexico, contended that the opposition expressed to Tugwell was really intended "for some one higher up." Senator Mathew M. Neely (Democrat), of West Virginia, likened Tugwell's assailants to those who forced "Socrates to drink the hemlock."

Senator George W. Norris (Republican), Nebraska, sarcastically describes in burlesque fashion the Monday hearing, asserting it was the "most amazing show" he had ever seen and needed only the Marine Band to make it complete. Norris asserted Tugwell's opponents were refusing to face facts, but had taken a leaf from the notebook of Samuel Insull, whose motto he said, was:

"Don't discuss issues; hang the bolshevik label on your opponent."

"If Tugwell is defeated," Norris asserted, "it will be one of the greatest victories for special privilege this country has ever seen."

G. O. P. Chiefs Absent.

Thus the debate ran until 5 p. m., when the roll was called. Curiously enough, several Senators—Borah (Republican), Idaho, and Republican Leader McNary—who had been present in the chamber at various times during the day were absent when the vote was taken and they were not recorded as paired Claims of a wholesale Democratic bolt against Tugwell failed to materialize. Only six Democrats cast votes against him while one—Glass, of Virginia—was paired against the nomination. Offsetting these seven Democratic opponents, nine Republican progressives voted for confirmation as did Senator Henrik Shipstead (Farmer-Labor), of Minnesota.

Norris opened the day's debate in behalf of Tugwell. He caused frequent laughter by his description of the Agricultural Committee hearing, explaining that the purpose seemed to be to keep the spectators in a "fervor of patriotism." Every time a lull came in the hearing, he said, Smith, or Byrd would make "a stump speech" which would set the crowd "wild, yelling and clapping their hands."

Table Took Punishment.

The Nebraskan contended that the examination of Tugwell smacked more of "police court" methods than an inquiry by a Senate committee. The table in the room must have been especially built for the occasion, he said, because it was pounded and thumped so often he did not understand why it did not collapse.

Norris said he saw nothing wrong with either Tugwell's ideas or his answers to the committee, except that the young brain truster had erred when he described himself as a conservative. Norris had regarded him as a liberal and would "like him a little better if he had said, 'I am a liberal.'"

Byrd denied that he had attempted to persecute Tugwell at the hearing, as charged by Norris. He said that the brain truster had "able counsel" at the hearing in the persons of Senators Norris, Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, and other supporters in the Senate. He said it was difficult at times to determine who was being examined—"Tugwell or Senators."

Tydings Defends Tugwell.

The former Virginia Governor said his opposition to Tugwell was inspired by the admission of the Assistant Secretary that in administering the AAA act he had exceeded the authority conferred by Congress. Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, thought Byrd was being unfair to Tugwell.

The Marylander pointed out that if the AAA act went too far it was the fault of Congress which passed it and that Tugwell had no "discretion about enforcing it to the best of his ability."

Tydings also contended that if the objections raised to Tugwell's confirmation were valid, he should be removed from his present position. But Byrd said Senate action on the new appointment would be construed as "a vote of confidence."

"If we confirm him," interpolated Senator Thomas P. Gore (Democrat), Oklahoma, "we indorse his views that industry and the Constitution should be destroyed."

Byrd admitted that he was not disturbed by Tugwell's alleged radicalism, because if the latter had any he lacked "the courage to stand by them." He referred to Tugwell lacking "in candor and frankness in dealing with Congress."

Black Praises Tugwell.

Black came to Tugwell's defense, asserting that while he did not agree with all that the brain truster had written, he was "for Dr. Tugwell because he is one man who is not content with looking backward."

"He is not bound by any lavish precedents," Black continued. "It is a pleasure to find one man with brains who has dared to follow his own course. The hue and cry against Tugwell is because he has fought against the continued accumulation of wealth.

"He is opposed because he had used his brains to oppose special privilege, to end sweat shops and child labor, the exploitation of farmers and workmen. That is his crime. He is opposed by two classes, the forces of special privilege and those who can not brook change."

Bailey quickly called Black to account, asserting his opposition could not be put in either of the classes mentioned by the Alabaman.

Dickinson Sees Danger.

Black argued that Tugwell had an "inquiring type of mind" and that "we need more minds of that type in government." He said that if there had been "more Dr. Tugwells" in public life in the past, government would now be better than it is.

Senator L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa, the only regular Republican who joined in the attack on Tugwell, contended the latter had "dangerous theories" and that his writings prompted radical action, including public ownership of railroads, utilities and similar enterprises. Dickinson read to the Senate Tugwell's poem "I Will Rebuild America," first revealed by Bailey yesterday.

The poem began:

"We begin to see richness as poorness; we begin to dignify toil;
"I have dreamed my great dreams of their passing,
"I have gathered my tools and my charts;
"My plans are fashioned and practical;
"I shall roll up my sleeves—make America over."

Long Defends Official.

Senator Huey P. Long (Democrat), Louisiana, said he had to vote to support the Administration because in Tugwell it had taken "the left trend." He said he only opposed the Administration when it "goes to the right." He said Tugwell wanted to put a stop to the amassing of great wealth and that therefore he was "for him."

When Senator Bennett C. Clark (Democrat), Missouri, asserted that the creation of the office of Undersecretary of Agriculture had been "surreptiously" pushed through the Senate, in violation of rules, he aroused the ire of Senator Richard B. Russell (Democrat), Georgia. Russell was chairman of the Appropriations sub-committee in charge of the Agricultural Department appropriations bill, to which a rider creating an Undersecretary was attached.

Russell said Clark's assertions were "entirely false" and that while the Missourian might know his parliamentary rule book, his attendance on Senate proceedings was bad or he would have known about the rider. He said Clark's complaint, three months late, in effect was directed against his "own inattention to his duties."

Roper Calls On Churches To Aid State

Declaring the Administration depends on the church for inspiration to solve social problems, Secretary of Commerce Roper last night urged reorganization of religious endeavor under plans "not unlike the NRA in purpose."

Addressing the Washington meeting of the National Committee for Religious and Welfare Recovery, in session at the Mayflower Hotel, Secretary Roper called for a poised state of society with a balance between temporal and divine authority.

Citing President Roosevelt's challenge for a "more abundant life" recently issued before the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, Mr. Roper urged his audience to think less of church creeds and more of purposes which prompted the founding of churches.

When the "pew has caught up with the pulpit in intellectual development * * * there will be no empty churches and financial difficulties will disappear," Secretary Roper concluded.

The conference, called by 170 leaders of the Protestant, Catholic and Jewish faiths, included college and university presidents, secretaries of church, educational and mission boards, executives of welfare groups, bishops and ministers of many denominations, senators, bankers, lawyers and prominent laymen.

Dr. William R. King, executive secretary of the Home Missions Council; B. A. Garside, of the "China Colleges;" Brigadier John J. Allen, of the Salvation Army; the Most Rev. William Quinn, director of the National office of the Society for Propagation of the Faith; Karl P. Meister, representative of the Homes for the Aged, and Rabbi Abram Simon, of the Washington Hebrew Congregation, took part in the conference.

hotel on the Grand Canal here and Mussolini drove in to return the call, a formal task which required only five minutes.

While the two premiers were talking, their retinues, including Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath, of Germany, and Undersecretary Fulvio Suvich, of Italy, held informal conferences among themselves.

While it was stated that no communique will be issued until after two conferences tomorrow, it was learned that the conversations took in disarmament, the Austrian situation, Germany's attitude toward the League of Nations, and various economic topics, among them Italy's recent trade alliances with Austria and Hungary.

Japanese Competition Broached.

It was said also that Il Duce broached concerted action in regard to Japanese economic aggression, which had practically ruined Italy's silk and cotton markets.

Unofficial statements regarding the conversation emphasized that the two leaders were extremely cordial, and that their talks are likely to produce results.

With regard to disarmament, it was stated that Mussolini had gone a long way toward inducing Hitler to return to the Geneva conference, but it was said there will be no announcement on this subject, because Germany's final action is dependent on whether France can be induced to make sufficient concessions.

The elaborate precautions for their safety enabled the two men to display themselves almost recklessly to the populace during the day, and at one time the crowd broke through the police lines and carried Mussolini on their shoulders.

Hitler arrived at the airport on Lido Island at 9:45 a. m., his plane gliding down over the newly mowed grass amid a colorful display of Italian military and naval organizations.

Mussolini, in a gray and green corporal's uniform, was there to greet his guest, to whom he gave a Roman salute. Hitler, wearing a dark suit and a light brown raincoat, returned the greeting and shook hands with Il Duce.

The two dictators walked together to a motorboat, which took them to the Grand Hotel, where Hitler remained for a short time before motoring to the meeting place.

In Venice and along the highway to the villa the German leader was given ovation after ovation, and everywhere he saw gay decorations in his honor.

New York-Washington Air Service Increased

Air passenger and express service between New York and Washington will be increased to eight round trips daily today by addition of one trip in each direction on schedules of Eastern Air Lines. Planes of 15 or 18 passenger capacity will be used.

The southbound plane of the new schedule will leave Newark Airport at 3:40 p. m., standard time, stopping at Philadelphia and Baltimore to receive or discharge passengers. The northbound craft will leave Washington at 8 a. m. Through schedules to southern points will carry air mail.

WASH OUT 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

Win Back Pep . . . Vigor . . . Vitality

Medical authorities agree that your kidneys contain 15 MILES of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy.

If you have trouble with too frequent bladder passages with scanty amount causing burning and discomfort, the 15 MILES of kidney tubes need washing out. This danger signal may be the beginning of nagging backache, leg pains, loss of pep and vitality, getting up nights, lumbago, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains and dizziness.

If kidneys don't empty 3 pints every day and get rid of 4 pounds of waste matter, your body will take up these poisons causing serious trouble. It may knock you out and lay you up for many months. Don't wait. Ask your druggist for DOAN'S PILLS . . . a doctor's prescription . . . which has been used successfully by millions of kidney sufferers for over 40 years. They give quick relief and will help to wash out the 15 MILES of kidney tubes.

But don't take chances with strong drugs or so-called "kidney cures" that claim to fix you up in 15 minutes, for they may seriously injure and irritate delicate tissues. Insist on DOAN'S PILLS . . . the old reliable relief that contain no "dope" or habit-forming drugs. Be sure you get DOAN'S PILLS at your druggist. © 1934, Foster-Milburn Co.

Roosevelt Aid Sought to Halt Steel Walkout

Union Chiefs Hold White House Alone Able to Prevent Strike.

recognition. Thirty-eight replies were filed at today's session.

In only one case, that of a small independent company at Carnegie, Pa., was the answer of the employer considered satisfactory. Others were adamant against recognition. One employer, it was reported to the convention, told the union delegation to "get the hell out of here." President Tighe said he had reported this to Gen. Johnson, who said that if affidavits were presented he would turn the case over to the Department of Justice for consideration.

Green Seen as Peacemaker.

There was a partial indication of left wing strength when this group defeated a motion to suspend the rules and bar from the hall Amalgamated members who were not delegates. Otherwise there was no action by the meeting which would give a more definite clew as to the exact voting strength of each side. Union officials announced that 188 delegates had been seated.

The whole chance of averting a strike, with the possibilities of bloodshed, which are latent in the bitter feeling and the armed defenses being prepared at steel plants, lies tonight in the chance that Green can make a sufficiently persuasive appeal to union leaders tomorrow to delay action.

That is the hope which conservative union heads are clinging to tonight. But even this hope was somewhat dimmed by news from Washington. Conservative union leaders, who had placed some hope in President Roosevelt's new substitute for the Wagner bill, read late news dispatches quoting Green as opposed to it. Furthemore, suggested amendments from Republican Senators, especially that suggesting proportional representation as between company unions and outside unions, run counter to sentiment among the left wing group. They want straight out majority representation—all outside union or all company union, depending on which side has the majority of employes. Only this, they say, will give them clear-cut recognition.

Conservatives Want Delay.

Conservative union leaders hope that Green will be able to paint the seriousness of a strike at this time so convincingly and will be able to give assurances sufficently definite, as to induce the aggressive "rank and file" group to agree to a postponement of a strike date. If this date, previously fixed at June 16, could be postponed, conservative leaders believe that would give time for Congress to enact mandatory legislation guaranteeing their demands. Whether such a thing can be done without a pledge from Presdient Roosevelt is uncertain.

One proposal for a 30-day truce made by a Roman Catholic priest, Casimir Orlemanski, of Natrona, Pa., was tossed aside by left wing leaders. He was invited to appear as a guest speaker and suggested that during this truce both sides agree to hold elections outside of company premises, under Government supervision, agree to proportional representation, according to the relative strength of company and outside unions and agree to a "check-off" for both unions whereby members of each will allow the company to deduct union dues from pay envelopes. Insurgent leaders objected to the proportional representation feature and to the 30-day delay.

Many Ominous Signs.

Ominous signs of what is ahead in event of a strike are appearing Charles E. Anderson, president of the Amalgamated's NRA lodge—in this union local unions are called lodges—at Weirton, W. Va., reported at today's meeting that last Monday night, returning home from a union meeting, he was slugged in front of his home. He said that when he appealed to police for help they told him to first get the names of his assailants. The Jones & Laughlin Steel Co. placed a police boat in commission today which, manned by four company police, will patrol the Monongahela River area where its plants are located. Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar prepared to deputize 5,000 men if necessary to preserve order in event of a strike.

Several small concerns, he said, already have inquired as to his plans for dealing with strike trouble. Some steel plants are reported to be moving in cots on which to sleep workers within company premises. Reports from Gary were that extra searchlights were being put up.

This area has seen two steel strikes, both bloody, the Homestead strike in 1893 and the 1919 strike, managed by William Z. Foster. Amalgamated lost both struggles.

Dissesion in Union.

This, its third crisis, finds it torn internally between old line A. F. of L. leaders like President Tighe, a member of Amalgamated for 57 years, all except two years of its history, and the young bloods. After the 1919 strike the union declined until it had only about 5,000 members and about 95 lodges. But with enactment of NRA and its collective bargaining section, organizers went to work and now Amalgamated claims to have 232 lodges. Its membership is supposed to be between 30,000 and 40,000, though no official figures have been revealed. This is out of an industry employing about 400,000 men.

Cripples' Man On NRA Labor Board Sought

D. C. Society Asks Naming of Representative for Handicapped.

Appointment of a representative on the NRA Labor Advisory Board to care for physically handicapped persons is now under consideration, it was learned yesterday.

Demands for such a representative have been made by the Vocational Rehabilitation Society of the District, of which E. R. Carl is president. Mr. Carl is now making a survey to determine how many persons throughout the country would benefit.

"Most of the NRA codes are discriminatory toward physically handicapped persons," Mr. Carl said yesterday. "President Roosevelt's executive order pertaining to handicapped employes is in direct conflict with the functions of the State and Federal vocational and rehabilitation service as far as the replacing of handicapped people in industry at a living wage is concerned.

"With all due respect to the various State departments of labor and the United States Department of Labor, we feel that the various State vocational rehabilitation boards should be the designated authority to pass on any question concerning an employe or a constituent eligible for employment who is physically handicapped," Mr. Carl wrote in a letter to Linton M. Collins, administrator of division eight.

Conscientious Objector Is Denied Citizenship

St. Louis, June 14 (AP).—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals, in a decision handed down here today, denied the citizenship application of the Rev. T. F. Rutledge Beale, British-born pastor of the People's Church of St. Paul, Minn., and conscientious objector to military service.

Beale contended the Kellogg Peace Pact of 1929, had canceled the part of the naturalization laws requiring applicants to state their willingness to perform miltary duty.

Real Wealth of U. S. Is Youth, Wallace Tells 4-H Delegates

Agriculture Secretary Urges Advantageous Use of Leisure.

It is the feeling of thoughtful people the Nation over that the only true wealth in the United States is in its boys and girls, Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace told 157 delegates to the eighth annual conference of 4-H Clubs yesterday.

In an address of welcome, Secretary Wallace stated that "so-called wealth" is not real except "as it is fertilized and made useful by real wealth, which is represented by the young life we see here."

"The world is on the move," Secretary Wallace asserted. "It is exciting and adventurous. The world gains extraordinary speed after you have reached the age of 20. Those with more brains, personality and leadership ability than the average will be thrust into positions of responsibility. It is astonishing how rapidly some of you will move into positions of responsibility in your communities."

More Leisure Seen.

Secretary Wallace declared that the time was not far distant when machines will make labor even more efficient and vastly increased opportunities for leisure would ensue. He pleaded for advantageous use of leisure and rapped selfish competition.

"If the aims toward which the Administration is working come about in part because of what 4-H clubs have done, they will have contributed as much to the future welfare of the United States as any other organization," concluded Secretary Wallace.

He spoke in the auditorium of the new National Museum. Following the morning assembly the junior conference was held in the auditorium. This was presided over by Claude A. Moulton, of St. Lawrence County, N. Y. Dr. H. W. Hurt, research director of the Boy Scouts, spoke on training and cooperation.

Various agriculture enterprises undertaken by them during the past year were described to delegates at this conference by 4-H members.

Curb Market Described.

A curb market conducted by club girls was described by Frances Howard Sullivan, of Montgomery County, Ala. Louise Lee, of Alabama, told how she taught the colored people on her father's farm to can.

"Sore fingers and a sore back are the price of a good garden," Dorothy Dunlap, of Connecticut, told the delegates.

From South Carolina came Dan W. Bickley, to tell how he and his father raised a superior brand of soft, yellow corn, which was peculiarly adapted to the welfare of the community.

How she raised 1,300 baby chicks on her parents' South Carolina farm was described by Mary Royle. Many other agricultural feats were reported.

The delegates pitched their tents at Seventh street northwest and the Mall yesterday, and took to camp life like a small army of young farmers. Sessions will continue through June 20.

Massachusetts Pay Bill Is Signed by Governor

Boston, June 14 (U.P.)—Gov. Joseph B. Ely today signed Massachusetts' minimum wage bill, which provides fines or jail sentences for employers who do not comply with the mandatory wage scales promulgated for women and children in industry.

The new law was recommended by the Commission on Interstate Compacts. It provides fines of $50 to $200 and jail sentences of 10 to 90 days or both. It defines a "fair wage" as "fairly and reasonably

Kuhn, Loeb to Continue As Investment House

New York(June 14 (AP).—Kuhns, Loeb & Co., one of Wall Street's largest private banking houses, announced tonight that it will continue in the investment banking business after June 16.

In compliance with the Banking act of 1933, the firm will no longer engage in the business or receiving deposits.

U. S. Probing Sale of Arms In Chaco War

Manufacturers May Face Jail Sentences for Shipments.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.)

An investigation has been ordered by the Department of Justice to determine whether $600,000 worth of munitions, now on the docks in New York and Norfolk, awaiting shipment to Bolivia, was sold in violation of the Presidential ban on Chaco war supplies.

The Justice Department has called on the manufacturers for their contract terms and all papers pertinent to the transaction, to determine if title had passed at 6:30 p. m., May 28, when the Presidential proclamation stopping the sale of arms in this country designed for use by Bolivia or Paraguay, went into effect.

If title for the goods had passed prior to that time the shipments were expected to move for the Chaco within a week. If title had not passed, however, the Justice Department was prepared to seize any questioned goods as evidence and proceed with criminal charges against the manufacturers.

Two years' imprisonment or $10,000 fine, or both, for each violation was provided in the law authorizing Presidential action.

In one of the cases under scrutiny, officials believe title had questionably passed at the time of the ban.

The transactions under perusal were reported to the Justice Department by the Treasury.

The proclamation already has stopped all other known pending negotiations and several munitions makers have broken off all contact with Bolivian and Paraguayan representatives. Others were prepared to turn down any purchase advances.

The manufacturers are playing the game with Uncle Sam," one official said. "There are two very potent reasons; first, no manufacturer wants to jeopardize his position with the Government, because the United States is the best potential customer of any munitions company, and, second, the punishment for violating the order is too great to take a chance."

The Chaco situation was the topic of a long conversation yesterday between State Department officials and Dr. Enrique Finot, the Bolivian Minister, who recently transmitted his government's protest against the ban.

Secretary Hull, in answering this note Wednesday, declined Bolivia's request that the proclamation order be rescinded.

Tercentenary Of Maryland Starts Today

High Federal Officials to Attend Elaborate Ceremonies.

Calm reigned within the State House, with reproductions of its original seventeenth century furnishings in place, with many antiques to be presented the State tomorrow. St. Mary's Female Seminary will be host to many tercentenary officials, and National and State dignitaries. Tomorrow's official luncheon will be served in the seminary dining room.

The Ark and Dove, tercentenary ship replicas of the vessels which brought the first Maryland colonists to the New World, rode at anchor on St. Inigoes Creek. Fashioned with the high poops and quaint rigging of seventeenth century days, they presented strange contrast to the modern Gov. McLane, Maryland Conservation Commission flagship, and police patrol ships. Gov. Albert Ritchie and party and Swepson Earle, Maryland conservation commissioner and director of the water pageant, are making the Gov. McLane their headquarters.

At 10:30 a. m. tomorrow the opening ceremony of the tercentenary celebration will take place here at the entrance to old Trinity Episcopal Church, built of bricks from the original St. Marys statehouse.

Memorial Gates.

Only a few steps from the old site of the State House, tercentenary memorial gates will be presented by the Ark and Dove Society of Maryland.

Dr. James Magruder, D. D., of Annapolis, governor of the society, will preside at a symbolical ritual, which includes presentation of a brick from the gateway to William L. Marbury, chairman of the tercentenary commission. The brick will be embedded with a tercentenary medallion on one side and an iron cross on the other. Gov. Ritchie will receive the gift from Mr. Marbury and present it to the Rev. Nelson Maconomy, rector of Trinity Church, who will speak in acceptance.

The Rev. John Elliott Ross, of Virginia, Ark and Dove Society chaplain, will speak. The gates will be unveiled by Mrs. Katherine M. Brevitt, charter member of the organization. Robert M. Thomas will carry the National flag, J. Spence Howard, jr., the Maryland banner, and Anne Reeder, the Ark and Dove emblem.

At 10:45 a. m. presentation of gifts for the State House of 1676 will be held. Flanked by State notables and tercentenary commission executives, headed by R. Bennett Darnall and Mr. Marbury, Gov. Ritchie will accept the gifts on behalf of the State.

To Present Gifts.

Gifts will be presented by the following notables: Dr. A. B. Bibbins, an American flag, given by the Star-Spangled Banner Flag House Association; Mrs. Adelbert W. Mears, a Maryland flag, given by the National Society United Daughters of 1812; Mayor Howard W. Jackson, Baltimore, $2,500 given by Baltimore City for portraits and furnishings for the Statehouse; Senator Lewis Milbourne, portrait of George Calvert, given by the Eastern Shore Society, of Baltimore City; Dr. Hugh Young, Calvert portraits; Mrs. Edward Shoemaker, bust of Leonard Calvert, given by the Maryland Society of Colonial Dames; Mrs. Joseph S. Myers.

Statue Model.

Before luncheon a 4-foot plaster model of the giant "Freedom of Conscience" statue, to be carved in granite by the noted Baltimore sculptor, Hans Schuler, will be presented on the statue's site at the northern entrance to St. Marys City. The Hon. Walter J. Mitchell will preside.

When the Ark and Dove sail around Chancellors Point, following military maneuvers by National Guardsmen at 1 p. m., the biggest thrill of the day will come for many Marylanders. For the first time since 1634, this famed colonization voyage will be reenacted on St. Marys River.

As in the seventeenth century, sailing power alone will bear the ships to their original anchorage off St. Marys Bluff. Seamen in colonial garb will man her.

Aboard will be a group of St. Marys County participants in the land pageant, directed by Mrs. Kathleen Read Coontz, of Washington, and scheduled to follow the water pageant. Clad in the garb of three centuries ago, they will represent Leonard Calvert and his first band of Maryland Colonists.

Land Pageant.

Entitled "St. Maries, the Mother of Maryland," the land pageant will begin at 2:30 p. m. In pictorial scenes, it will trace the history of St. Marys City from its birth in 1634 to removal of the Capital to Annapolis in 1695.

More than 1,000 Marylanders will take part. Mrs. Coontz pageant author, will direct the huge cast from a dugout before a mounded grass stage. Professional readers will speak the script, while actors on the stage, present the action in vivid pantomime.

Following the pageant, two 300-year-old cannon which came to Maryland shores on the Ark will be presented in the State House grounds by Daniel R. Randall for the Maryland Society of Colonial Wars.

Friday night will be marked by military parades, concerts, illumination of boats on St. Marys River. At 9 p. m. there will be a program of old Maryland Colonial dances.

Three Governors.

Governors from three States are expected to attend. They are Gov. Ritchie, Gov. Douglas Buck of Delaware, and Gov. Wilbur Cross of Connecticut.

Among other State and National dignitaries present will be United States Attorney General Cummings, Senators T. Allan Goldsborough, Millard Tydings and Bennett Clark, Representatives William P. Cole, jr., and David J. Lewis; Mayor and Mrs. Howard W. Jackson, of Baltimore; Leander McCormick-Goodhart, commercial secretary of the British Embassy; Maryland Secretary of State David G. Winebrenner, Hon. and Mrs. Henry Hobson, of the British counsel; former United States Senator and Mrs. W. Cabell Bruce; State Senator Lewis Milbourne, president of the Eastern Shore Society; Mrs. Charles P. Peace, vice president of the Federated Garden Clubs of Maryland; Mrs. Frank J. Parran, president of the Southern Maryland Society of Colonial Dames; State Superintendent of Schools and Mrs. Albert S. Cook; Judge Carroll T. Bond, Judge J. R. Patterson, Judge Francis Neal Park, Judge T. Scott Offutt, Judge W. Mitchell Digges, all of the Maryland Court of Appeals; Mr. and Mrs. John M. Dennis, William S. Gordy, state comptroller; State Senator J. Allan Coad, head of the St. Marys County Tercentenary Commission; R. Bennett Darnall, executive Tercentenary chairman; Mr. and Mrs. J. Spence Howard, Tercentenary Commission members; Edwin Warfield, jr., son of former Governor of Maryland Edwin Warfield; Dr. Hugh H. Young, noted Johns Hopkins surgeon, who purchased the Calvert pictures last fall, and Miss Lettie Marshall Dent, superintendent of St. Marys County Schools.

New Yorker, Filipino to Command Ark, Dove In Sailing Up St. Marys River to Fete Today

Replicas of the Original Settlers' Boats Built by Dr. Rappleyea.

Baltimore, June 14 (Spl.).—As the feature of the tercentenary celebration at St. Marys City tomorrow, the good ships Ark and Dove, replicas of the vessels which brought the original Maryland colonists to these shores, will sail up the St. Marys River to the site of the first settlement of Lord Baltimore's liegemen in the new world.

And when they do, the Ark will be commanded by a New Yorker and the Dove by a Filipino.

That it should be necessary to seek sailormen from outside the Chesapeake Bay country to pilot the vessels when the shores of the bay are almost literally swarming with expert mariners appears somewhat unusual. The explanation is that although the Chesapeake watermen know how to sail their own bugeyes, skipjacks and log canoes, they know nothing of the art of handling vessels built like the Ark and the Dove replicas.

The general superintendent of construction of the two replicas at their shipyard in Galesville was Dr. George W. Rappleyea. He is a New Yorker, and the Maryland Tercentenary Commission selected him to sail the vessels in the tercentenary fete because he knew more about the boats than anybody else.

He named a young Filipino living in Baltimore to sail the Dove, the smaller of the two replicas, explaining that the Filipino had handled similar boats in his native islands.

Dr. Rappleyea said the Ark is to be sailed through the medium of a device known to sailors of the seventeenth century as a haverstick, or whipstaff This contrivance is a vertical pole projecting through the rear deck, and is swung from side to side by the helmsman. The lower end moves on a greased plank and actuates the tiller, which in turn moves the rudder.

Ships to Be Propelled by 17th Century Device.

But the haverstick is not designed to do much turning of the vessel. This is accomplished by a small square sail at the end of the bowsprit, known as the blind sail. The helmsman shouts his orders to the crew, who furl or unfurl the blind sail, as the occasion requires. Dr. Rappleyea will have a crew of some 20 men on the Ark.

Dr. Rappleyea formerly was a cartographer for the State of North Carolina. He is the author of numerous books on navigation and is regarded as an authority on maritime history.

Stone Unveiled Marking Early Court Session

Harrisonburg, Va., June 14 (Spl.). A large granite marker, designating the spot where the 13 county justices in 1778 inaugurated the first Rockingham County Court in the home of Daniel Smith, Shenandoah Valley pioneer, and also one of the stopping places of George Washington in his Valley trips, was unveiled today by the Massanutten Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and presented to the county of Rockingham.

The seat of Rockingham's first court of justice is a mile north of Harrisonburg on the Valley pike and 50 yards from the beautiful home of George Liskey, which was originally owned by Daniel Smith, the pioneer, in which the 13 justices held their court. The event attracted a number of direct descendants of Daniel Smith, the wealthy landowner and pioneer. They included former State Senator George N. Conrad and family, Judge and Mrs. T. N. Haas, Trial Justice Hamilton Haas, Prof. Conrad Logan, Attorney Laird L. Conrad, of Harrisonburg; Mrs. H. McK. Smith and H. McK. Smith jr., of Staunton, and Mrs. Bleecker Luce, of Washington.

Senator Conrad acted as master of ceremonies. Mayor Ward Swank extended greetings from the city and county. Dr. John W. Wayland, Valley historian, presented the historical background. Miss Jane Logan and Miss Virginia Laird Conrad, direct descendants of Justice Daniel Smith, unveiled the marker. Mrs. Laird Conrad, regent of Massanutten Chapter, formally presented the memorial. It was accepted in behalf of the Virginia D. A. R. by Mrs. Charles B. Keesee, of Martinsville, State regent, and by Attorney John T. Harris, in behalf of Rockingham County.

Auto Men to Hear Marsh Safety Talk

Norfolk, Va., June 14 (Spl.). Burton W. Marsh, of Washington, director of the safety and traffic engineering department, American Automobile Association, will deliver the principal address at the twenty-first annual meeting of the Tidewater Automobile Association tomorrow night at the Warwick Hotel, Newport News. A large delegation from Norfolk is expected to attend.

Mr. Marsh is being brought here to help the association plan a safety program for Tidewater Virginia, to be launched in September, and to include display of safety posters, safety instructions to school teachers, and establishment of school patrol units.

The meeting is considered of importance due to the proposed expansion of the association, which will elect a number of directors from the Suffolk and peninsula areas. Heretofore, the organization has not been representative of the entire territory.

Richmond Bank Reports Is Filed by Receivers

Richmond, June 14 (Spl.).—Receivers of the American Bank & Trust Co. today filed an exhaustive report for the first complete year of receivership, which shows income transactions amounting to $396,031, and total expenses of $368,655.

Included in the expenses is $139,458 in interest on borrowed money, of which $23,042 was accrued before the bank closed. An additional $58,104 is legal expense authorized by court decree. Expenses directly charged to receivers' operations were $310,550, much of which is of a nonrecurring nature.

Four Young Bandits Loot Alabama Bank

Blountsville, Ala., June 14 (AP). Four young bandits today held up the Bank of Blountsville, looted approximately $500 and escaped. The robbers ordered Cashier P. O. Davis and three customers to lie on the floor while they took the money.

Birth Rate Slump Recorded In Hagerstown's Elite Area

Hagerstown, Md., June 14 (Spl.). Slump in the birth rate in Hagerstown in the past three years has been greatest among families who could afford babies, a survey completed by the Health Department discloses.

The North End residential section, where most of the finest homes in the city are located, had only 18 births in 1933, a 50 per cent decrease over the previous two years, while the three other sections of the city had 448 births.

In 1931, Hagerstown's birth rate was 18.3 per thousand; 1932, 15.8 per thousand, and last year 15 per thousand.

Only one section of the city, the central or downtown section, showed an increase in births last year over the previous two years. There were 144 births there in 1931, 130 in 1932, and 151 last year.

100 Women Make Tour of Gardens

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 14 (Spl.).—One hundred members of Farm Woman's Club of Berkeley County had a successful garden tour yesterday, visiting six gardens in the city and nearby county.

Gardens visited included those of Mrs. Harry M. Grove, Bolton Hall, and the W. T. Lupton home on Dry Run, where members not only enjoyed the flowers but were taken through the house by Mrs. Lupton, who has many antiques; the J. N. Thatcher homestead, where lunch was served by the Misses Thatcher; the Mrs. Franklin Wharton home and the garden of the Misses Showers, on Tuscarora. Native plantings were of particular interest in the latter.

T. D. Gray, landscape gardener, West Virginia University, Morgantown, conducted the tour and offered suggestions.

CWA Spends $129,224 For Hagerstown Work

Hagerstown, Md., June 14 (Spl.). There has been $129,224 spent on CWA projects in Hagerstown since last November, City Engineer Samuel Greenawalt announced.

Work is being pushed on the Hagerstown airport, where $29,000 has been spent. The enlarging and grading will be completed shortly, in time for the testing of the first of six big planes being constructed by the Kreider-Reisner Aircraft Corporation here.

Marker Dedicated At Revolutionary Soldier's Grave

Fredericksburg, Va., June 14 (Spl.).—The D. A. R. marker at the grave of Benjamin Alsop, Revolutionary soldier, was dedicated today.

The grave of Benjamin Alsop was located after several months of search in land records of the early period by Mrs. S. P. Powell, historian of the Washington-Lewis Chapter of D. A. R. and noted as an authority on local history.

Mrs. Powell's research revealed to her the lands owned by Alsop before and after the war and gave her all facts concerning the holdings and descendants of the Colonial patriot in this section. In the feature address of the dedication rites she gave a survey of Benjamin Alsop's connection with this section and his record as a soldier of Washington.

Truck Runs Wild, Hits Car, Building

Six Menaced at Falmouth, But No One Hurt.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 14 (Spl.).—An uncontrolled truck and trailer threatened serious injuries to half a dozen persons yesterday, but they crashed into a parked car, demolished the front porch of the Falmouth Postoffice, and overturned without injuring a man.

Owned by the Walter Packing Co., Inc., of Plant City, Fla., and operated by Oliver Howell, the truck was en route from Front Royal, where it had taken on a cargo of vinegar, jelly, and other products for Southern points. At the intersection of Warrenton road and U. S. Route No. 1 the van lurched out of control, plunged across the through Southern route, scraped the front of a car owned by E. S. Schooler, and collided with another car owned by Adrain Trustow holding four men.

Va. U. Faculty Appointments Are Announced

Dr. Ivey Lewis Succeeds Dr. James M. Page as Dean.

By Howard Turner.

Charlottesville, Va., June 14.—Dr. John Lloyd Newcomb, president of the University of Virginia, yesterday announced faculty appointments and promotions which were made by the board of visitors.

Dr. Ivey Foreman Lewis, professor of biology, was selected to succeed Dr. James Morris Page, whose resignation as dean of the university was accepted. Dr. Page, who has reached the retirement age of 70 years, has been in ill-health for several years.

Dr. George Oscar Ferguson, jr., professor of psychology, was appointed dean of the college of arts and sciences. He has been serving as assistant dean.

Dean of Women.

Dr. Roberta Lois Hollingsworth was elected acting dean of women, succeeding Mrs. Mary Jeffcott Hamblin, resigned. Dr. Hollingsworth is a native of Bel Air, Md., and a graduate of Goucher College and University of Virginia.

Three members of the medical faculty who received promotions are Dr. Dudley Crawford Smith, to be professor of dermatology; Dr. Fletcher Drummond Woodward, to be professor of diseases of the ear, nose and throat, and Dr. Vincent William Archer, to be professor of roentgenology. Each has been holding an associate professorship.

Four new members were elected to the faculty.

Dr. Gordon Thomas Whyburn, associate professor of mathematics in Stanford University, Palo Alto, Calif., was appointed professor of mathematics. Dr. Whyburn, a native of Texas, was formerly a member of the Johns Hopkins University faculty. He holds two degrees from the University of Texas and has studied in Vienna as a Guggenheim fellow.

Medical Professor.

Dr. Albert Eugene Casey, since 1927 assistant in experimental pathology in the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, New York, was elected to the faculty of the medical school as associate professor of pathology. Dr. Casey is a graduate of the George Washington University medical school.

Prof. George W. Eutsler, associate director of the university's extension department, was appointed associate professor of extension education. Prof. Eutsler holds degrees from the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia.

James Cecil Nelson, fellow of the Brookings Institution, Washington, was chosen acting assistant professor of commerce. Mr. Nelson, a graduate of Washington University and Ohio State University, has held a Du Pont fellowship at the University of Virginia.

Winchester Host To Sunday School

1,200 Delegates Report at Tri-State Meeting.

Winchester, Va., June 14 (Spl.).—Twelve hundred Sunday school workers, the majority from Virginia, but many from West Virginia and Maryland, were in attendance at today's session of the forty-second Virginia Sunday school convention, meeting at the First Baptist Church here.

Dean Luther A. Weigle, of the Yale University Divinity School, was speaker at today's session, his subject being "Christian Education for the Needs of Today." Other speakers included Dr. F. E. Brinstool on "Advancing Together," and Dr. Joy Elmer Morgan, of Washington, on "The Crisis in American Life."

The concluding session will be held tomorrow.

Fall Proves Fatal.

Westernport, Md., June 14 (Spl.). Henry Harrison Lantz 6, son of John Lantz, died at Allegany Hospital, Cumberland, yesterday from injury received in a fall in the yard of Hammond Street School. Infection followed fracture of the hip.

William Garth, Turfman, Dies In Albemarle

Charlottesville, Va., June 14 (Spl.).—William Garth, of Ingleside, noted turfman and sportsman, a familiar figure on the race circuits of this country and Canada, died today. The end came suddenly at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Bessie Wingfield, with whom he had spent last night.

A descendant of Thomas Garth, founder of the family in Albemarle County, where he became owner of a landed estate of 600 acres, Mr. Garth was born 70 years ago at Birdwood, home of his parents, J. Woods and Mary Edmonds Garth. He received his early education in the schools of the county, and for two sessions was a student at the University of Virginia, where he won fame as a football center. On the same eleven with Garth for two years was former State Senator N. B. Early, of Green County, now collector of internal revenue. The two were of powerful physique, their total weight being close to 500 pounds. Few teams in the South could withstand the rushes of the V formation of those days with Garth and Early opening up the way for the ball carrier.

In early life Mr. Garth engaged in agricultural pursuits, and later gave special attention to the breeding of thoroughbred horses. At various times in his career he trained horses for such widely-known sportsmen as J. S. Cosden and Paul Rainey, of New York, and Ral Parr. His own strings of horses were raced for years on the principal tracks in this country and Canada, with varying success. One of his best horses was T. S. Martin, named after the late United States Senator Thomas S. Martin, of Scottsville.

Mr. Garth has a number of thoroughbreds entered on Eastern race courses this season, but on account of failing health had not attended any of the meets, the strings being in charge of his brother, J. Woods Garth.

Mr. Garth married Miss Josie M. Blackwell, of Fauquier County, and for many years Ingleside has been a rendezvous for the sporting element of eastern cities, and the center of many local sporting and social events.

Six children survive: Mrs. J. P. Jones, of Inglecrest; Mrs. C. V. Wingfield, Mrs. Mary Garth Peyton, J. Woods Garth 2d, Hugh Nelson Garth and Miss Daisy Garth. Mr. Garth also leaves one brother, J. Woods Garth, well-known farmer and himself a raiser of thoroughbred horses, and a sister, Mrs. Edgar Michie.

The funeral will be held at the residence at 4 p. m. tomorrow. The service will be conducted by Dr. Robert F. Gibson, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, assisted by the Rev. W. Roy Mason. Burial will be in the burying ground at St. James Chapel, a mile beyond Owensville.

New Milk Statute Will Affect 2,300

Richmond, June 14 (AP).—The new Virginia milk regulating and licensing law will affect ultimately 2,000 or more producers, and upward of 300 distributors and producer distributors in Virginia, exclusive of those on the Richmond market, the milk board estimated today.

The commission, set up by the 1934 General Assembly, is hard at work, having practically disposed of its first case—that of the Roanoke milk shed. It has two more, those of Danville and Waynesboro, before it now. Next in line are those of Lynchburg, Harrisonburg and Norfolk.

The board expects sooner or later to have requests for work, regulation and licensing on virtually all the milk sheds in the State, with the possible exception of Richmond, where Federal regulations are in force.

Lightning Kills Boy Watching Aunt Milk

Deer Park, Md., June 14 (Spl.).—Walter Beckman, jr., 12, son of Walter Beckman, was killed by lightning near Swanton yesterday as he stood in the doorway of the barn watching his aunt, Mrs. Burzy Wilt, milk a cow.

He had gone to his aunt's home shortly before the storm. Mrs. Wilt was stunned. The barn did not catch fire.

Ban on Co-Eds May Fall

Ancient St. John's College Urged to Admit Women to Student Body by Former President of School.

Baltimore, June 14 (Spl.).—St. John's College, stronghold of masculine scholarship ever since it was established as King William's School in 1696, may succumb to feminine progress, if the advice of Dr. Enoch B. Garey, former president of the ancient Annapolis College, is heeded.

Replying to request of President-elect Amos W. W. Woodcock for suggestions as to how to improve the college, Dr. Carey has expressed the conviction that St. John's possesses the "ideal set-up" for a coed institution. He urged that St. John' admit girl students on an equal footing with boys.

In his commencement address last week, Col. Woodcock asked for constructive suggestions.

Dr. Garey said:

"To make St. John's a coeducational college is a corking plan at any time, but particularly so now. It would double the constituency from which the college can draw its student body, and the sooner it is done the better.

"Annapolis has a splendid social and historic atmosphere. It is the State capital, it is the home of the Naval Academy, and it is without a college to which Annapolis can send its daughters.

"In Anne Arundel County, there is a nucleus of a fine female student body. Many residents of Annapolis and Anne Arundel County can not afford to send their daughters to institutions of higher learning outside of Annapolis. St. John's can offer this class of young womanhood a splendid place to attend college."

Replying to critics who oppose coeducational instruction, Dr. Garey pointed out that boys and girls are born together, play together, go to kindergarten, grammar school and high school together, do post-graduate work together, marry each other and die together.

Dr. Garey was a classmate of President-elect Woodcock in the class of 1903 at St. John's. He was president of the institution from 1923 to 1929.

Long Service In School Told

A. F. Smith Principal at Lonaconing for 34 Years.

Lonaconing, Md., June 14 (Spl.).—The commencement exercises at Central High School tonight marked the completion of 40 years as a teacher in Allegany County by Arthur F. Smith and his thirty-fourth year as principal of the school.

In a brief address he referred to his long service.

Miss Gertrude Ann Darnley, who has just relinquished the position of editor-in-chief, of Orange and Black, the school publication, was the valedictorian, and Miss Beverly Mawson Wilson was salutatorian. Miss Darnley is a native of Coblentz-Litzel, Germany, who came to this country with her mother, Mrs. Marie Darnley, when she was a child of 4.

Miss Wilson, who took second honors, is the daughter of Gilbert Wilson, of Washington, but has resided with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Wilson, since the death of her mother.

Other honor students were Marie Louise Park, Evelyn Virginia Eisentrout, Teresa Marie Rigley, Elizabeth Helen Meyers, Leah Bernice Anderson, Helen Edith Marshall and Dorothy Bond Moore.

The address to the class was delivered by Dr. F. H. Paige, of Millersville State Teachers College, Millersville, Pa. Frank Scinta was the soloist and numbers were given by the orchestra and the chorus under the direction of Miss Annetta Yates. Diplomas were presented by Charles L. Kopp, county superintendent of schools.

Peery Must Miss Maryland's Fete

Has Previous Engagement in South Norfolk.

Richmond, June 14 (Spl.).—Gov. Peery will be unable to attend the Maryland tercentenary celebration at St. Marys Saturday because of an engagement to speak at the dedication of South Norfolk's three parks, Saturday afternoon.

The Governor said he regretted that his previous engagement is preventing his attendance at the Maryland celebration.

In return for courtesies during the Yorktown sesquitennial celebration in 1931, John Q. Rhodes, director of the Division of Motor Vehicles, has sent five Virginia State police to assist the Maryland force at the celebration. The men, detailed by Superintendent H. B. Nicholas, are Sergt. C. W. Carr, Officers H. W. Shortt, J. C. Aaron, Duval Fizer and W. L. Groth. They reported at the Maryland State Police substation at Waldorf today.

Brothers United By News Article Of Train Music

Bluefield, Va., June 14 (AP).—Oscar N. Edmunds, of Bluefield, who recently read a newspaper item about Ellis Edmunds, musical locomotive engineer, of Newport News, discovered that Ellis Edmunds is his half-brother, of whom he had not heard from for 42 years.

Oscar Edmunds immediately got in touch with his brother. The news story which led to the reunion told how Ellis Edmunds played tunes with the whistle of his locomotive. The brothers are natives of Wythe County.

Oscar is a retired railway employe.

Miner Wounds Wife and Self

Attempts to Kill Again in Hospital.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 14 (Spl.). Removed from a hospital, Harrison Martin, 49, a Monongah coal miner, was a prisoner in the Marion County Jail today after a second alleged attempt to kill his wife and an effort to kill himself by slashing his wrists and stabbing his chest with a butcher knife.

Martin is accused of trying to kill his estranged wife at her home in Monongah, where she operates a restaurant, by beating her with a mine auger. Then he attempted suicide. Officers found both semiconscious and took them to a Fairmount hospital. Last night, it is alleged, he sought to kill her in the hospital, but was restrained.

Memorial Rites Open Convention

Elkins, W. Va., June 14 (Spl.). Traveling salesmen from four States and the District of Columbia gathered here today for the thirty-eighth annual convention of the Grand Council of the United Commercial Travelers.

The jurisdiction embraces West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland, Kentucky and the District.

The grand chaplain, J. D. Stacy, of London, Ky., led a memorial service today. The presiding officer is Trap W. Martin, of Bluefield, grand counselor. A reception for the women delegates was given this evening by the Business and Professional Women's Club, and degrees were conferred by the grand council. Sessions will continue tomorrow.

Officer Awarded Damages.

Danville, Va., June 14 (Spl.). Traffic Officer W. A. Newell, who last January claimed he was struck by an automobile driven by Mrs. Ora Lee Smith, and thrown from his motorcycle, was awarded $475 damages in the corporation court today by a jury. He sued the car-owner, A. C. Jones, for $5,000.

92 Graduated By High School At Cumberland

Defense School To Graduate 88

Fort Monroe, Va., June 14 (Spl.). Forty-two officer graduates and 46 enlisted specialists will receive diplomas from Maj. Gen. William F. Hass, chief of Coast Artillery, in commencement exercises of the Coast Artillery School tomorrow morning.

Gen. Hass will be accorded full military honors with an escort of troops of the Fifty-first Coast Artillery and the Second Coast Artillery Band. After the school exercises he will review the harbor defense troops. During his stay here he will be the guest of Gen. Joseph P. Tracy, commanding the Third Coast Artillery District and commandant of the school.

Gen. Hass will make the commencement address. The invocation and benediction will be delivered by Chaplain Nathaniel A. Jones, of Fort Monroe.

Waynesboro Gets State Milk Control

Richmond, Va., June 14 (Spl.). The Virginia Milk Board, responding to an application, today decided to establish State control in the Waynesboro milk shed.

The producers, represented by T. O. Tench, asked that the board come in primarily to stabilize the retail price of 4 per cent milk at the present rate of 12 cents a quart.

The commission also has ordered an increase of 2 cents a quart in the retail price of class 1 milk in the Roanoke, Salem and Vinton area, effective June 18, with producers given an increase of 45 cents per 100 pounds in the price they receive from distributors.

Appeals Court Gives Opinions In April Cases

La Vale Water Company Is Winner in Dispute With Realty Firm.

Annapolis, Md., June 14.—Judges of the Maryland Court of Appeals today delivered opinions in a number of additional cases argued during the April term.

The dispute over water rights to the Braddock Spring in Alleghany County, was decided in favor of the La Vale Water Co., which distributes the supply for residents of La Vale, a suburb of Cumberland. Commenting upon the contention of the National Real Estate Development Co., which contested the water right, the court pointed out that the disputants had a remedy in an action at law, but not through ejectment proceedings, as filed.

The Allegany County Circuit Court was affirmed in the suit brought by Henry J. Heckler, against the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, but remanded the case to permit Heckler to amend his declaration if facts warranted. Heckler, a former employe in the railroad shops at Cumberland, suffered the loss of a leg in 1915. A settlement was effected by which Heckler received $3,900 and was promised lifetime employment by the road, but was furloughed in 1929.

The lower court sustained a demurrer to his suit for alleged breach of contract, and this resulted in the appeal. The Appellate Court's opinion, prepared by Judge William H. Adkins, held that the contract was unenforceable for lack of definiteness in that it failed to fix specifically either the type of work or pay.

In another decision, the court sustained an award of $3,500, damages made to Catherine Stern in a suit against the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey. The complainant was injured when a taxicab in which she was riding was struck by an automobile belonging to the oil company.

The court continued until October the appeal of State Senator Emory L. Coblentz, of Frederick County, former president of the Central Trust Co., operating a chain of banks in western Maryland counties, on the ground that the request to advance argument was received too late.

Virginia Beer Tax Exceeds Estimate

$476,096.18 Received Up to June 1, Data Shows.

Richmond, June 14 (AP).—With figures for another hot weather month yet to be compiled, Virginia beer consumption had, on June 17, already topped the estimate made at the special session of the General Assembly by $46,096.18. The Assembly had allowed $430,000 as probable receipts from the beer excise tax and beer license fees during the period ending July 1.

Today C. H. Morrissett, tax commissioner, said that the State had received $476,096.18 in taxes and license fees from legalization of beer to June 1.

During May the receipts from excise taxes alone were $62,339.49. For the period from September through May the receipts were $410,249.73. License fees during the same period brought the State $65,846.45.

New Maryland Bar Member, 25, Runs for State's Attorney

Snow Hill, Md., June 14 (Spl.). Although only 25 year old, Thomas F. Johnson, one of the most recent admittants to the Worcester County Bar, has thrown his hat into the ring for State's attorney. He is director and chairman of the Commercial National Bank of Snow Hill.

The son of a distinguished Worcester County family, Mr. Johnson studied at Staunton Military Academy, St. John's College, the University of Virginia, and the University of Maryland. He is a Democrat.

In addition to his law practice here and his position with the bank, he is secretary of the Worcester County Bar Association and secretary of the Men's Civic Club of Snow Hill. William H. Price, of Snow Hill, is also seeking the position, which is now held by Godfrey Child, of Pocomoke.

Franklin Upshur, an attorney of Snow Hill and Berlin, Md., will run for associate judge of the first judicial circuit. He is also a native of Snow Hill and studied law at the University of Maryland, Johns Hopkins University and Princeton University.

He began his career as assistant State's attorney in Baltimore, under Robert McLane. Others who have announced for this position include former State Senator James Crockett, of Pocomoke; Emerson C. Harrington, jr., of Cambridge, and T. Sangston Insley, of Cambridge.

Maryland's New 50-Cent Coin Will Be Distributed by Banks

Baltimore, June 14 (Spl.).—The Maryland tercentenary 50-cent coin, now being minted in Philadelphia, will be circulated through banks in every town in Maryland, it has been announced by the Maryland Tercentenary Commission.

It was the original plan to have the coins sent out from the Baltimore office of the Tercentenary Commission to all who wanted them. But from advance indications, the demand will be so great that it will be impracticable to do so.

Consequently, the plan of distribution through the banks has been adopted.

The new coin will resemble the shillings issued by Lord Baltimore in the middle of the seventeenth century, a few years after the Maryland colony was founded. These shillings are now highly prized by numismatists. The Maryland Historical Society and the Johns Hopkins University museum have a few, but few persons in Maryland know that the State ever had its own individual coinage.

The resemblance of the new coin to the one of more than 250 years ago will serve to make the Tercentenary coin more popular, in the belief of Tercentenary officials.

Cherry Tree Tale Fails to Protect Despard Youths

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 14 (Spl.). — The Washington cherry tree incident didn't work out for two Despard youths when they attempted to restage it here. It landed them in jail and brought them fines of $11.60 each in City Court.

James Durant, 20, and Joseph Thompson, 26, saw a little shade tree in Linden avenue yard as they were walking home. The sun was scorching so they went into the yard and broke off the tree. The irate owner called police, who rushed to the scene in a radio car and found the young men walking down the street using the tree for a shade.

When youths and tree were landed in court they said: "We can not tell a lie about this thing, and we will have to plead guilty."

U. of Va. Plans Two Sessions

Enrollment in Summer School Largest of Recent Years.

Charlottesville, Va., June 14 (Spl.). The largest enrollment of the past few years is expected for the opening of the University of Virginia summer school Tuesday. Registration days are tomorrow, Saturday and Monday.

Dr. Charles G. Maphis, dean of the summer session, said inquiries from prospective students and advance registrations were far more numerous than those last year.

The first term of six weeks ends July 28. The second term begins July 30 and ends September 1.

One reason advanced for the increased enrollment is the course offered to public school teachers of the State in connection with the three-year curriculum revision program of the State Department of Education.

It is intended to improve classroom instruction in the elementary and high schools by revising the material offered and teaching methods. The university has designed a number of special courses for this work.

Firemen's Group Names President

Midland, Md., June 14 (Spl.).—Walter W. Wittig, Frostburg, former member of the Maryland House of Delegates, was elected president of the Garrett-Allegany Volunteer Firemen's Association at the annual meeting at this week's carnival and homecoming of the Midland Fire Department.

W. Sutter, Oakland, was chosen vice president; James O. Small, Barton, treasurer, and James Stevenson, Lonaconing, secretary. The 1935 meeting will be at Cresaptown.

One of the features of the carnival was an elaborate parade last night. Companies from Meyersdale, Pa.; Piedmont and Ridgeley, W. Va., Friendsville, Grantsville, Cresaptown, LaVale, Frostburg, Barton, Lonaconing and Westport, Md., participated, besides the Barton and Cresaptown bands and the drum corps of Henry Hart Post, No. 1411, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Cumberland. The fete ends Saturday night. Ten West Virginia companies have been admitted as social members.

Eagles Lodges Elect Hartman Maryland Head

State Convention Group Holds Street Parade at Brunswick.

Other officers chosen were: Vice president, Donald H. Cook, Brunswick; secretary, W. S. Sudler, Highlandtown, Baltimore County; treasurer, C. Bernard Smith, Frederick; chaplain, William H. Baer, Cumberland; conductor, J. W. Lyons, Frostburg; inside guard, John H. Feahley, Highlandtown; outside guard, C. H. Balch, Frostburg; trustees, Ernest L. Main, Brunswick; Francis H. Schultz, Cumberland, and E. H. Miller, Hagerstown, and representative to the grand lodge meeting at Cincinnati, James Birch, Highlandtown. Frostburg was selected for next year's convention.

Cumberland Aerie was awarded a silver cup for obtaining the most new members in the past year, 250. Ernest L. Main, president of the Brunswick Aerie, won a gold watch awarded to the individual securing the largest number of new members, 24.

An Eagles' street parade was witnessed by about 4,000 spectators. Delegations from Frederick, Baltimore, Highlandtown, Hagerstown, Cumberland, Frostburg, Lonaconing and Kitzmiller marched. Boy Scouts, school children, the Rotary Club, Girl Scouts, the ladies' auxiliary and nine bands and drum corps were in line. A crab feast and dance followed.

Addresses were made by Representative David J. Lewis and Charles Guenther, of Kansas City, grand lodge representative. Fifteen new members were initiated by a degree team composed of W. H. Baer, Cumberland; Howard W. Albaugh and Alvie C. Myers, Frederick; C. B. Smith and B. B. Bassett, Brunswick.

The officers were installed today.

Brethern Meeting Will Open Monday

200 Expected to Gather at West Union.

West Union, W. Va., June 14 (Spl.).—A State educational convention of the United Brethren denomination will open Monday in the local church. It will be combined with a leadership training school and will continue for five days.

Bishop G. D. Batdorf, of Harrisburg, Pa., head of the Eastern area of the church, will be the chief speaker. Other prominent leaders of the church who will appear on the program include the Rev. J. Gordon Howard, of Dayton, Ohio, denominational director of young people's work; J. H. Ruebush, of Dayton, Va., dean of the conservatory of music at Shenendoah College; Dr. S. G. Ziegler, of Dayton, Ohio, secretary of the general foreign missionary board; the Rev. W. G Ware, of Belington, superintendent of the East District of West Virginia, and the Rev. F. H. Capehart, of Parkersburg, superintendent of the West District.

Some 200 delegates and visitors are expected to attend. Alden Spencer is head of the local committee in charge of arrangements.

Church Synod Says New Deal Is Too Mild

Reformed Group Adopts Resolution Hitting Capitalism.

Frederick, Md., June 14 (Spl.).—An address by the Rev. Oswin Frantz, Lancaster, the appointment of trustees and directors of educational institutions, and adoption of resolutions concluded the sixty-second annual meeting of the Potomac Synod of the Reformed Church today, in session at Hood College since Monday.

A resolution offered yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Rockel, Altoona, Pa., denouncing capitalism and declaring that President Roosevelt did not go far enough in his "New Deal" was adopted.

The synod, embracing Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina, Southern Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia, voted to meet next year at Hood College, in the week of June 10.

The following appointments were announced:

Board of visitors of Theological Seminary, to serve for four years—The Rev. James M. Runkle, the Rev. Irwin W. Hendricks.

Directors of Hood College, to serve three years—The Rev. Ernest W. Brindle, Arendtsville, Pa.; the Rev. Harry N. Bassler, Westminster; to serve two years, the Rev. Ralph E. Hartman, Frederick.

Board of beneficiary education, to serve three years—The Rev. J. Riley Bergey, the Rev. Hobart D. McKeehan, the Rev. Lee A. Peeler.

Directors of Hoffman Orphanage, to serve six years—The Rev. Marsby J. Roth, John L. Gerber.

Trustees of "Homewood," to serve three years—Harry Brindle, Frank Forthman; to serve one year, David M. Wilmer.

Catawba College trustees—John F. Carpenter, Clarence Clapp, J. P. Linn, the Rev. J. C. Leonard, J. Franklin Meyer, J. O. Moose.

Roll clerk—William J. Lowe.

Coaches Address Kiwanis Meeting

Fredericksburg Group Hears of Boys' Work.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 14 (Spl.).—Two former Fredericksburg High School athletic coaches and the present mentor addressed the weekly meeting of the Fredericksburg Kiwanis Club last night.

Milton Hollingsworth, director of Yellow Jacket athletic destines for the past two years, but not an applicant for reelection, and Bruce Neill, who coached here for several years before the coming of Mr. Hollingsworth, gave brief addresses. Mr. Neill during his time here was secretary of the Kiwanis Club. John Fenlon, George Washington University four-star letterman, who will take charge of local high school athletics in the fall, gave an outline of his plans as director of the Kiwanis boys' work program this summer.

Mrs. Mary B. Michael Buried at Martinsburg

Martinsburg, W. Va., June 14 (Spl.).—Mrs. Mary B. Michael, 83, widow of George Michael, of Richmond, Va., who died at her home in Richmond Tuesday morning was buried here today.

Mrs. Michael and her husband conducted a store here many years ago. Later the family removed to Washington. Two years ago Mrs. Michael went to Richmond, where she has made her home with her son Frederick, one of twins. The other son, P. Louis Michael, resides in Grand Rapids, Mich. Both sons accompanied the body to Martinsburg for burial.

Charlottesville Bank Man Asks Bankruptcy

Richmond, June 14 (Spl.).—Jesse Porter Donnally, banker of the Peoples National Bank, Charlottesville, whose home is in Louisa, today filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court here, listing liabilities at $64,084.98 and assets at $430.

Machine Kills Miner.

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 14 (Spl.). When the cutting machine he was pushing slipped back a steep grade and ran upon him, Luther Mayle, 56, was crushed to death today in the Wendel Coal Mine at Wendel. Mayle leaves his widow and eight children.

Without Benefit Of Congress.

Whether or not the Federal Emergency Relief Administration actually plans to foster State operation of factories to supply the unemployed with food and clothing is far from clear. In a formal statement the FERA denies that it has been or will be engaged in manufacturing. Yet that agency has instructed State relief administrators to encourage the use of idle factories by local governments for the production of goods needed by unemployed families. Since all of the State relief organizations are using Federal money, in whole or in part, the FERA becomes indirectly, if not directly, responsible for these projects.

Projects of this sort are not as important in themselves as is the manner in which they have been promoted. Congress has at no time specifically authorized the use of Federal money for the operation of State factories. In one such project, defined as a "social experiment" much opposition to the idea has developed. So it would be a flagrant infringement of the executive prerogative if it should develop that an emergency organization set up to administer relief is on its own responsibility formulating new National policies with the most far-reaching social and economic implications.

Congress has not only a right but a duty to ascertain whether money appropriated simply for relief is being used to promote forms of government enterprise which may be making recovery of private industry more difficult. This duty is accentuated by the legislation, now before the Senate, which would appropriate $1,178,543,000, and give the President access to the RFC billions to spend at his discretion, for relief. Under this broad grant of power a Nation-wide system of Government factories might quite conceivably be developed without the consent of Congress.

Unfortunately there is only too good reason to suspect that appropriations asked by this Administration for such generalities as "relief" may later be utilized for purposes completely unanticipated by Congress or the electorate. Procedure of this type is the very negation of democracy. Cogent arguments might be presented against the present tendency of the Government to extend its business and industrial activities. But when such policies are formulated by irresponsible officials without consideration by legislators responsible to the electorate, their gravity is multiplied tenfold.

It is the imperative duty of this Congress to investigate these State factory rumors, regardless of adjournment plans, and to make certain that future relief funds can not be craftily used to foster enterprises of that sort without due consideration of their implications.

On Rerouting Car Lines.

Only one useful end seems to have been served by the proposal of the Capital Traction Co. that its Connecticut avenue car line be rerouted over Taft Bridge. The controversy resulting from this suggestion has emphasized the urgent need for a general rerouting of street cars. If the company would give attention to this acute problem, instead of trying to create another traffic bottleneck, substantial improvement of Washington's transportation system might be effected.

The Public Utilities Commission quite properly denied the petition to lay street car tracks on Taft Bridge. That span is not architecturally designed for trolley cars. Both the bridge and the southern approach to it are too narrow for such usage. Moreover, the new Calvert Street Bridge is to be constructed especially to accommodate traction lines. Since the arguments against shifting the functions of these two bridges are so obvious, the commission did well to act promptly, before interference from Capitol Hill.

It is difficult to understand why the traction company made an issue of the proposed rerouting over Taft Bridge. Numerous problems of a more practical nature are pressing for attention; for example, the absurd routing of street cars against the stream of motor traffic on Dupont Circle. Hazards of this sort in a city the size of Washington are astounding.

A thorough realignment of our transportation system is long overdue. Existing street car lines were developed by two competing companies. They are not unified as a single system ought to be, even though a merger has brought them under the same management. Some parts of the city have too many lines; others are inadequately served. In other words, the existing system is a result of haphazard growth and rivalry. No scientific plan of routing has been consummated since Washington became a metropolis.

Fortunately, the Public Utilities Commission is taking the initiative in bringing about a new deal for street car and bus riders. Since January a group of traffic experts under the direction of John Beeler has been making a detailed study of the city's transportation needs. A report showing how the present facilities can best be utilized and what additional facilities are needed is expected within a month. Hearings will then be conducted by the commission, and it is expected that a new routing plan will be put into effect. Many thousands who ride the street cars daily are looking forward to these improvements, which the traction company has failed to inaugurate of its own accord.

Prompt and Constructive.

Just over a week ago we took occasion in these columns to commend as "admirable" the agreement for collective bargaining reached between the Sinclair oil companies and the oil workers' union affiliated with the A. F. of L. Pointing out that this new accord in a field heretofore dominated by company unionism "has more than a hint of applicability for the steel industry," we praised the step as furthering that "developing system of industrial self-government, based on the self-evident truth that good faith and fair dealing are in the interest of both industrial partners."

Yesterday, under the title of "Labor's Worst Enemy" we undertook to point out that overreaching tactics on the part of the local carpenters' union has resulted in something more than an attempt to reestablish the open shop on Government building contracts in Washington. It has also tended to weaken the cause of trade-unionism in general at a very critical period of its evolution. While the issue of organization of steel workers hangs in the balance; while those opposed to the A. F. of L. are seeking to safeguard company unions subject to managerial dictation, a local union, in the very shadow of the Capitol, under the eyes of Congress, has been giving "an object lesson of the intolerable abuses to which the closed shop may be subject." Such short-sighted tactics, we asserted, are the "worst enemy" of organized labor.

None familiar with the position taken by The Post on the basic social merits and advantages of trade unionism could interpret these strictures, though severe, as hostile to the cause of organized labor. On the contrary, it is precisely because no friend of the cause of labor should be silent when its spokesmen blunder that we spoke out sharply. Those who would destroy trade-unionism tend to keep amused silence when it makes serious mistakes. It is the sympathetic attitude which inspires criticism of destructive methods.

For that reason it is doubly pleasurable today to be able to commend both the termination of the ill-judged incipient violence in the local labor dispute, and the prompt and constructive move toward settlement by arbitration which the Washington Building Trades Council has unanimously voted The absence of violence and the orderly picketing pays tribute to the underlying good sense and strength of organization in the carpenters' union. The proposal to arbitrate indicates a withdrawal from that "hold-up" attitude to which advocates of the open shop always point first when they wish to discredit trade-unionism.

The American Federation of Labor is today in a singularly important and delicate period of its history. Just because it is winning converts in tremendous numbers, its leaders and membership are under exceptional obligation to adopt tactics which are in the interests of the community as a whole. If its constituent unions fail to follow policies of cooperation and restraint, they will bungle the greatest opportunity in the history of American labor movements.

Here in Washington, among the building trades, there has been such bungling. Here in Washington, on which the eyes of the country focus, such mistakes can be most disastrous. It is indeed fortunate that the move to clear away the local dispute has come so promptly from local labor leadership. The contractors, who better than any other group know the merits of truly cooperative trade-unionism, should be the first to welcome this indication that the building trades desire a constructive, reasonable, and socially-desirable settlement. Such a settlement, of course, would have the same nation-wide influence for labor's benefit that past mistakes in this focal American city have exerted adversely.

The Balance Sheet.

On the basis of estimates furnished by the Department of Commerce, George N. Peek, special adviser to the President on foreign trade, has published some very interesting estimates purporting to show that during the last 38 years we failed by $22,645,000,000 to balance our international accounts.

It may be objected that international accounts are never out of balance, because every purchase or sale of goods and services between countries has to be paid for or covered in some fashion. Hence, since our sales abroad have exceeded our purchases from foreigners to the extent of more than $22,000,000,000, it follows that the rest of the world must have bought from us on credit, the difference being reflected in an increase of foreign indebtedness to the United States. It is estimated that $14,398,000,000 of this debt consists of foreign securities and direct investments by Americans in foreign enterprises. War loans are placed at $10,304,000,000, making a total of about $24,700,000,000, from which should be deducted investments made by foreigners in the United States.

Mr. Peek concludes on the basis of these findings that our foreign trade is seriously unbalanced; but if so, we are without standards by which to determine what permanent adjustments are essential. The $10,000,000,000 of war debts may have to be written off as a loss in large part, and it can be taken for granted that there will be no repetition of this kind of financing in the near future. Certainly it would not be contended that the United States ought to cut her sales of goods and services to amounts just equal to the value of the goods and services we are prepared to buy. At the same time, losses incurred in connection with the $14,000,000,000 foreign debt which is non-political in character indicate that this country has dissipated its resources in the past by selling much more than it bought and lending the difference.

Mr. Peek's estimates are useful as a basis for further study, but they throw little light on the immediate problem of how to expand the exchange of goods and services. A record of past events is a guide to future conduct, only as it may serve as a warning against repetition of past errors; as it may teach us, for instance, that inevitable difficulties confront the creditor nation which seeks to sell abroad more than it will buy.

In Maryland.

Not since the Blair Lee and John Walter Smith factions of the Democratic party fought it out 18 years ago has the political pot in Maryland sizzled and boiled as now. It is a new experience for Albert Cabell Ritchie to find opponents springing up in every direction to challenge his claim to what has come to be regarded as a perpetual title as Governor of Maryland. For 14 years he has ruled the State, wisely and well many believe. So great was his popularity that in the last three races for the governorship, Mr. Ritchie had no opposition, worth mentioning, either within his own party or from the Republicans.

But times are changing and additional bids for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination are being made this year with a rapidity to dazzle even the most skeptical of Ritchie genius. First it was Dr. Conley from Frederick town; then the ambitious Mayor of Baltimore, Howard W. Jackson, and now George L. Radcliffe, Baltimore financer and close friend of President Roosevelt.

It is too early to say whether these candidacies spring from a general desire of the people of Maryland for a change of administration or from political leaders who covet Ritchie's leadership and the assets of executive office. Whatever the inspiration the people in the end will make the choice and the State as a whole can not suffer if its affairs are frankly and candidly discussed by the candidates.

So far Mr. Radcliffe's principal support, aside from the backing of Senator Tydings, comes from political leaders on the Eastern Shore, of which he is a native. While the people of that section may under any circumstances feel favorably inclined to one of their own, it is well known the Eastern Shore is hostile to Gov. Ritchie because of the courageous and determined manner in which he sought to bring the Princess Anne lynchers to book. We hope that Gov. Ritchie will not be penalized because of that action.

For another reason, also, the Maryland campaign takes on National significance. Suspicion is growing on Capitol Hill that President Roosevelt is undertaking to punish those who opposed his nomination in 1932 as well as to reward those who bolted traditional moorings to assist his election.

The close friendship between the President and Mr. Radcliffe; Mr. Roosevelt's obvious desire to get Gov. White to retire from the Ohio Senatorial race and the White House's advocacy of Senator Johnson's reelection in California constitute the basis for the suspicion. We do not know whether the suspicion is well founded, but if President Roosevelt is interfering in local party contests he is on a dangerous and perilous course, as other White House occupants have before this learned to their sorrow.

Racing In Washington.

Horse racing is an excellent sport, if properly conducted, but there seems to be no reason for its reintroduction in the District of Columbia. Washington is surrounded by a number of tracks where all who enjoy the excitement of the spectacle may indulge their fancy—and lose their money. Hence, it is difficult to understand why powerful groups in Congress should favor racing in the narrow confines of the Capital City against the wishes of so many of its citizens.

Strange as it may seem, the junior Senator from wide-open Nevada, Patrick A. McCarran, has been a most emphatic opponent of the bill in the Senate. But even he has decided to vote for the bill "because it will mean increased employment." A great deal of the enthusiasm which has been aroused on the Hill for this measure seems to spring from economic considerations. But Representative Loring Black, author of the bill, admits that "certainly the Washington and Maryland tracks will not run at the same time, because that would not be practical from any standpoint." Washington's gain, from the economic viewpoint, doubtless would be Maryland's loss. Congress does not often follow such queer logic in legislating for the District.

The District Commissioners oppose the racing bill because they believe that a majority of the people disapprove it. Public hearings conducted by the Commissioners brought out widespread and emphatic hostility to racing here. In matters of this kind Congress ought to weigh carefully the advice of the Commissioners, and certainly it should respect the wishes of local residents. When these factors are measured against the flimsy economic arguments in favor of the bill its defeat is fully justified.

"Who's That Knocking at My Door?"

Letters to the Editor

A Rocket From Mars.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Are the steel rails of Washington trolley cars owned by the trolley companies? Or are they owned by the selfish, idiotic human beings who park their machines on the rails? Often one human in a machine will hold up a trolley car full of honest people trying to get to their jobs and appointments on time. Is it right for a trolley car full of people to be held up for the selfishness of one? If I were the operator of a trolley car, I would smash the next automobile that got in my way, and find out who owns the steel rails on the streets in this city. M. A. R. S.

"Plenty for All."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With the fine idealism of President Roosevelt all are in hearty sympathy. All admire his ability and courage and yearn for his success. But with many of the impractical measures urged by his advisers on a reluctant Congress we must disagree.

Shivering children starve, and millions of men are idle. Why?

Gunmen lurk in the shadows of churches, crime increases, and we graduate thousands from schools, but they find the doors of opportunity to work barred against them by monopolists and land speculators who deny them access to the God-given opportunity to work which land everywhere offers.

There will be no need for doles or bread lines and no idle men when we break down these barriers to the land by taxing land speculators, monopoly and privilege and abolish all taxes on homes, farms, industry and capital. Instead of monopoly, giving a few more wealth than they can use and leaving millions penniless, this tax policy would insure a fair distribution of the wealth produced and mean plenty for all.

A Doubting Democrat.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have been reading so much about the President's brain trust and what they are not doing I am really disgusted with the Administration. There is no man that watches the trend of affairs more than myself, for I hate this depression and am a good Democrat. Incompetence in every department, both State and National, is the main reason this depression hangs on.

There is a question in my mind: Can this, the richest Nation in natural resources on this earth, stand much more experimenting? If the President would kick that brain trust out, use some common sense and get the facts as they are, we would get somewhere. As it is we may as a Nation last another year. I doubt it.

Birthday Congratulations.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I want to extend to you most cordial congratulations on the occasion of the first anniversary of the new management of The Post. You have every reason to feel deeply gratified at the progress that has been made and at the service which you are rendering both to this community and to the country at large.

Breakfast Preferences.

To the Editor of the Post—Sir: Several weeks ago, when both of our wives were out of the city, I spent a lot of time with Richard Anthony, secretary to Senator Herbert. Every morning before he would let me dig into the shredded wheat, he would insist that I read "The Post-Impressionist," which he contended was the best column he had ever seen.

I recognize that he is somewhat of an expert on such things and that his advice on such a matter is extraordinarily good. Accordingly, I got into the habit of reading the column, although I frankly admit that I still prefer breakfast first. Moreover, I talked with Mr. Anthony again about "The Post-Impressionist" only yesterday, and he still insists that it is better than any of its contemporaries.

A Farmer on 'Regimentation.'

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I realize that the prestige of Administration backing will probably secure his confirmation, but it will help us keep our record clean if you will furnish us this opportunity to let it be known there is bitter opposition to Dr. Tugwell. I represent the better class of family-size farm homes. We breathe and see just like our colonial fathers did, and will not be "regimented" out of either our faith or our property.

Before the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry warms up a snake in our bosom, it should hear how farm organizations regard this false prophet. What the Nation needs now more than anything is the very opposite to Tugwell's creed, to wit, that each and every farm home is the individual heart of America and must be respected and protected at any cost.

We must not forget, however, that this New York City professor has been our farmer's most outspoken advocate of "wine, women and song." His mind is too versatile, too elusive for agriculture.

We regret the bitter feelings, born of threats to our dearest and loveliest land, the hills.

"A Master of Politics."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The recent nomination of David A. Reed, for United States Senator, in the Pennsylvania primary is a cause for gratification principally because Mr. Reed, in a broad view, must be regarded as the ablest man in the Senate. Reed is a younger man than Carter Glass.

In the quota of 32 Senators whose terms expire with the present Congress, the country could better afford to have 31 seats changed than that Reed should be retired from the Senate in the present state of our public affairs.

David A. Reed is the one public man with whom I have found myself in ready agreement since he came with his credentials of appointment to the Senate in 1922. Reed has the American tradition. He has the right background. He has a better comprehension of the political principles of Thomas Jefferson than any of the men who are presently candidates to stay in the Senate. He took time to take the measure of every man in that body and when he spoke the Senate heard the voice of a master of politics. SAMUEL RUSSELL.

Pretty Soft for Mr. Fletcher.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: My idea of an easy job is the one Mr. Fletcher has. All he has to do is to go around the United States and explain to people that "Republican" means: "Defender of the Republic." When the people who are now getting hand-outs from the Democrats wake up to the fact that they are selling their bill of rights for a Government check, the checks will not look so good.

Mr. Fletcher will not have to apologize for the Republican party. He will not even have to damn the Democrats. All he will have to say will be: "Do you want to be Americans? This way for Americans." And even the South will see that it is no longer a disgrace, but a privilege, to be a Republican, "Republican" being now merely another name for "American."

Emerson on Peace.

It is noted that the reassembling of the disarmament conference at Geneva occurred on the 131st birthday of Ralph W. Emerson, and extracts are printed by admirers of Emerson from an address delivered by him in Boston in 1838 before the American Peace Society. His subject was "War."

Emerson's war address of a century ago reads quite up to date. The status of the subject is just about where it was in the '30s of the nineteenth century. Reviewing Emerson's speech one can not credit him with a genius for prophecy, since the American philosopher predicted boldly that "war is on its last legs." As it turned out the world had not seen anything yet. The mechanics of war have made a greater advance since 1838 than in all preceding centuries of human history.

Emerson asked, however, "Can not peace be, as well as war?" He foresaw that "a universal peace is as sure as the prevalence of civilization over barbarism, of liberal governments over feudal forms. The question for us only is how soon." It was an age of optimism, which held the stage until the second decade of the present century. Civilization was a word to appeal to. Other things might be questioned, but not that barbarism was out and civilization in to stay. The term has no such standing today. Emerson would be surprised to find that a century later civilization was itself on trial, if not on the rocks, that many persons doubted whether it could survive.

In his address the early New England prophet affirmed that it is ideas that "are parents of men and things; there never was anything that did not proceed from thought." Plato's doctrine of ideas largely prevailed a century ago. On the subject of war the speaker remarked that "it is really a thought that built this portentous war establishment, and a thought shall also melt it away. . . . War and peace thus resolve themselves into a mercury of the state of cultivation." He foresaw as William James developed later that "the manhood that has been in war must be transferred to the cause of peace, before war can lose its charm, and peace be venerable to men. The cause of peace is not the cause of cowardice. If peace is to be maintained it must be by brave men, who have come up to the same height as the hero; namely, the will to carry their life in their hand, stake it at any instant for their principle, but who have gone one step beyond the hero and will not seek another man's life."

What Emerson termed civilization or cultivation on trial a century later is much as he described it, but whether humanity is capable of the sacrifices and will required of it is an open question. The common expectation is of war.

Dear Sir:

I beg to suggest that your newspaper needs a new dictionary. The one you've got has mixed up the words "recovery" and "adjustment." When a man, having his arm wounded, "recovers," that means his arm is as good as it was before he was wounded. When, however, he "adjusts" himself to the damaged arm, that means he merely makes the best of a bad job. Which is not half so pleasant!

Dear Sir:

I see that a Hollywood screen star of great popularity has been given a special police guard because she fears that she may be kidnaped. She says she fears kidnaping because, in her own frank words, "a young man, a stranger to me, spoke to me at luncheon." I don't know what this country is coming to when a civilized city like Hollywood will permit the existence of conditions under which it is possible for an utter stranger to frighten a screen actress by speaking to her without even a letter of introduction.

Dear Sir:

Born and bred in this our Capital City, I wish to protest against the frequent articles which appear in The Washington Post inferentially criticizing the alleged heat of the District climate during certain summer months. Why are these things allowed even under the thin disguise of "news?" In the first place, I firmly deny their correctness. In the second place, I strongly decry their effect.

It is only outsiders who suffer from Washington warmth. The natives grow used to it young. If those intruders object to it, why do they come here—or, coming, remain? Why don't they take a sea voyage? There is such a thing as the Freedom of the Seas. Or why do these too easily affected people not go to the Alps or to Maine? Outside of Congress, Washington has never been a paradise for grumblers.

These weather articles of yours can serve no good purpose. If they were true they would be unable to lower the thermometer one degree. Being false, they only keep money out of the city by directly repelling strangers.

OLD WASHINGTONIAN.

Dear Sir:

A quaint little dispatch from Chicago to your paper recently told how "those big floppy hats, currently a la mode" were lately "put to a practical use when three debutantes and their escorts" used such headgear to "bail out a sinking motorboat long enough to save their lives." I am now able to supplement this interesting piece of news by an incident which occurred the other day at my own house—an incident, too, which provides another example of the ever astounding, yet always present, intelligence of the so-called "lower animals."

My wife and I have had for some time a sprightly pet of whom we are extremely fond. This is "Nap"—short for "Napoleon," a name bestowed in honor of the first Emperor of the French—who came to us from an organ grinder in reduced circumstances owing to the depression. Nap is, in short, a monkey—though whether of the New World Cebidae type or of the Old World Cercopithecidae I have not yet been able definitely to determine.

He is harmless, very affectionate and never malicious; and as he is extremely careful of other people's belongings—rarely upsetting a vase or destroying a soup tureen—we allow him the run of the house. It is an appreciated privilege which he never abuses.

The other day Nap—or Nappie, as we sometimes dub him—did, however, happen to break a wine-glass in his haste to consume its contents of lemonade before the maids cleared the dinner-table. He cut his foot, and my wife tenderly cared for him, housing him in her own room.

The poor invalid was most grateful. He amused himself for hours by trying on Mrs. Ward's hats, his favorite among them being one of those very "floppy" affairs mentioned in your dispatch from Chicago.

For a moment my wife left him, to join me in the garden below. Doubtless he became lonely. At all events, we were soon startled by a cry. Looking up, we saw Nappie at the window-sill above. He had my wife's hat on and, owing to his wound, was losing his grip of the sill. In fact, there was no doubt about it; he was falling!

We feared the worst. But we underestimated the resourcefulness of our pretty pet. He had not fallen five feet before he removed that wide hat and held it high above his head in both extended hands. Immediately it acted as a parachute. The fall was checked, and you may imagine our joy when clever Nappie descended at our feet as gently as a snowflake flutters to the ground!

The Primary Fights.

BARGERON.

THE developing dissension in Senate Democratic ranks may and probably does explain why the Administration has decided that, after all, it had better go into some of the forthcoming Democratic primary fights, notwithstanding the statements some weeks ago that it would keep out. At any rate it seems to be increasingly interested in these fights.

Within the past few days it has intervened in Ohio with a view to heading former Gov. Vic Donahey off in his aspiration for the Senate. To this end it has offered Gov. White his choice of the available Federal posts if he would withdraw from the senatorial race. The Administration choice apparently is Congressman West who is understood to have filed yesterday, and it wants him to have a clear field against Donahey.

White was down here over the week-end and was offered a place on the new securities commission or his choice of three ministerial posts. At this writing he intends to stick in the senatorial race notwithstanding the fact that the word of the Administration's efforts circulated through Ohio will do him no good.

• • • •

White, of course, was against Roosevelt at Chicago, along with Newton Baker and former Gov. Cox, but the facts point to the Administration's desire to head off Donahey rather than to any feeling against White. As a matter of fact, there are reports that efforts were made to get Cox to make the race.

Donahay was not only an F. R. B. C. man but in the announcement of his entrance into the Senatorial fight he gave the impression that he did not swallow the New Deal, not all of it anyway. He said plainly, in fact, that if he came here his vote would be his own. Dissatisfaction is developing among too many other Democrats for the Administration to relish any more independent minds.

• • • •

I don't know what the Administration's reasoning is in the Texas primary, but the observers agree that when the Texas editors were here some time ago Mr. Roosevelt showed more favor to Senator Tom Connally than to his opponent, Joe Bailey. I believe the story is that he put his arms around his "friend Tom" while he just said hello to "Joe"—maybe he said "Mr. Bailey." If he did say "Mr. Bailey," then the difference is pronounced because it doesn't take much for Mr. Roosevelt to call one by his first name.

Anyway the editors got the impression that Mr. Roosevelt and his friend Tom were mighty close; that Tom, as a matter of fact, is one of the stalwarts up here.

• • • •

It is over in Maryland that the Administration's interest seems rather far-fetched and where it is liable to get its hands burned as it did in New York. After all, this is a State race; no "support of the President" is involved.

However, a close friend of the President, George Radcliffe, at present the public works administrator, has been trotted out to oppose Gov. Ritchie. It is one of those cases where the Administration may have had nothing to do with the candidacy, although there are some who think otherwise. And anyhow Radcliffe intends to run as the Roosevelt candidate. If he is permitted to do this it will be pretty raw. The only grounds in the world on which the Administration can oppose Ritchie, or even dislike him, is that of vindictiveness. It is not a case of his running for the Senate, where he might oppose—very likely would, some of the New Deal policies.

• • • •

There is still another angle which would not leave the Administration in good light if it should permit itself to become tied up with the Radcliffe candidacy. The hope of Ritchie's opponents to defeat him this year centers in the Eastern Shore opposition which he aroused by trying to prosecute lynchers. Radcliffe, as a matter of fact, has been put forward by the Eastern Shore. The Administration, it would seem, should not want to encourage such opposition as that. In fact, I can't understand why any responsible citizen, such as I understand Dr. Radcliffe to be, should take such a position. One is forced to ask just what kind of a friend of the President he is. It must be that he is mostly a friend of Dr. Radcliffe.

56 White Plague Cases Are Found

Chamber of Horrors Traces Fascisti Rise

By Helen Hull Jacobs.

I HAVE seen only one shocking spectacle in Italy. Perhaps I had better explain that when I made this remark to an Italian friend of mine, she vouchsafed a long and slightly outraged explanation of the thing that had shocked me. It was, at the time, the most heralded event in Rome—the Fascisti Revolution Exposition.

I shall presently set forth a description of the exposition which will more or less explain why it might shock a great many people of naturally pacific natures, where war and its side play are concerned.

Having become accustomed to the recent journalistic reproductions of World War photographs, I was not surprised to find, beyond the ultramodern entrance of the exposition building, exhibits and a panorama of the war of 1914-1918. The photographs in the exhibit were far less harrowing than those one can find in hitherto unpublished pamphlets and the recent press, but the official documents that passed between the active nations testify to a depth of depression and havoc undepictable by the lens of a camera.

Proceeding from this to the succeeding rooms, the carnage, I observed, was interpreted in the language of guns, sabers, knives, explosives and Il Popolo Italiano.

This, my friend agreed with me, was not a pleasant sight. The exhibits that followed these, she claimed, were epochal and eloquent.

Guard Shows Fascination For Implements of Horror.

IT was quite obvious that the Italian guards, forming and reforming their lines in the exposition rooms and corridors, gave only bland attention to the pictorial evidence of the fate that might await them. But one guard, detached from the line, wandered from case to case, inspecting the inscriptions on the blood-stained shirts of former soldier comrades. He inspected with particular interest the large, significant hole in the fabric of a military cap. From the hole, a radiating ring of crimson had dried, 17 years ago, to a rusty brown. I watched, with an acute revulsion, what I considered the most significant exhibit in the World War rooms—this young boy fascinated by the instruments, results and photographs of death.

The Fascisti Revolution Exposition does not permit one to overlook the more sordid details of the war. The spectator moves with tentative calmness into the first room. Against the shell of his self-possession a hideous spectacle is projected — trench hand-to-hand combat photographed and enlarged to monopolize two walls of the room. He stands and gapes, his self-possession driven deep down to the pit of his stomach. Perhaps he sees himself in the line of strong, desperately alert backs.

There is, on another wall, a magnified map of Serbia—Serajevo conspicuously alone on the surface to remind the visitor that war often springs from small seed.

Exhibit Traces Fascisti Ascension to Power.

THE point on which my friend objected to my attitude regarding the exposition was that I had missed the significance of the rooms 1920 and 1921. I hadn't missed it. Perhaps I had misjudged the Italian temperament. These rooms contained exhibits designed to show the rise of the Fascisti to power and the trials and sacrifices made by them to attain to such power.

Here one stands in the middle of the room and hopes desperately that the world is fed up with war—civil and international. The modernization of Rome, the peace of its purlieus, the vigorousness of the Fascisti and the general tranquillity of the inhabitants suggest a purpose fulfilled, beyond the aspect of political power, by the revolution.

It seemed to me that these things spoke more eloquently of the purpose fulfilled than the exhibits of which the party is apparently especially proud. I could not understand one thing: Premier Mussolini must have detected a curiously hysterical strata in the nature of his followers; he must have discovered a prodigious lack of the instinct of self-preservation as individuals, in them, or an exceedingly deep idolatry of himself. For I am positive no ordinary human being with emotions normally set below the surface, hysteria subdued and the intelligence to comprehend and accept the inevitable, could possibly stand before the gallery of assassinated heroes of the revolution—labeled "monte par la causite" and be stirred to a defense of the cause. The gruesome attitudes of the martyrs—the glazed, unseeing eyes, the final spasm contorting the lips and nose; the dark, thick gush of blood from every cavity of the head; the lips drawn tight back from the teeth in a deformed smile that defied the shocked expression of the eyes——

The Terror of It All Cries Out for Peace.

THEY lay on biers and in coffins. The more honored had the distinction of a guard. In all cases the violent conclusions of these lives served as exhibitions.

It is all meant to be a resume of the final strength and unification of Italy and the Fascisti. It is a greater infraction of the right to joyful living than I have ever seen reproduced by film. But it is also the most compound propaganda for peace that can possibly be imagined. Perhaps that thought was behind it all.

I hurried out to the Tennis Club Parioli and played myself to exhaustion, to forget it. All around me Rome was green and old and peacefully sedate.

Pupils to Get Essay Prizes

Awards Planned Today for Spanish Contest Winners.

Winners of the Spanish essay contest in which more than 60 students studying the language in local high schools took part, will be awarded today at 5 p. m. at the Spanish Embassy by the Minister from Panama, Dr. Ricardo J. Alfaro.

The contest was conducted under the auspices of the Washington Chapter of Instituto De Las Espanas and contestants wrote their themes in Spanish on various phases of Spanish-American culture.

First prize, a gold medal, will be awarded to Miss Florence Raport, of Roosevelt High School, for her essay, "Solo Una Composicion;" second prize will go to Miss Eleanora Bergling, of Eastern High School, for "Un Sebillano Tipico;" and third prize will be awarded to James L. Young, of Western High School, for "Madrid." The last two awards, respectively, will be silver and bronze medals.

Judges of the contest were the Minister of Costa Rica, Senor Don Manuel Gonzalez-Zeledon; Gil Borges, assistant director of the Pan-American Union, and Dr. David Rubio, professor of Spanish, Catholic University.

D. C. Man Elected Kiwanis Trustee

Edwin F. Hill Will Serve for Two Years.

Edwin F. Hill, of Washington, was among the six international trustees elected for two-year terms by Kiwanis International at its eighteenth annual convention in Toronto, Ontario, yesterday.

In 1932 Hill was president of the Washington Kiwanis Club and governor of the Capital District, which includes Washington, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia. He is also chairman of the international publicity committee.

The Kiwanians elected Dr. William J. Carrington, of Atlantic City, international president. Other officers selected include Arch A. Schramm, Marietta, Ohio., vice president from the United States; William R. Cockburn, Toronto, vice president from Canada, and Henry G. Hatfield, of Oklahoma City, treasurer.

Scott Retracts Code Charges

Holds Standard Oil of N. J. and American Oil Co. Not Violators.

A statement issued last week by L. S. Scott, chairman of the District of Columbia Petroleum Committee, was retracted by Scott today insofar as it pertained to the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey and the American Oil Co. "being guilty of repeated and flagrant violations of the code as regards the giving of discounts and the labor provisions."

"The facts are that the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey and the American Oil Co. should not have been accused of such specific violations of the code," Scott said. "The records of our committee show there have been no charges against the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey or the American Oil Co. of violating any of the labor provisions of the code."

Winchester Scouts Hear Plea for Defense.

Winchester, Va., June 14 (Spl.)—In sharp contrast to his National speeches in which he militantly defended policies he sponsored or challened opponents, Gen. William Mitchell, of Middleburg, former chief of the Army Air Corps, at Flag Day exercises here told Boy Scouts that they are "the hope of the Nation."

Gen. Mitchell spoke under auspices of the local American Legion Auxiliary and Fort Loudoun Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. He was introduced by State Senator T. Russell Cather.

Gen. Mitchell pleaded for an adequate National defense training which, he asserted, should begin in the home, where it is the duty of the mothers to instill into the minds of children a love for God and country.

S. W. Lauck Memorial Is Dedicated by Elks

Harrisonburg, Va., June 14.—Flag Day observance here was climaxed at the Elks Home tonight with dedication of a memorial to S. W. Lauck, a departed member.

The memorial is a bronze elk, the centerpiece of the beautiful lawn in front of the home. John W. Morrison, member of the House of Delegates and former Mayor, spoke. Exalted Ruler Howard Rolston presided. There was music by the Harrisonburg Boys' Band, a children's chorus and Elks quartet.

No End of Books

Theodore Hall

THEO. HALL.

MISS E. M. DELAFIELD would be good meat for the schools which teach one how to be an author in 12 easy lessons by mail. "See," they could mimeograph in their encyclicals, "what this woman has done! Gaze at her sizable prestige and immense popularity, and then look at her writings — the writings which Punch prints serially, which Harper issues in an elegant book. YOU can do just as well! Start NOW!"

And the schools, I've not the slightest qualm in believing, would be perfectly right. By a rough, but credible, estimate, I make it 4,078 women in the mile between my home and my desk at The Post who could equal Miss Delafield on 94 points out of 100. Miss Delafield gets the 6 per cent lead because what she does she does supremely well.

• • • •

And what does she do? Let us open today's text—"The Provincial Lady in America" (Harper, $2.50), the narrative of her recent trip from England to New York, Chicago, Boston, Washington and Philadelphia.

Here, we find if we give it even half an eye, is spread the stock feminine mind in all its absurd and delicious provincialism. Miss Delafield leaves us in no doubt. It is a mind bounded on the north by husband and two children, very pleasant and very usual; on the east by a few thundering bores and some very pleasant and undifferentiated friends; on the south by the constant problem whether to wear the Molyneaux blue silk with white daisies, or the wool coat and skirt with red beret, and on the west by the not unusual ability to pronounce the Lincoln Memorial "definitely the most beautiful thing, without exception, that I have seen in America."

Not a thought, in all the rest of this area, rises above the observation that it's very tiresome to sign your name in your books at book stores, very confusing to make speeches, very easy to forget names if not faces, awfully difficult not to tell polite lies and so on. Oh, yes—and America is a big country, the people are very hospitable, the cocktails are very strong, the cooking is very good on trains, and Mrs. Isabel Patterson is "alarmingly clever in conversation."

• • • •

Perhaps you would like to see what Miss Delafield makes of Washington. "Grneral impression," she writes, "that Washington is very clean and pretty, with numbers of dazzingly white buildings. Am rather disposed to feel certain that every house I see in turn must be the White House."

A hotel, "colossal building of about 35 stories, with three wings," presumably the Mayflower, is full up. The desk clerk sends her to the Wardman Park. At the first, "Negro porters in pale blue uniforms." (Miss Delafield might amend this in the next edition—the clerk there, of whom I just inquired by phone, replied: "Pale blue? No, sir. Fairly darkish.") At the Wardman, "Negroes this time in crushed strawberry color."

She rings up a friend who lives "in a street rather strangely named O street." She meets a general, an old bore. She visits the White House. At Woodward & Lothrop's she makes a speech, and likes Mrs. Roberta Martin, the head of the book department, very much. All this is told with half a hundred commonplace feminine asides.

• • • •

But there's no use in accusing Miss Delafield for what she so superlatively represents. The point remains that she makes a perfect job of it.

Her diary style—"Lunch proves definitely informative: Miss Blatt tells me about dear Beverly Nichols, who has just sent her a copy of his new book, and dear Anne Parrish, who hasn't yet sent a copy of hers, but is certainly going to do so. I say yes, and how splendid"—turns out to be palatable, at least for small doses. Her eye sees pretty clearly what lies in front of her nose. Her own remarks are paired to the skeleton, as in the above, and other people's conversation is reported with the minimum ascription of intelligence.

Which, of course, is perfection of its kind.

• • • •

Looking back over this while changing sheets in the typewriter, I find a distinct unkindness toward Miss Delafield. But kindness in criticism, like a country cousin at a dinner party, is quite as embarrassing to have present as to leave behind.

Her popularity, however, stands on its own feet. That it is based entirely on small domestic recognition, on a series of women crying out: "Why, here is someone who also dislikes tea, and who has to think twice before broaching a ticklish subject to her husband!" makes it none the less real and solid.

But I beg, from the number of readers who have made up that popularity, to subtract one.

Grilling a Brain-Trust Ace.

Q. Have you had any farming experience?

A. I was born on a farm.

Q. You need no experience to be born on a farm.

A. But you get plenty before you are old enough to quit it.

Q. What kind of farm was it?

A. Well, we managed to run it without a pumping station or hot-dog stand.

(Cheers and cries of "This is a three-ring circus!")

• • • •

Q. What did you raise on this farm?

A. Fruit.

Q. What was the character of that fruit?

A. Excellent and above reproach. We never had an errant apple.

Q. Did you ever follow a plow?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Did you catch up with it?

A. No; and it was just as well.

Q. Why was it just as well?

A. The farmer who was running it wasn't taking on any hitch-hikers, anyhow.

• • • •

Q. Have you ever had mud on your boots?

A. Of course. Didn't I spend all last winter in Washington?

Q. You know, professor, do you not, how hard it is to get a dollar out of the soil?

A. Yes, sir. That's why I am striving to make life easier for the farmer.

Q. How do you propose to do this?

A. By getting him better radio programs, providing a longer season for summer boarders and making it a criminal offense for Federal agents to shoot down heifers while looking for Dillinger.

(Shouts of "Nobody walks!" "This is sabotage!" and "By the Eternal!")

• • • •

Q. You once favored milk being a public utility, did you not?

A. Yes. I regard milk quite as important to the public as water.

Q. You differentiate between the methods of production, I suppose?

A. Yes. I know the difference between a cow and a pump.

Q. Is there much difference?

A. There is unless you have a milk route.

(Cries of "I think he's handsome, don't you, Ella?" "I resent that aspersion!" and "By the Eternal!")

• • • •

Q. Do you believe in Government planning?

A. Well, I don't see why it should be compulsory to run a nation by loose talk, multiple mirrors and lateral passes.

Q. Do you believe in the Constitution?

A. So much so that I have even taken time to read it.

Q. Do you sympathize with the Soviet system?

A. Only in my Sunday newspaper articles.

• • • •

Q. Do you think Uncle Sam should take over the farms of this country?

A. No; he is suffering enough as it is.

Q. How do you reconcile your statements today with some of those radical opinions expressed in after-dinner speeches a few years ago?

A. It must have been something I ate.

(Cries of "Touchdown!" "By the Eternal!" and "This means war!")

Class Day Orations.

The graduating classes sit
In silence dark and deep,
And what is said won't hurt a bit—
For they are fast asleep.

Postmaster General Farley is to get an honorary college degree. That's curious. Most people thought he had letters enough for one man.

Curfew Bells Ring For Dance Halls In Virginia Area

Winchester, Va., June 14 (Spl.)—Curfew bells will ring on the dance halls of Frederick County, the board of supervisors here has decreed.

In response to protests against alleged disorders at county dance halls, the supervisors have adopted a resolution whereby no girl under 18 years of age shall frequent a public dance hall unless she is accompanied by a parent or guardian or a brother or sister over 21 years of age.

Under the supervisors' ruling, dance halls must close at midnight and may not open or reopen before 5 a. m.

Any place that charges admission, sells refreshments and allows dancing is classed as a public dance hall. Violation of the ruling will result in a fine of not more than $50 and not more than 30 days in jail, the supervisors decreed.

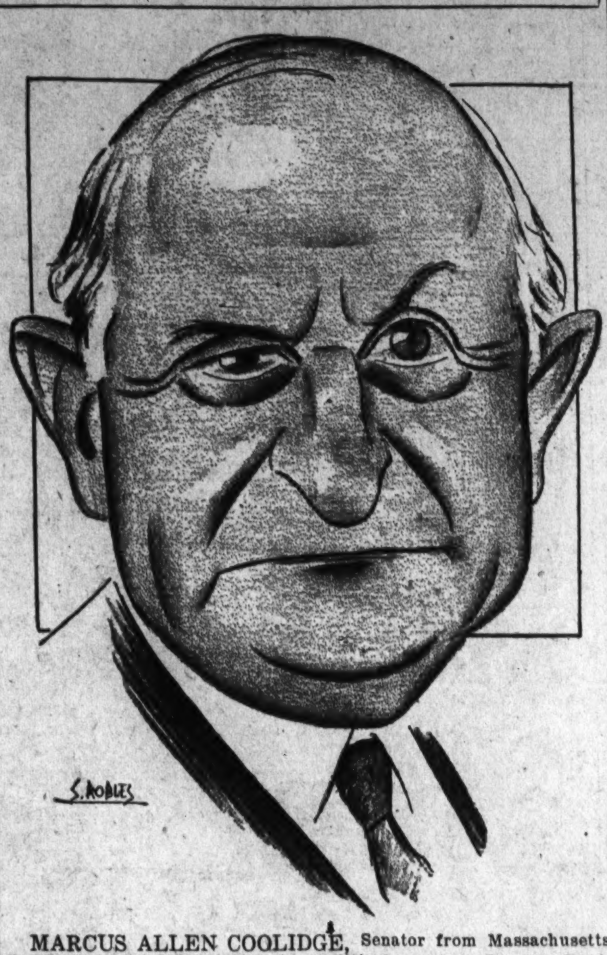
During recent months, the Frederick County Ministerial Association began a war on "indecences," the public dance hall being classed as a principal one.

Bostetter Enters Race For State's Attorney

Hagerstown, Md., June 14 (Spl.)—With the filing today of a certificate for the Democratic nomination for State's attorney by Martin V. B. Bostetter, increased activity by candidates is expected.

Quite a number have announced their intentions of filing for various offices, subject to primaries in the fall.

The National Gallery



MARCUS ALLEN COOLIDGE, Senator from Massachusetts. Besides tagging along with his political mentor, Senator David Ignatius Walsh, also of the Bay State, he is noted for two things—to wit: like his distant cousin, the late "Silent Cal," he avoids working his jaws overtime and radiates a peaceful benignity; he presides as father-in-law to one Harry Hines Woodring, Assistant Secretary of War. Began with his father a chair and rattan business, tried his hand at general contracting, building street railways, water works and bridges and then switched to manufacturing machine tools. After an appointment by President Wilson as special envoy to Poland, following service on numerous Democratic State and National committees, he was elected to the Senate, 1930, to succeed Senator Frederick H. Gillett. A conservative Democrat, he remains quiet, pleasant, inoffensive. Small, sharp-faced, he is grayish of hair and begoggled. Term expires, 1937.

Such a large proportion of those who have been pictured by Mr. Robles have asked for the originals that The Washington Post is saving all these drawings to honor the requests of any future members of "The National Gallery."

Depression Would End If Selfishness Ceased

By Robert Quillen

Since the beginning of the year one, the human race has been divided into two groups—the sharp and the simple, the predatory and the gullible, the wolves and the sheep.

And since the beginning the simple have worked patiently to earn their bread and a little surplus and the sharp have taken the surplus away from them.

The first business of civilization and the chief concern of law is to protect the sheep and dull the claws of the wolves.

True, humble men cut down the trees and plowed up the sod and dug the mines, but the sharp ones furnished the capital and took the risks and the profits.

This order of things continued, with little change, until March, 1933. Ours was a land of opportunity, which meant a land of unrestrained competition, and the rule was dog eat dog. The strong and the shrewd and the crooked took all they could get and the simple got the crumbs that fell from the table.

Since March, 1933, we have heard much of a New Deal that will give the little fellow a better chance; but all the recovery acts and alphabetical organizations and measures of reform boil down to nothing more than another effort to protect the sheep and trim the claws of the wolves.

There can be no fundamental change until the hearts of men are changed.

If every man, high and low, would purge his heart of selfishness and greed and labor only for the honor and glory and welfare of the Nation, the depression and all of its problems would be ended in a day. And all alike would prosper as men never prospered before.

But that is the only alternative. There is no half way ground. There must be unselfish cooperation or there will be selfish competition.

And selfish competition, despite all restraining laws and all good intentions, will inevitably return to the rule of dog eat dog, skin or be skinned, and the devil take the hindmost.

Miss Mary Catherine Borden is recreational director.

Posts of 2 States Plan Joint Outing

Waynesboro, Pa., June 14 (Spl.). The second annual American Legion outing of three counties in Maryland and three in Pennsylvania will be held Sunday, July 1, at Pen Mar Park near here, it was learned today.

The counties participating will be Franklin, Adams and York in Pennsylvania, and Washington, Frederick and Carroll counties in Maryland, comprising about 30 Legion posts.

Otto Messner, State commander of Pennsylvania, and C. L. Aiello, State commander of Maryland, will be the speakers.

4 Phone Linemen Save Boy in Canal

Danville, Va., June 14 (Spl.)—Gomes Gourfourth, 12, was saved from drowning today by four linemen of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. while they were at work removing cables from a bridge about to be remodeled.

The boy who can not swim, was in a boat in the canal race when the frail craft upset. J. L. Jordan, F. E. Wright, L. P. Higgins and E. B. Sheffield, aloft on poles, saw the accident. They clambored down, ran in their shin irons to a floodgate where the struggling boy was being drifted, and eight willing hands grasped him as he swept by.

The linemen, having studied resuscitation, applied their knowledge and brought him back to consciousness, and he was taken home.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

Stephen Leacock.

It is easier to become one of the leading serious writers of the world than it is to become one of the world's leading humorists. And in Shakespeare's play, "King Henry IV," Falstaff is a greater creation than Hotspur.

This being so—and it is so—it is curious that creative humorists are handicapped in attaining a literary reputation. The true recognition of Mark Twain was deferred for many years because so many critics thought he was only a funny man.

Our leading Canadian humorist, Stephen Leacock, has given delight to hundreds of thousands of people in all English-speaking countries by his stories, essays, and lectures. He is professor of political economy and head of the department in the famous McGill University at Montreal. One day a lady asked him, "I suppose you dash off these humorous sketches in the intervals of your professional work?" He replied, "Quite the contrary, madam; any industrious person can write books on political economy, but it is a much rarer gift to be able to produce original works of imagination and humor."

Mr. Leacock has had the experience of living in three countries, England, Canada, and the United States. He was born in Hampshire, England, in 1869, took his B. A. at the University of Toronto and his Ph. D. at the University of Chicago, received an appointment at McGill University about 30 years ago, and made an official round-the-world tour of the entire British Empire, speaking on imperial organization on the Cecil Rhodes foundation.

He has published a number of books on economics, but is of course best known to the world by his stores, satires, burlesques, sketches, which he has been producing steadily for 25 years; and with a boisterous humor that is as spontaneous as it is inexhaustible. Many of these works are laughable burlesques of affectations in literary fashions.

Among his best books are "Nonsense Novels," "Literary Lapses," 'Sunshine Sketches," "Frenzied Fiction," "My Discovery of England;" and perhaps one of the funniest of his short sketches is the one dealing with his unsuccessful attempt to make a bank deposit; it is called "My Financial Career."

As a public lecturer, Mr. Leacock has captivated innumerable listeners.

91 Are Graduated By Handley High

Dr. J. L. Jarman Speaks at Winchester.

Winchester, Va., June 14 (Spl.). Handley High School here graduated 91 seniors tonight at commencement exercises, at which the graduates were addressed by Dr. J. L. Jarman, president of Farmville (Va.) State Teachers College.

John M. Steck, chairman of the Winchester School Board, introduced the speaker of the evening and diplomas were presented by Garland R. Quarles, superintendent of local schools. The Handley Glee Club and the Handley High School cadet orchestra, under the direction of Prof. W. H. McIlwee, rendered several selections.

The Rev. A. R. Van Cleave and the Rev. E. B. McGukin, local ministers, pronounced the invocation and benediction, respectively.

Paytes Gets Honor At Chancellor High

Chancellor, Va., June 14 (Spl.)—The achievement cup annually awarded to the senior voted by the faculty as "having contributed most to the welfare of the school during his four years as a student" was presented to James Scott Paytes, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Paytes, at commencement excercises of Chancellor High School last night.

The selection is based on a point system. Mr. Paytes won letters in two sports, was president of the Chancellor Athletic Association, was president of the Edgar Allan Poe Literary Society, was a member of the school and county literary and debating teams, played in dramatics, was King of Health on school Health Day, and was vice president of his graduating class.

He was popularly voted the best-looking boy, best athlete, and most popular student of Chancellor High School.

Liquor Men Hit FACA Request For Fine Power

Brewers, Distillers Fear Abuse in Proposed Code Revision.

Because the Federal Alcohol Control Administration has asked President Roosevelt for an Executive order empowering the board to conduct trials and impose penalties up to $5,000, brewers, distillers, rectiers and otfihers under alcohol code are up in arms.

They contend that this represents too great a grant of power, which would be subject to serious abuse if administered for pollitical ends, and that no legal basis exists for conferring the trial and civil penalty functions, ordinarily left to the courts, upon the FACB.

The request for the Executive order is before President Roosevelt. Joseph H. Choate, jr., chairman of the FACB, holds that it is necessary to prevent a glut of code violation cases in the Federal courts. Brewers' representatives in Washington say they are confident of fair and proper administration so long as Choate remains, but fear that he may not long continue in his present post, and that in any event he could not himself hear and pass upon all of the cases.

The brewers strenuously objected to the civil penalty idea and it was left out of the code. The proposal now before the President is to restore it.

It provides for hearing before the FAC A and the fine up to $5,000. If a brewer fails to pay a fine assessed, he will be reported to the Department of Justice for frosecution for code violation. FACA officials contend that this gives the defendants the option of trial in the courts.

In practice, the brewers say, they would have to submit to the FACA, with which they are obliged to deal on all matters relating to their business. They contend that hearings would be held and fines assessed by various minor FACA subordinates.

Provisions are now in the code for revocation or suspension of licenses, but the imposition of civil penalties would be superimposed, and, as the brewer sargue, customary court procedure, with its safeguards, wold be circumvented.

FACA authorities privately concede that there is doubt of legal authority. The proposed civil penalty provision as originally drawn, but rtsicken from the code when the coded interests protested, provide:

Civil Penalties. (a) If proceedings for the assessment of a civil penalty are to be instituted, the director shall make an order assessing against the respondent a civil penalty to be paid to the director in such sum not in excess of $5,000 for each violation and payable at such time, as the director determines to be reasonable, specifying therein the violation; and serve a copy thereof upon the respondent. Within ten days after service of the order upon the respondent, he may file wtih the director in writing a petition for the remission or mitigation of the penalty. The director shall, after consideration of the petition, by order affirm, modify, or reverse his assessment order. In event of the failure to pay to th? director, withni the time specified in the order, the civil penalty assessed, the director may institute appropriate proceedings under section 1 (a), (1), (2) or (3) of this article. These relate to prosecution in court or license revocation. All peymants of any civil penalty shall be made by certified check drawn to the order of the Treasurer of the United States and shall be covered by the director into the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts. Payment of any civil penalty so assessed shall have the effect of compromising all liability, civil or criminal, of the respondent for the violation.

Navy Closes Plane Probe

The Navy yesterday wrote finis to its participation in the investigation of the crash of the Chicago-to-New York "luxury air liner," which fel in the Catskills on Saturday, killing seven persons.

Rear Admiral Joseph K. Taussig, U. S. N., acting chief of naval operations, stated that no naval documents of a secret or confidential nature had been found in the wreckage.

"Navy specifications, however, for some amonia picrate, were found at the scene of the crash," Rear Admiral Taussig said. He added that these papers were not confidential. The company by which W. B. Bader, one of the passengers, was employed, was bidding on contracts for ammonia picrate for the Navy.

Admiral Taussig also expressed appreciation of the Navy Department to officials in charge of the investigation for their efforts to safeguard Government property.

The naval investigation was directed by Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, jr., U. E. N., commandant of the Third Naval Disrtict, New York. Admiral Stirling sent a member of his staff to Liberty, when it was reported that "secret naval documents and formulae" had ben found in the wreckage.

Soviet Warships Seize Japanese Crab Boats

Tokyo, June 14 (AP).—Dispatches from the Government Fisheries Bureau today said Soviet warships two days ago seized two Japanese crab-canning boats, 20 miles east of Cape Lopatka, Kamchatka Province, Siberia. Reasons for the alleged seizure were not given. A Japanese patrol boat was ordered to the scene.

Disputes over fishing grounds in North Pacific waters have caused numerous Russo-Japanese incidents.

In 1926, when precision flying was much more difficult than it is today, Roman Warren astounded the aviation world by flying a wartime scout plane 125 miles per hour under a bridge with only three feet clearance above and below. The feat was made even more difficult by the fact that just beyond the bridge it was necessary for him to go into a steep climbing bank to avoid trees along the river.

The bridge arch measured 16 feet from the highest point to the waterline. Warren's plane had an overall height of nine feet, but as the bridge arch curved downward from its central point the clearance above the wing tips and below the landing gear was less than three feet.

In flying under the arch the pilot had to judge his lateral position as well as his vertical position with uncanny correctness, for although the arch was 75 feet from side to side it curved downward so much that only the central portion would clear the plane.

Compared with this the flight through Eiffel Tower arch was comparatively simple, for there there is a space of 150 feet from side to side.

Estate Willed To Cathedral

She left real estate valued at $150,000 and personal property assessed at $404,027, all of which, aside from a few minor bequests, goes to the Cathedral. Bank deposits, stocks and bonds made up most of the personality.

Mrs. Myer directed that the residue of her estate should be given to the Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation whose officers are empowered to use it in any form deemed proper by them. The fund is to be known as a memorial to Mrs. Myer and her brother.

Rachel C. Hale, Sterling Ruffin, Gilbert C. Bratenahl and Walter C. Clephane were designated as executors of the will.

Donaldson Loses $53,000 Judgment

Bank Receiver Wins Suit to Collect Note.

A default judgment of $53,967.84 was entered against R. Golden Donaldson, former president of the closed Commercial National Bank, in the District Supreme Court yesterday.

Norman R. Hamilton, receiver of the District National Bank, brought the suit, to collect a $51,000 demand promissory note negotiated by Donaldson in November, 1932. As part collateral Donaldson deposited 330 shares of stock of the Commercial Bank.

When the time limit within which Donaldson could file a reply expired, attorneys representing the District Bank, which is now a member of the Hamilton system, asked Justice Jennings Bailey to award them a default judgment, which was done.

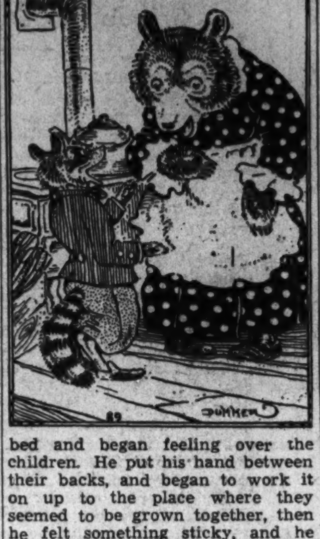
BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

Doctor Coon 'Makes It Hot' for Children

When Jay Bird came to the Mountain House, it was because Blackie thought Bettie might be getting uneasy about him because he had been gone so long, and so he told Jay Bird to fly over and tell her that they were all getting along fine, but were just having a little fun along the way, and would be home in a day or two. And that is what Jay Bird started to tell Bettie when he came in at the door, but he didn't ever get it out, for Bettie almost screamed at him to know where Doctor Coon was, for she thought her children had grown together during the night, and she certainly did need a doctor. So she didn't let Jay Bird say anything, but she told him to get back and tell Dr. Coon and Blackie to come home as fast as they could, for the children were in an awful fix. Jay Bird, didn't wait to find out just what sort of a fix they were in, but he spread wings for Blackie and Dr. Coon.



While Jay Bird was gone, Grandma and Bettie didn't do very much to help matters, for they didn't know what to do. It just looked like the children had grown together, and that was all there was to it. The children soon learned that they couldn't turn over, and that if they moved at all it felt like it would tear all the skin off their backs. It took several hours for Dr. Coon to get there, and it was away along in the afternoon when the wagon came up to the door, and Hee-Haw was panting as if he was tired most to death. Dr. Coon jumped right out and ran for his medicine chest, for he thought the children had been smoking again or eating something that had made them sick, and that he would have to give them some medicine. Like all the other doctors, he began by asking the sick folks all about what they had been eating and drinking and doing generally before they got sick. Bettie told him that they hadn't eaten a thing but a little soup all day, and that they had been perfectly well all the day before, and were well today, only they had grown together. They had eaten some home-made candy the night before, she told him, but they didn't seem a bit sick from it.

Then Dr. Coon went over to the bed and began feeling over the children. He put his hand between their backs, and began to work it on up to the place where they seemed to be grown together, then he felt something sticky, and he pulled his paw out and laughed. "Well, this is one time when children didn't eat enough candy. If they had eaten just one more piece, they wouldn't be stuck together this way." And then Benny remembered about the piece of candy that he took when his mama's back was turned, and that he took to bed with him, and he almost laughed, even if his back did hurt.

"Heat some water, Bettie," said Dr. Coon, "and we will see if we can't pry these twins apart. You will have to make it good and hot, and these children will have to grin and bear it while we melt that candy." And to hear Jenny talk about it, even now, you would believe that Bettie did make it hot, and that Dr. Coon was just a little rough in the way he worked on that mixture of candy and hair till he got them pulled apart.

"And that's what you got for fooling your mother," said Bettie, and for taking some more candy after I told you to quit. Well, I reckon you will know better next time." And Benny said he reckoned he would, too.

Business Women Give Meet Reports

Fredericksburg Leaders Hear of Parley.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 14 (Spl.).—Reports from the State convention last month were heard at the June meeting of the Fredericksburg Professional and Business Women's Club last night.

Mrs. S. P. Powell, well-known local historic authority, was inducted into membership.

Reports were read by members who attended tne convention at Natural Bridge, May 18 and 19. Miss Anna Lockhart, club president and a member of the State nominating committee, read a paper on general activities. Mrs. Mary P. Dannehl, chairman of the State membership committee, reported on the membership round table discussion. A general report was given by Mrs. Emma O. Euliss, chairman of the education committee. Miss Evelyn Mullen, corresponding secretary of the local group, delivered a report on the round table discussion at the Virginia convocation.

LaFollette Shows Action On D. C. Insurance Code

Passage of the proposed new life insurance code for the District was blocked in the Senate yesterday by Senator Robert M. LaFollette, jr. (Republican), of Wisconsin.

The bill had been favorably reported earlier in the day from the Senate District Committee and action was sought, out of order, by Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the committee. Senator LaFollette indicated no opposition to the measure itself, but proposed that it lie over until today. The bill already has been passed by the House.

Fredericksburg High Sets Summer Record

Fredericksburg, Va., June 14 (Spl.).—The largest enrollment in the history of Fredericksburg City School summer sessions has been recorded with 135 students signed for elementary and high school courses, Guy H. Brown, city school superintendent, announces.

Enrollment figures at the Fredericksburg State Teachers College summer school will not be complete until next week, as many colleges and schools from which students and faculties will attend the local summer session will not be closed until Friday.

Radio Wav es and Ripples

THE General Broadcasting System, of which WOL was a member, has passed, and in its place stands the American Broadcasting System, with a key station in New York and an outlet in Providence.

The passing began Monday, slowly, quietly, behind a figurative smoke screen of "technical experiments." Yesterday it was consummated and officially announced by George B. Storer, former Columbia official and president of the system's New York key, WMCA.

To WOL it means a program service more substantial and regular in its habits than anything the Leroy Mark station previously has received, with sustaining shows available on a regular schedule from 8 a. m. to midnight.

All the former G. B. S. stations are subscribers of the new chain—WPEN, Philadelphia; WCBM, Baltimore; WDEL, Wilmington; WTNJ, Trenton, and WOL. WRPO is the Providence addition.

Here of course are the makings of the much heralded and long anticipated third network. But American's backers disclaim any present intention of doing anything more pretentious than providing their members with sustaining programs, with subscriber additions and network advertising a future possibility.

Meanwhile, WOL has begun to spruce up its local entertainment production. George Reid, whose Capital radio experience antedates that of almost everyone else, takes over WOL's sunrise broadcast, The Musical Clock. Harold Reid has abdicated in the elder Reid's favor after a tenure of four years, and Ted Ostenkamp has been given a place of first importance on Mark's announcing staff. Sports and the handling of all broadcasts outside the studio—service band programs, Joe Brown's Opportunity Night, Monday night prize fights, &c.—henceforth are to be the Ostenkamp specialty.

We can see now where this business of golf between local employes of N. B. C. and C. B. S. can go on all summer without any one getting near a course.

For instance, when asked yesterday what he thought about accepting National's challenge to his golfing young men, WJSV Manager Harry Butcher is reported to have sneered:

The inference is that if Mr. Butcher and his young men hadn't been busy last week, Ollie Dutra would have been just another pretty fair golfer who played in the National Open.

Perhaps N. B. C. should allow Jim McGrath to try out some of his wrestling holds.

A JOKE has been played upon us. A trick, too, maybe.

Several weeks ago we published a piece about Ronald Dawson quitting radio play-acting to stall off a nervous collapse. It was a sort of obituary, an almost funereal piece and downright euologistic in spots, too.

Now Mr. Dawson's indomitable press agent, Palmer Brink, has laid on our desk an item which reports that inasmuch as two of Mr. Dawson's character men are playing at the National Theater, Mr. Dawson, or his ghoul, will pile into the breach, stop the gap, in brief, return to the air.

Mr. Dawson's comings and goings are no concern of ours, but his decease is announced with such a convincing air of finality one week and his resurrection proclaimed with such credible plausibility the next that practically everyone is at least confused, if not mortified. Besides a man should lie in his grave a decent length of time before considering resurrection.

We're nuts.

GLADYS SWARTHOUT, who has replaced Lawrence Tibbett and Richard Crooks on that Monday night tire broadcast.

Ed.'s note: Presumably during the period of his incarceration, Mr. Dawson has adapted for radio that "milestone in modern dramatic history, Ibsen's 'Dolls' House,' in which he will play Krogstad tonight, WOL.

Two times in as many days, N. B. C.'s commercial department has sold one of its motor-car clients a program.

Yesterday it was the well-known Elsie Craft (Hurley) and James Wilkinson, a not-so-well-known Madeline Sheppard, blues singer, and a ten-piece string orchestra, WRC, 9:30 p. m. Monday.

Wednesday the "for sale" sign was removed from Tenor Bert Bagranoff and another ten-piece orchestra.

WJSV's orphanage broadcast series opens tonight at 8:30 with the Boys' Choir of St. Joseph's Home and School. Sports Announcer Arch McDonald will be at the microphone where his easy, assured manner is calculated to soothe rising young fears.

Whitecaps.

WRC — Oswald Mazzucchi, cellist, Schumann's "Adagio," Mendelssohn's "Song Without Words," 4:15 p. m.; Countess Albani, "Masquerade," "Estrellitax" and "Annie Laurie," 7 p. m.; Jack Benny, 9:30 p. m.

Woman Dies as Result Of Fall Down Stairs

Laura Stewart, 69, of 69 V street northwest, died yesterday from a fall down the basement steps in her home June 7. At that time, she was taken to Sibley Hospital, where she was treated for a broken arm. She returned home on June 10. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of accidental death.

Federal Work Offices Merged.

Cumberland, Md., June 14 (Spl.). The Oakland offices of the Federal Re-employment Agency have been moved to this city and consolidated with the Cumberland branch in the Federal Building in charge of Maj. Harry E. Flook. The local offices will now have charge of registering jobless men and women of Allegany and Garrett Counties.

Unusual Bidding.

An Individual Masters' Tournament held in New York recently has furnished much food for students of the individual idiosyncrasies of the various Bridge players participating in it. Of course, freak hands at Bridge, like all unusual situatons of any kind in any walk of life, furnish to the masters great scope for indvidual treatment. One of the hands which was of a somewhat freakish type, containing voids in two hands and singletons in the two others brought about much unusual bidding. The hand was:

At one table, after passes by West and North, Mr. Edward Hymes, jr., decided to open the bidding with three hearts. Mr. Samuel Fry, jr., held South's beautiful array of cards, and he decided not to take two bites of the cherry but to gulp it down at once, so his Overcall was the modest bid of six clubs. This was doubled by Mr. A. Moyse, jr., Mr. Hymes' partner for the moment, and when North and East passed, South redoubled.

Mr. Moyse was quite right in thinking that the hand could be defeated but the lead to defeat it had to be an inspired one. It would be the Opening lead of a club. This was not the card chosen, however; instead the fourth-best spade was led, and Mr. Fry then proceeded to fulfill his contract.

Although Mr. Fry's bidding was unusual, it seems to me that without any interference bidding by the opponents, normal bidding methods should result in the same final contract. In view of South's 6-4-3 distribution his hand could, without stretching it much, if any, be opened with a Forcing bid of two clubs. North would respond with two diamonds, and if South then bid four clubs to guarantee the solidity of the club suit, North would again bid the diamonds, and South bid spades. Given a choice between spades and clubs, North must of course prefer the clubs, and after North has bid five clubs, it should not require much courage for South to bid a Slam.

Grocery Holdup Nets $327 for Bandit Pair

While his confederate waited at the wheel of an auto, an armed bandit entered the grocery store of Edward Peary, 213 Eleventh street northwest, yesterday afternoon as Peary counted the day's receipts, seized $327, and escaped before the astonished grocer could give an alarm.

Peary, who lives at 510 Randolph street northwest, told police both the bandits were colored. He was preparing to close his store when the holdup occurred.

Three Robbed of $80 In District Hotel Holdup

Three armed white men early yesterday robbed three guests in the Annapolis Hotel of $80. The victims were Winston C. Thompson and William J. Megginson, both permanent guests, and C. Roger Bennett, of Danville, Va., who was visiting their room.

Here's to Arizona.

While other States may shiver
Before their hearth fires' gleam
Your cacti blossoms open
And deserts dress in green—
For your far famed Grand Canyon,
Crops and mineral wealth,
Here's to Arizona
For sunshine and health.

BAKER.

REPORTS of a semicivilized race in the Arizona area reached the older Spanish settlements in Mexico and led to the sending of a missionary, Marcos de Niza, into that territory on a scouting expedition in 1539.

When the good friar returned he told marvelous stories of seven cities built of stone and mortar, of precious green stones decorating their doorposts and of skins which came from large animals of the cow kind with curly hair. This was an accurate description of the present country, the tribe of Zuni and a group of seven villages near the present Zocalo. They lived then as they do now, and as they had lived for centuries, in community houses of timber and adobe, several stories high. It was true, too, that they decorated their houses with green stones—turquoise, carbonate and phosphate of copper.

The report of Marcos was spread and exaggerated beyond recognition. An impressive expedition under Vasquez de Coronado soon set forth to find the cities of gold. So bitter was Coronado in failing to find the fabulous golden cities that Marcos was branded as a liar and had to flee.

The first settlement was founded in Arizona in 1732 by two missionaries at San Xavier del Bac and San Miguel de Guevavi. After years of struggle with the untamable Apache and Moqui Indians, the Mexican Government practically abandoned the territory in 1848. In 1854, by what is known as the Gadsden purchase, that area came into possession of America.

Arizona became a territory in 1863 and was admitted to the Union in February 14, 1912. It is the fifth State in size (113,956 square miles); the forty-third in population (435,573 in 1930) and the forty-eighth in order of admission.

Phoenix, founded in 1870, is the capital. The Arizona Indian village of Oraibi, believed to have been in existence in the thirteenth century, is the oldest continuously inhabited community in the United States.

Derivation of Name.

The name Arizona is derived from the Indian "Arisonac," meaning small springs. The popular meanings, "arid zona" (arid zone) and "silver bearing," are lacking in ethnological evidence. The State's nicknames are "The Sunset State" and the "Baby State," the latter, of course, referring to its late entry into the Union. The State flower is the Saguaro, king of all cacti. The State motto is Ditat Deus (God enriches). The State bird is the cactus wren. Blue and old gold are the State colors.

ARIZONA leads all States in production of copper, half of all the American copper used in the United States coming from Arizona. Much of the State's wealth comes from agriculture, with it holding second place in output of cantaloupes and lettuce. Its per acre yield of cotton, alfalfa, wheat, grain sorghum and other products is among the highest in the Union.

Arizona's citrus fruits are of exceptionally high quality. Growing of dates also is increasing into profitable commercial yields. Pima cotton, a long staple variety, is produced on a big scale. Live stock is one of the leading industries.

No State can claim greater scenic attractions. The Grand Canyon, Apache Trail Highway, petrified forest, painted desert, natural bridge, Rhyolite Park, Colossal Cave and many other places are among scenic wonders of Arizona.

Owing to varying altitudes one can, even in midsummer, find hot or cold temperatures within a few hours drive. While it is warm in the lower valleys, the heat is not oppressive. Near almost every valley community is a mountain resort, where top coats feel comfortable on summer evenings.

Maricopa County, one of the 14 counties, has an area greater than the combined area of Connecticut, Delaware and Rhode Island. The Salt River project is the largest irrigation venture in the State. It serves more than 240,000 acres. There are more than 160,000 irrigated acres in 12 other projects.

Stephen W. Langmade, of Phoenix, is prominent among the younger social set in Washington.

Friend of Gold Seekers.

One-eighth of the world's gold today lies at the bottom of the ocean in rotting ships. This has been ascertained after much research work by Lieut. Harry E. Rieseberg (*), of Prescott, who is chief of the Tonnage Division, Bureau of Navigation and Steamboat Inspection.

Lieut. Rieseberg also has charted the location of all treasure ships that have been sunk since 1588. Salvage companies, adventurers and sportsmen have applied to his office for data in organizing treasure-retrieving expeditions. Lieut. Rieseberg is active in Masonic circles, being the senior deputy grand tall cedar of the local unit of the Tall Cedars of Lebanon. He has written many stories on adventure and sea lore.

This typical Arizona young man and young woman in Government service are examples of the progressive West. John A. Murphy, of Phoenix, is with the Legal Division, HOLC. Mr. Murphy, after being graduated from the University of Arizona, became a political leader among the young people of that State. He is now studying law in the evenings at Georgetown. Miss Marguerite Hughey, of Tucson, a vivacious Westerner, is a popular employe at Miscellaneous Tax Unit, Internal Revenue. Miss Hughey attended the University of Arizona and has been a concert singer. Her ambition is to become a tuberculosis specialist.

WHAT the Arizona State Society lacks in size it makes up in enthusiasm and activities. Under direction of Leon D Kneipp, Forest Service, president, the society has just completed a brilliant social season. Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington University, has been identified with Ohio, but Arizona also claims him. He is a member of the Arizona Society and entertains the group every year.

KNEIPP

Other leaders of the society are:

Paul Roberts, first vice president; Lieut. Harry E. Reiseberg, second vice president; Mrs. Eva Chapline, third vice president; Mrs. Maude M. Anderson (*), secretary; Alfred Micotti, treasurer, and John A. Murphy, chairman of the good of the order.

Two prominent Arizonians, Mrs. Maude M. Anderson, secretary of the Arizona State Society, and Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, former District Superintendent of Police.

The two distinguished Senators, Henry F. Ashurst and Carl Hayden, and Representative Isabella Greenway, are patrons of the society.

A prominent attorney of Douglas, Joseph H. White (*), is now an attorney at AAA. Mr. White was vice consul at Bahia, Brazil, two years during the Wilson Administration. He also was city attorney at Douglas.

All things pertaining to the Southwest constitute the hobby of Mrs. Rosemary Rhode-Logsdon (*), of Phoenix, who is secretary of the Dairy Section, Agriculture. Mrs. Rhode-Logsdon also is interested in dramatics, having written several short comedies and monologues. This talented Arizonan has acted in numerous benefits for the American Legion, the V. F. W. and religious groups.

Diary Guest Tickets.

IF YOUR name is followed by (*), call in person on the Federal Diary editor the same day. You will receive tickets to Loew's Columbia (Sir Guy Standing, Tom Brown and Judith Allen in "The Witching Hour"); or to Loew's Palace (Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone in "Sadie McKee"); or to Loew's Fox (stage, Benny Davis and his Stars of the Future; screen, Sylvia Sidney and Gary Cooper in "Thirty-Day Princess").

Diary office hours are: Daily except Sundays, 12 m. to 1 p. m., and from 4:30 to 6 p. m.; Saturday, 12 m. to 2:30 p. m.

AMONG the interesting Arizonans in Washington are:

State Society Outing.

The Massachusetts State Society of Washington will hold its annual Bunker Hill Day outing, dinner and dance at Olney Inn, Olney, Md., tomorrow. Buses will depart from the south side of the Treasury at 2:30 p. m.

HOW WOMEN CAN WIN MEN AND MEN WIN
The Favor of Other Men

Unless two pints of bile juice flow daily from your liver into your bowels, your food decays in your bowels. This poisons your whole body. Movements get hard and constipated. You get yellow tongue, yellow skin, pimples, dull eyes, bad breath, bad taste, gas, dizziness, headache. You have become an ugly-looking, foul-smelling, sour-thinking person. You have lost your personal charm. Everybody wants to run from you.

But don't take salts, mineral waters, oils, laxative pills, laxative candies or chewing gums and expect them to get rid of this poison that destroys your personal charm. They can't do it, for they only move out the tail end of your bowels and that doesn't take away enough of the decayed poison. Cosmetics won't help at all.

Only a free flow of your bile juice will stop this decay poison in your bowels. The one mild vegetable medicine which starts a free flow of your bile juice is Carter's Little Liver Pills. No calomel (mercury) in Carter's. Only fine, mild vegetable extracts. If you would bring back your personal charm to win men, start taking Carter's Little Liver Pills according to directions today. 25¢ at drug stores.

Refuse "something just as good", for it may gripe, loosen teeth or scald rectum. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name and get what you ask for. [illegible]

Fine Pictures Are Announced For Hot Months

By Nelson B. Bell.

Contrary to past practice of the major film producers in withholding from summer release the better of their motion pictures—in order, of course, to have the "cream of the crop" to open the fall season—Warner Brothers have announced a 15-month season of 1934-35 quality pictures, not rated by months and according to outdoor temperatures but strictly on a basis of uniformly high merit.

To accommodate this scheme, the Warners have designated the months of June, July and August, during which most distributors palm off the leavings, so to speak, of the season just closing, a prelude to the new season which ordinarily does not begin until September. The pictures to be released during these three months are declared to have been created with the deliberate intention not only of combatting the so-called "summer slump," but rendering it definitely impossible in so far as the Warner outlets are concerned.

The New Attractions.

The new attractions, according to announcement made yesterday by Zone Manager John J. Payette, in charge of the Washington territory, will be inaugurated by "Dr. Monica," starring Kay Francis and heralded as the finest of her stellar vehicles to date. The supporting cast is headed by Jean Muir, Verree Teasdale and Warren William.

Dolores Del Rio in "Madame Du Barry" will be an early release. This is the story that First National first released years ago under the title of "Passion," with Pola Negri and Emil Jannings heading the cast under the direction of Ernest Lubitsch, all virtually unknown to American audiences at that time. Miss Del Rio will be supported by Reginald Owen, Verree Teasdale, Victor Jory, Osgood Perkins, last seen here in the delightful Theater Guild production of "The School of Husbands," by Moliere, and the Albertina Rasch Girls, presumably for purposes of formal dances in the Gardens of Versailles.

New Comedy Team.

A new comedy team will make its appearance during this summer period in the persons of Jimmy Cagney and Pat O'Brien. "Here Comes the Navy" is the title of their opus, and if it isn't funny then there is no virtue in circumstantial evidence.

Another Busby Berkeley girls-and-music show, "Dames," also is in the offing. This will have Ruby Keeler, Dick Powell, Joan Blondell, ZaSu Pitts, Guy Kibbee and Hugh Herbert in the principal roles.

These will be followed by Edward G. Robinson in "The Man With Two Faces;" Joe E. Brown in "The Circus Clown;" Richard Barthelmess in "Midnight Alibi," by Damon Runyon; Pat O'Brien and Glenda Farrell in "The Personality Kid;" James Cagney and Joan Blondell in "He Was Her Man;" "Return of the Terror," adapted from a story by Edgar Wallace, with Mary Astor, Lyle Talbot and John Halliday; Charlie Ruggles in "Friends of Sweeney;" Dick Powell and Ruby Keeler in "Flirtation Walk," a musical, and Aline McMahon in "Side Streets," with Paul Kelly.

Speaking of Kay Francis, as the foregoing announcement was several times in as many places, this admirable young actress is about to take her first real vacation from the studios and lots she has enjoyed in more than three years. About June 20 she will sail from New York on the S. S. Rex for Naples, Rome, Cannes and way stations. She will be gone until September.

Mrs. Hibbard Celebrates.

Tonight, Mrs. Adelaide Hibbard, the much-beloved character woman of the National Theater Players, will give her 500th performance as a member of the company organized a decade ago by Stephen E. Cochran, manager of the National Theater. Mrs. Hibbard has appeared on E street in nine of the ten seasons that have comprised the remarkable record of this splendid repertoire company, recognized as one of the foremost in the country.

During that time she has assumed 65 different characters, calling for wide and varied expression, ranging from the flighty and restless matron of "Cradle Snatchers" and her sophisticated and hard-boiled mistress of the current "Sailor, Beware," to the lovable "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

If you get "Addie" in confidential mood, she will admit that she likes best those roles which savor of aristocracy and the social register. This is an understandable preference in a lady who served as a former "first lady" of the City of Boston with social brilliance and great charm.

Roles She Liked.

As concrete evidence of Mrs. Hibbard's feeling in the matter may be taken her enthusiasm over the role of the Back Bay dowager which she played in "Jimmie's Women"—a comparatively minor part—and the degree to which she enjoyed being the Dowager Empress of Rome in Robert E. Sherwood's "The Road to Rome" in which she was the mother of the ruler of the city menaced by the advance of Hannibal and his hosts.

Tonight the only formal observance of Mrs. Hibbard's five-century performance will be a dinner tendered her by Miss Courtney Wade, an intimate friend. That is to say, that will be the only observance except the extending of affectionate and sincere congratulations on the part of all of Washington.

Mrs. Hibbard never will lack warm welcome to the Washington stage. She has become an institution it would be difficult to do without.

Mal Hallett and his orchestra, one of the most popular of all college bands, will be at Chevy Chase Lake for a single evening's engagement on Saturday night. With Hallett will be the blonde Ann Graham, blues singer, and the widely acclaimed Miss Teddy Grace, Southern torch singer. Tonight the Lake will offer Frankie Flannigan and his Southerners. Other headline dance aggregations are scheduled for Chevy Chase Lake in the near future.

Dots and Dashes.

Afterthoughts on the big broadcast Tuesday night from 10 to 11 over WRC in celebration of the first anniversary of The New Washington Post: The rousing reception accorded Benny Davis for his sketchy revival of many of his own popular compositions...Benny has written some of the biggest smash hits of recent years...And that the public knew and remembered them was evidenced by the reception he received when he sang them...Charlie Winninger, at the party following the broadcast, sitting, a la Helen Morgan, on top of a grand piano, singing all the production numbers he has ever learned in 42 years of trouping...The list must have run 'way up into the thousands...Myron Duncan, at the same party and the same piano, cutting loose some high tones that rattled the chandeliers and caused the balcony of the Press Club auditorium to sway...Two of the Three X Sisters sticking it out until daylight...While the third nursed a minor illness by going home and to bed...That daylight business would be down at Tom O'Donnell's, where a crowd went for matutinal ham-and-eggs...Said crowd including Tom Moore, exhibitor gone producer; Charlie Winninger, Pearl Hamilton and Jessie Fordyce, of the Three X Sisters; "Molasses and January," otherwise Malone and Pageant; Myron Duncan, an others...Charlie composing a "theme song" for the breakfast, the lyrics of which were: "Scrambled eggs and stewed tomatoes and a little bacon"...The funny part being that he really wrote a tune for it...That "beat time" correctly and was written in key...And it was sung at intervals of five minutes, seemingly, from 3 a. m. to 4:30...Little Miss Ault making so good an impression that she will be on "Capt. Henry's" Showboat Hour the first thing she knows, if she is not careful...Post photographers flashing bulbs in everybody's face in greater profusion than at the first fight night out at Griffith Stadium...Which is plenty...The classic dancing of Mr. Johrden, with a folding chair for a partner...The ad libbing that went on almost continuously at that grand piano...Lots of clever people on hand, evidently.

L'envoi.

Two Stars of Tomorrow's Films

Wife Wins Alimony In Menoher Divorce

Leavenworth, Kan., June 14 (AP). Mrs. Genevieve Menoher was granted a divorce here today from Maj. Pearson Menoher, U. S. A., son of the late Maj. Gen. Charles J. Menoher.

A stipulation in the divorce decree sets out that Maj Menoher is to pay his wife $20,000 for the care and education of their two children at the rate of $225 monthly. He also is to pay Mrs. Menoher $5,000 alimony in monthly installments of $75.

Theaters Make Known the New Week's Roster

Screen and Stage Features Listed for Information of Amusement Lovers.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

Whatever the cause—and there is no tangible evidence that the recent agitation as to the censorability of "Sailor, Beware" was anything but bona fide—business at the National Theater during the second week of the Kenyon Nicholson-Charles Robinson farcical comedy of the U. S. gob on shore leave has been increasing by such leaps and bounds that it would not be surprising if this season-long hit on Broadway should be presented for a third week by the National Theater Players.

There is no official announcement to this effect, but if present enthusiasm over the comedy continues, it is inevitable that there will be.

"Sailor, Beware" is frank, frisky and funny and affords important roles for the entire roster of the National Theater Players, augmented by a considerable number of resident actors and actresses of the first rank.

The play, incidentally, has been given a clean bill of health by the District attorney's office and the Police Department, although it has been deprived of practically none of its potency as box-office dynamite.

Special events are thick these June days on Glen Echo Park's calendar. For example, in addition to the usual operation of the Crystal Pool, the Spanish Garden ballroom and the 50-odd amusement devices afforded at the 40-acre resort, today the Schoolboy Patrol of Montgomery and other counties in Maryland will be guests at Glen Echo of Chief Moxley in recognition of their fine work during the year in preventing highway accidents to school children. Sunday is the favorite day with family picnic parties at the resort. Dancing to MacWilliams' Orchestra is enjoyed every night except Sunday.

* * * *

"Come on, Marines," cofeaturing Richard Arlen and Ida Lupino, is being shown at Seaside Park, down at Chesapeake Beach, tonight as major attraction of the second of the "movie nights" being presented each week. There are, of course, all the other amusement devices to be enjoyed, too—bayside water sports, the new pier, swimming pool, miniature railway and spacious picnic grounds. Many Washington organizations are holding their annual outings at Seaside Park.

* * * *

At the Earle Theater, beginning tomorrow, those two priceless "nit-wits of the networks," Gracie Allen and George Burns, will be featured on the screen, with Guy Lombardo and his orchestra, in "Many Happy Returns," reported as one of the gayest of the nonsensical comedies. On the stage, the vaudeville bill will be headlined by that ace of protean artists, Owen McGiveney, whose quick changes are marvels of speed and effectiveness. Mr. McGiveney, alone, presents practically the whole story of "Oliver Twist," under the title "Bill Sykes." Other stage acts will be presented by Fred Sanborn, comedian; "Hollywood Revels," a revue boasting a stellar cast, the "Three Cossacks," a novelty offering, and Pat Kennedy, Ben Bernie's unmasked tenor. Audrey Sieber returns to her post as mistress of ceremonies.

* * * *

Marion Davies and Gary Cooper appear in the costellar roles of "Operator 13," a thrilling spy story of the War Between the States, to be offered as chief feature of the bill at Loew's Fox Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. Jean Parker, Ted Healy, Henry Wadsworth, Russell and the Four Mills Brothers are prominent in the support. Richard Boleslavsky directed. Frank and Milt Britton and their lunatic band headline the vaudeville. Short sound subjects and Prof. Lampkin's overture will complete the bill.

* * * *

Getting back on its Friday schedule of openings, at least for the time being, RKO-Keith's, beginning tomorrow, will present as its screen feature for the week "The Crime Doctor," in which the principal roles are played by Otto Kruger, Karen Morley and Nils Asther. The story hinges upon the developments growing out of a carefully planned murder. William Frawley and Judith Wood are cast in strong supporting roles. Short-reel subjects and RKO News of the World will augment the program.

* * * *

Adapted from the New York stage success by Elizabeth McFadden, "Double Door," a thrilling drama of selfishness and treachery, will be revealed on the screen of the Metropolitan Theater for the week beginning tomorrow, with Mary Morris, "the season's meanest woman," in her original role. Anne Revere also will appear again in the part which she created on the stage. The supporting cast includes Sir Guy Standing, Evelyn Venable and numerous others. The supplementary program includes a full newsreel, Gertrude Neisen in "Darling Enemy," a comedy; Edgar Kennedy in "In-Laws Are Out," and Alexander Woollcott's "Mr. W.s Little Game."

* * * *

The popularity of "Sadie McKee," the Vina Delmar story, adapted to the screen with Joan Crawford, Franchot Tone and Gene Raymond in the pivotal roles, has occasioned the continuation of the engagement of this metropolitan story through a second week, beginning tomorrow. Esther Ralston, Gene Austin, Zelda Sears and other veterans of the stage are important members of the cast. A Charley Chase comedy and added short reels complete the entertainment.

Returning one of the most picturesque productions of the season to F street, for the week beginning tomorrow, Loew's Columbia Theater will offer as its foremost screen attraction "Viva Villa," the much-discussed film based on the life of Pancho Villa, famous Mexican revolutionist. Wallace Beery is star of the picture, supported by Leo Carillo, Fay Wray, Katherine DeMille, Henry B. Walthall, Stuart Erwin, Joseph Schildkraut and hosts of others. Short subjects and Paramount News will round out the bill.

Testimony Finished In Harriman Trial

New York, June 14 (AP).—Testimony was completed late today in the Federal Court trial of Joseph W. Harriman, former president of the Harriman Bank & Trust Co., and Albert Austin, former executive vice president, charged with misapplying funds and falsifying bank records.

Summations will be given Monday. The trial started a month ago.

"I Recommend Both, Suh!"

"Aged by the Calendar—Not by the Clock"

Bourbon quality doesn't just happen. You can't get it by passing a law or building a distillery or printing a label. You must start a long, long time ago. That's why Anchorage and Tom Hardy are favorites of connoisseurs among the inexpensive Bourbons. There's 62 years of continuous high quality back of them.

Anchorage is 100 proof straight whiskey. Not as old as Kentucky Tavern but made the same way.... Tom Hardy is a "blend" of Glenmore quality straight whiskies. Not as old as Old Thompson but made the same way.... Two very likable products priced low. Try them for your own satisfaction.

Paris Picking 1937 Fair Site On Seine Banks

Famous Trocadero Garden May Have to Go to Provide Space.

Paris (U.P.).—The site for the World Fair scheduled here for 1937 has been chosen in the center of the city, extending along the banks of the Seine in the vicinity of the Trocadero and the Eiffel Tower.

If the plans, as now drawn up, are completed and approved by municipal authorities, the famous Trocadero gardens will have to be destroyed to make way for the temporary buildings.

To finance the fair, the state plans a subsidy of 15,000,000 francs and the City of Paris 285,000,000 francs, which will be recovered by a 700,000,000 franc lottery, resembling the national lottery, with tickets to be sold concurrently in 1936.

The Trocadero Palais was built in 1878 by Davioud and Bourdais for the World's Fair. It is one of the largest auditoriums in the world, and today houses the Musee d'Ethnographie and the Musee de Sculpture Comparee. From the Palias of the Trocadero magnificent gardens outlined by enormous trees extend to the river on the right bank and continue after crossing the Pont Alma on the left side of the river to the Eiffel Tower, also a part of the previous exposition.

The City of Paris is offering three portions of ground cleared by demolishing old fortifications, three and a half hectares in size. The Department of the Seine will likewise hand over the Orangerie in the domain of Sceaux and 11 hectares of the Park of Sceaux for the horticultural exhibits.

Girl Scouts Plan Benefit At Tulip Hill

Flathers Open Historic Maryland Estate Tomorrow.

Group of Capital Women to Be Hostesses at Function.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Flather will open their historic estate, Tulip Hill, in Anne Arundel County, Md., tomorrow afternoon from 2 until 7 o'clock, for the benefit of the Girl Scout Scholarship Fund.

Tulip Hill is 6 miles south of Annapolis and looks out on West River, which is at the foot of the garden terraces. A long driveway leads from the public road to the house and brings the visitor to a portico with tall pillars supporting a triangular canopy. The name Tulip Hill is derived from a grove of towering tulip poplars on the estate.

The garden doorway is covered by a shell portico, supported on carved brackets, with a carved finial finishing the peaked roof, which has been widely copied. The stone steps are worn with time and though they have been sedulously repaired, do much to emphasize the age of the house. The gardens are one of the cleverest examples of restoration in Maryland.

Built Like Fortress.

Tulip Hill is built like a fortress. Its great chimney pillars are at least 6 feet square at the foundations in the cellar and most of the great joists and beams, as sound as iron, measure 14 by 20 inches and range in length up to 60 feet.

The old wine vault is still to be seen in the cellar and under the right wing is the dungeon where the Galloway slaves were thrust for punishment. Samuel Galloway, the builder of Tulip Hill, was a member of the considerable group of friends who came to Maryland after Penn's colony in Pennsylvania had grown to flourishing proportions, some settling on the Eastern Shore and some in the vicinity of Annapolis.

Samuel Galloway's grandmother had been an accredited preacher of the sect and one of the plain little meeting houses, characteristic of the faith, stood a quarter of a mile from Tulip Hill. There Samuel Galloway went each first day to pray.

Family History.

Samuel Galloway married Anne Chew, sister of the famous Benjamin Chew, of Philadelphia, and Tulip Hill was built to celebrate the birth of her first child. To one of the daughters, Mary Tulip Hill descended, becoming the portion of the next generation to her daughters, one of whom married Francis Markoe and the other Col. George W. Hughes. At Mrs. Hughes' death Tulip Hill was sold to Henry M. Murray, of Ivy Neck, a relative. It now belongs to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Flather.

In Gen. George Washington's diary he mentioned stopping at this estate for supper. Paul Wilstach's book, "Tide Water Maryland" mentions Tulip Hill and Swetson Earl's "Chesapeake Bay County" also includes mention of Tulip Hill.

Assisting Hostesses.

Assisting Mrs. Flather tomorrow will be Mrs. Charles McNary, wife of the Senator from Oregon; Mrs. Robert Carey, wife of the Senator from Wyoming; Mrs. Warren Austin, wife of the Senator from Vermont; Mrs. Warren Barbour, wife of the Senator from New Jersey, all of whom are associate members of the District of Columbia Girl Scout Council; Mrs. Harry H. Woodring, wife of the Assistant Secretary of War; Mrs. William J. Flather, jr., Mrs. Stanley Rinehart, Mrs. Frederick Brooke, Mrs. Corcoran Thom, Mrs. Charles D. Walcott, Mrs. Oliver O. Kuhn, Mrs. Gerrit S. Miller, jr., commissioner of District of Columbia Girl Scouts; Mrs. William F. Crosby, camp committee chairwoman; Mrs. Charles S. Hamlin, Miss Mary McQuade, Mrs. Sidney Taliaferro.

Others who are expected to attend are Mrs. Joseph Bradley, Mrs. E. Goring Bliss, Mrs. Horace H. Westcott, Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. George Burnham, commissioner of Girl Scouts in San Diego, Calif., and wife of Representative Burnham; Mrs. Proctor Dougherty, Mrs. Martin Jones, Mrs. J. Miss Avis King Becomes Bride Of Mr. Despain

Miss Avis Aileen King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew A. King, of Washington, and Mr. Silas Leland Despain, son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Despain, of Anabel, Mo., were married at 8 o'clock last evening in the Full Gospel Tabernacle. The Rev. Harry V. Schaeffer performed the ceremony.

The church was decorated with palms, summer flowers and ferns. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Isabelle Guyon sang, "O Promise Me," and Miss Eunice Collier sang, "I Love You Truly."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an eggshell satin gown, made with a high neck, long sleeves and a long train. Her tulle veil was held in place with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white brideroses and lilies of the valley.

Miss Clara Grayce McGovern, the maid of honor, wore orchid satin and a large picture hat to match and carried pink roses. There were four bridesmaids, Miss Dorothy Wedding, Miss Margaret White, Miss Gertrude Allison and Miss Margaret King, sister of the bride. They wore rainbow pastel gowns of blue, green, yellow and pink crepe with large picture hats and bouquets of matching shades.

The little flower girl, Eunice Johnson, in crisp, pink organdie, carried a silver basket of rose petals. Mr. Victor A. Jones, of Lanham, Md., was best man and the ushers were Mr. Presley Wedding, Mr. Kenneth M. Malone, Mr. Jerry W. Breeden and Mr. Clifford Scheritzer.

After the wedding there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Mrs. King, attired in a blue-flowered chiffon was assisted by Mrs. William Gamble, wearing yellow chiffon; Mrs. Raymond W. King in blue lace, and Mrs. George W. Alwine, in flowered crepe. The house was decorated with summer flowers. There was a large, white wedding bell over the refreshment table.

After the reception the bride and bridegroom sailed on the S. S. Somerset for a trip to Miami, Fla. Upon their return they will reside at Clarendon, Va. The bride's traveling costume was of blue taffeta with accessories to match.

The out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond W. King, of Huntington, W. Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Munson, of Providence, R. I.

Mr. Goodman Weds Miss Sylvia Straus

The marriage of Miss Sylvia Prince Straus, daughter of Mrs. Sydney W. Straus, to Mr. Henry S. Goodman, jr., son of Mrs. Henry Goodman, of Portland, Ind., took place yesterday morning at 11 o'clock at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Col. and Mrs. Julius I. Peyser, at Wardman Park Hotel. Dr. Abram Simon performed the ceremony in the presence of a small group of relatives.

The bride, who was unattended, was gowned in a chartreuse garden frock, with which she wore a large hat, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Following a wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Goodman departed on a motor trip, and upon their return to Washington will make their home at the Argonne Apartments. Mr. Goodman, a graduate of the University of Indiana, has resided in the Capital for several years.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Henry S. Goodman and Mr. J. Emerson Goodman, mother and brother of the bridegroom, and Miss Daphine Scott, all of Portland, Ind.

A Drinking Set For Travelers Is Handy Thing

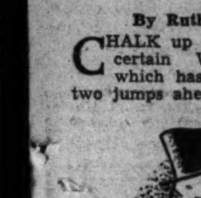
By Ruth Ann Davis.

CHALK up another point for a certain Washington store which has a way of keeping two jumps ahead of its customers' needs. Instead of waiting for requests and inquiries about merchandise, they see to it there's a supply before the demand.



It's the sport shop this time that has scored a point. And they've done it with the neatest, handiest spiffiest little drinking set a person could ask for. There've been drinking sets before very much like it, but none so complete and convenient for the sum of $2.95.

The first thing that meets the eye is a conservative black leather case, fastening on three sides with a zipper. An inside survey reveals a half pint bottle and four whiskey glasses. Fastened to the top is a combination corkscrew and bottle opener.

It can be tucked away in the side pocket of a car, or carried in one's suitcase.

* * * *

This Is Pretty Swell.

Close by this shop is another right in the thick of things with a sale of nail polish and remover. Prices here have collapsed. Not so long ago a most attractive package of polish and remover was selling for $1.65. At present it is tempting no end of shoppers at 59 cents. A bottle of polish alone used to be $1—a glaring contrast to its present cost, 39 cents.

This is really a sale that demands the attention of every one versed in the art of shopping. And shopping, when it becomes an art, is largely an appreciation of true shopping values.

At this time, these products are recognized as very good, indeed. The polish is a liquid which dries immediately, leaving a sheen which is even more brilliant the second day. It's absolutely harmless, resists soap and water, and never breaks the nails.

* * * *

Instead of Stockings.

The stockingless vogue is all right, in fact it's very fine, providing those who indulge take painstaking efforts to make their legs and feet as attractive as they can be. So many feel that after a depilatory and pedicure there's nothing else to be done.

But there is. The skin should be rubbed lightly with a certain "beauty film" which gives a wonderful smoothness and delightful color. It covers up all kinds of blemishes, and completely hides unattractive veins.

Just a little will go a long way; the tube is apt to last the whole summer. Use it on legs and feet and arms and shoulders, too. It comes in complexion shades that enable it to blend with natural skin tones, and leave no line of demarcation.

* * * *

Remarkable Lipstick.

Lipsticks are constantly undergoing improvements, becoming more indelible—and perfected in color. But as a general thing they are more or less in the same shape, and are maneuvered in the same fashion. Now—however, there's a different type, a permanent lipstick with a permanent point. Instead of having the wide top opening, there's a small hole through which just the right width of rouge emerges. It's necessary to turn up no more than the thickness of a playing card for each application.

No need to use your finger for shaping—the rounded tip of the case serves spendidly.

A lipstick could scarcely be more economical. This one can neither break nor pick up pits of powder and tobacco crumbs. And it takes such a little bit at a time, and that little bit lasts so long! Although it needs no other recommendation, it might be added that it is not drying, even is said to contain beneficial ingredients.

* * * *

Pizgah Pottery.

Pizgah is the name of a very special pottery made "way down South." For five generations the methods have been passed from father to son in the Stephen family. They turn out little at a time and send only a small amount away for outside sale. Each piece, however, is carefully molded, baked and glazed. The colors range from deep mulberry, verging on a grape shade, to real sea green.

Although there are many different sizes and shapes of vases, pitchers and jugs, the individual sugar and cream sets are coming in for the most attention. They're worth a trip to town to see.

* * * *

Napkin Rings.

Summer vacationists who take to cottages in the spirit of "ain't nature grand" are apt to find paper napkins a rustic touch and an economic relief.

But the man in the case might object. Some men have complexes about paper napkins. If so, the cottage housewife may buy herself a pack of the little vari-colored napkin rings in a downtown store, and keep each napkin separately with an eye toward longer usage. They come six in a cellophane package, 50 cents.

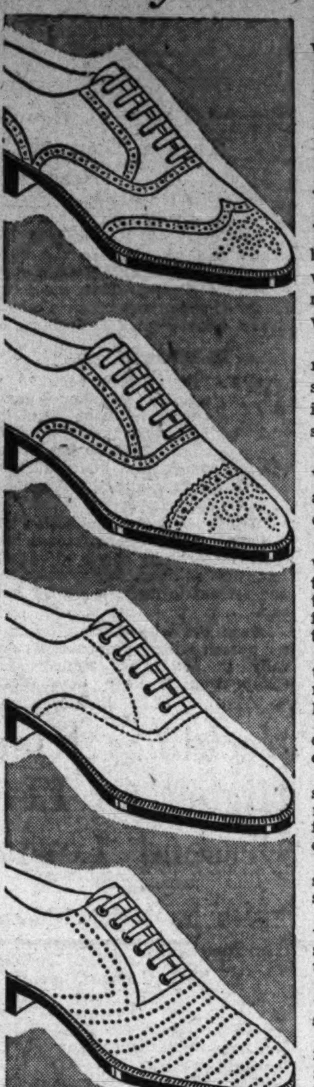
White Shoes Go With Gray or White Slacks



Wing-Tipped Footwear of Buckskin Rates High With Men.

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, June 14—White flannel slacks, striped serge slacks, deeptoned gray and biscuit color slacks . . . they are what men are wearing this summer. And with them they are wearing white sport shoes.

The white shoe which most men wear is the wing-tip shoe, shown in the top illustration. This is made of soft, comfortable buckskin and is liberally perforated.

Next in popular choice is the white buckskin shoe with straight tip, as shown in the second illustration. This usually has a perforated medallion decoration on the toe cap.

Both these types of white shoes can be worn by any man, whatever his age and destination.

The third-in-importance white shoe is favored more by younger men, though it has considerable following among the sportier ones of the older generation.

There are some other white shoes which get off the beaten track this summer. Notable among them are the ventilated ones . . . shoes with punched-through perforations which cover practically the entire shoe surface.

Men who have a fetish for comfort say they find these ventilated shoes a boon on hot days . . . that their feet are allowed to breathe and that considerable moisture is absorbed by the air passing through the perforations.

One of these is shown in the fourth illustration. Another interesting shoe has a thick crepe sole and plain toed blucher uppers. You'll sometimes hear this called the jai-alai shoe and this name indicates that it is a shoe for active service. It is illustrated in the last sketch.

(Copyright, 1934.)

Men's shoes of the types described are available in Washington in all the better men's shops and department stores.

Lamb Is a Good Meat for Warm Weather, Light and Adaptable; Expensive Cuts Are Fine but Shoulder Can Be Made as Delectable and "De Luxe."

By Susan Mills.

MARY'S LITTLE LAMB may have been a delightful escort on the way to school, but it would have been a more delightful morsel on the dinner table.

Lamb is a good hot-weather meat. Light, deliciously flavored and adapted to many purposes, it is a boon to the housewife.

Lamb Shoulder de Luxe.

Have the shoulder boned but not rolled. Wipe with a damp cloth. Sprinkle the inside of the pocket with salt and pepper. Fill with a savory bread dressing made according to any favorite recipe. Sew the edges together. Rub salt, flour and pepper over the outside.

Place the roast on a rack in an open pan without any water. Sear for 30 minutes in a hot oven (480 degrees F.). Then reduce the oven temperature to 300 degrees F. and cook at this temperature until done. It will require from two and a half to three hours.

Apricot Sauce.

Take 2 cups cooked apricots, juice and fruit. Rub some of the apricots through the colander; reserve some halves for garnish. Add ¾ cup sugar; put on the stove and cook slowly. Baste the lamb with this sauce. Put the remaining apricot halves in to cook with the sauce and use garnish.

The lamb shoulder may be garnished with pieces of glazed apples, prunes, lettuce and parsley in addition to the apricots. Baked onions are the vegetable accompanying the lamb.

Bread Dressing.

2 cups fine dry bread crumbs
2 tablespoons butter
¼ cup chopped celery
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1 sprig parsley, cut fine
⅛ teaspoon celery seed
¼ teaspoon savory seasoning
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper

Melt the butter in a skillet, add the celery and onion, and cook for two or three minutes. Add the ground meat, and stir until the juice evaporates and the meat browns slightly. Then add the bread crumbs and seasonings and stir until well mixed.

Lamb en Brochette.

2 pounds lamb shoulder
½ pound bacon squares
6 tomatoes
3 onions
Salt
Pepper

Have lamb shoulder boned and cut into inch squares of about ½-inch thickness. Slip a square of lamb on a skewer, a piece of bacon, then a piece of tomato, another square of bacon, and so on until the skewer is pretty well filled.

Lay on a cold greased rack and place over live coals or under an electric grill or gas flame. If gas is used, have the skewers about 3 inches from the flame. Sear on all sides, then lower the flame and finish cooking at a reduced temperature. It requires about 10 minutes for the broiling.

Lamb Loaf.

2 pounds lamb shoulder, ground
1 cup bread crumbs
1 onion, minced
½ green pepper, minced
1 egg
1 cup meat stock or milk
Salt
Pepper

Mix all the ingredients thoroughly, and shape into a loaf in a buttered baking dish. Place in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) and bake for 1½ hours.

Lamb a la King.

2 cups cold roast lamb, diced
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
½ cup small button mushrooms
½ cup celery, diced
Current jelly
Salt and pepper

Cut the cold roast lamb into cubes. Cook the celery until tender in the butter. Then add the flour and smooth. Add the milk gradually, stirring until the sauce is thickened. Then add the diced lamb, mushrooms and seasoning. Heat. Serve on toast or in patty shells. Place a cube of currant jelly on top and garnish with a sprig of crisp parsley.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Yellow fever was once the worst menace of American cties as far north as Montreal. This danger was not removed from some of them until 50 years ago. In the late seventies the power of a health department, when yellow fever headed its way, would make Mussolini look like a dish rag. Who remembers the way we went down before smallpox, even as late as 40 years ago?

In the column, Twenty-five Years Ago, in the Chicago Tribune of May 25, 1925, the writer was quoted as prophesying trouble to San Francisco from plague then appearing in the Chinese quarter. About two years later San Francisco lent its ear to the warning. It spent many million dollars before it remedied the situation. These citations carry the impression that health improvements were matters of the long ago.

In 1911 the tuberculosis death rate for the United States registration area was 159. In 1934 it will be 59. In 1911 the rate from typhoid was 21. In 1934 it will not be far from 2.

Coffee Can Be Nice Ceremony If Well Served

Attractively Arranged Tray, Harmonious Accessories Are Necessary.

THE hustle and bustle of American days have a pleasant interlude in the custom of after-dinner coffee. Ever since coffee was introduced into England in the seventeenth century, coffee drinking has signified an hour of leisurely relaxation.

Although the serving of coffee is far simpler than the correct serving of wines, much enjoyment is added in having an attractively arranged tray and harmonious accessories.

First of all, the coffee should be stronger than breakfast coffee. It is prepared in the kitchen and poured into the silver coffee pot just before it is brought in. It is usually served black or with a few drops of cognac to bring out the flavor.

When arranging the tray, the spoons are placed on the saucers with the cups along the front of the tray. The coffee pot is on the right to facilitate pouring, and the sugar bowl, cream pitcher (if desired), and small bottle of cognac to the left.

The coffee cups can be gayer and more individual than the rest of the dinner service. Small and gracefully designed, they can run the gamut of color and pattern from those of traditional lines to the newest of modern ideas. Floral motifs, hunting scenes, gold incrusted or in plain colors, all are equally smart. Milk white porcelain is much in vogue at present.

The tray is placed on a low table near the hostess. The guests usually pass the cups around with the accompanying cigarettes. The table follows the general character of the room. Maple is well adapted to early American rooms; mahogany and teakwood are more formal, and there are some in chromium with removable glass tops if your home is furnished in the contemporary manner.

Sleep Wins Over Church For Students

CLEVELAND, June 14 (U.P.).—Three-fourths of the men students and more than half of the women, of Western Reserve University, would rather sleep Sunday mornings than go to church. They admitted this in a questionnaire designed to determine the religious leanings of students.

The questionnaire revealed that:

Seventy-six per cent of the men and 55 per cent of the women would rather sleep Sundays than attend services.

Most of them believed prayer useful and prayed in a crisis.

Most of them would prefer to be married by a minister instead of a justice of the peace.

They were almost unanimous in their opinion that depression had had no effect on their religious attitudes.

The questionnaire, directed by Marshall Stalley, candidate for a master's degree in sociology, disclosed that most of students attend church on an average of once in a fortnight.

Most of them gave as their chief reason for attending services enjoyment of the sermon, while others admitted they went because of family pressure or because they liked the music and rituals.

What Today Means

"Gemini."

If June 15 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 to 11 a. m., from 2 to 4 p. m. and from 8 to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 6 to 8 a. m., from 12 noon until 2 p. m. and from 5 to 7 p. m.

This June 15 should prove a happy and prosperous day for you. There is a very good possibility of your receiving some money. Business activities have a most promising outlook, and consistent business efforts will reap satisfactory rewards. There will be a great deal of time spent during the day planning social activities, which will possibly culminate in some very enjoyable times over the week-end. Friday, in spite of prevailing superstitions, will be a good day for travelers, and trips are very likely to prove successful. Be careful you do not allow cupidity, or envy, to influence any of your actions, for if you do unhappiness may result. Married, engaged couples, and those in love will be wise not to set up opposition to the suggestions made by those of the fair sex, if they have the slightest semblance of being reasonable.

If a woman, and June 15 is your birthday, a great deal more happiness will be yours if you make a resolution to forego, for the rest of the year, any sharp or sarcastic forms of speech. Your "snappy comebacks" may at times be resented, without your fully realizing it. Soft speech attracts where harshness repels. The many lovable attributes you possess, if made use of, will attract a great deal of love, which will result in joy and contentment. You will be very successful in business, if you learn to keep your temper and tongue under control. If you enter the bonds of matrimony, your happiness will be complete, providing you accord your husband the same treatment you expect to receive from him. Bear in mind marriage is a game of give and take, and each party to it must maintain their self-respect if it is going to be successful.

SLANDER

By Arthur Somers Roche

Three men complicate the life of Martha Blaisdell, New York society girl. Dr. Peter Baxter, a young physician, whom she meets following a taxi accident, is one of them. Gerald Gerrish, her attorney, has advanced her money on her own securities and spread the rumor that he is supporting her. She tells him to sell her bonds and take back what she owes him. Drunk, he accosts her in a restaurant, makes an unpleasant scene, and is quieted only by the firmness of Herbert Cranston, her escort of the evening. Cranston is a jungle explorer, home for a holiday; not content with dealing with the offensive Gerrish in the restaurant, he goes to his office next day. Now go on with the story.

"Meant to call you up, Cranston," said Gerrish. "I've already telephoned Martha. Made a terrific ass of myself last night and wanted to apologize."

"You made more than that of yourself," said Cranston, evenly. "A man isn't an ass when he insinuates evil about a woman. He's a scoundrel."

"But I didn't quite do that, Cranston," said Gerrish evenly. "Martha got an idea in her head that was most unjust to me."

"I doubt if she, or any one, could do you an injustice," said Cranston coolly.

Gerrish flushed, but ignored the interruption.

"I assured her last night that she was wrong. But she refused to believe me. I—well, I am devoted to Martha. I am not merely her business man, not merely the man who handled her parents' affairs during the last years of their lives, but I am her friend. And I brooded over what she said to me. And I drank. And when, dropping in at the Ministry to take my mind off my unhappiness that Martha could so misjudge me, I saw her I—well, I went right up to her and told her——"

"Just to Remind You"

"I was there; you haven't forgotten, have you?" asked Cranston. "I was the man who got up from his chair and took you by the arms and steered you out. I'm the man that whispered to you, very quietly, that if you said another word I'd wring your blackguard neck then and there. You seemed sober enough to understand, Gerrish. Surely you haven't forgotten."

He smiled blandly at the broker and his eyes were frosty.

"And I dropped in just to remind you, Gerrish, that when I said I'd wring your neck—blackguard neck was my exact phrase—if you said another word then, I also meant that I'd wring your neck—blackguard neck—if at any time in the future you said one word in any way derogatory to Miss Blaisdell. Do I make myself exceedingly clear? I wouldn't want you, for your own sake, to misunderstand me. I say wring your neck and I mean wring your neck. And that's all I have to say to you, Gerrish."

Protest Offered.

He turned and started toward the door.

"Oh, I say, Cranston," cried Gerrish, "you can't talk to me that way."

Cranston wheeled instantly.

"But I have talked to you that way, Gerrish. And I assure you that I can continue talking to you that way, or in any way that I choose. Only, I've wasted all the words I intend to waste on you. And if you are wise, Gerrish, you won't speak to me again, here, or ever. Good afternoon."

He waited, standing there grim, almost vicious-looking. Gerrish's eyes lowered. His lips moved but no sound came from them. Quietly, no sign of triumph on his features, Cranston left the office.

Outside, he took a taxi to his house on Murray Hill. Fashion had deserted that district for several years and then, in the habit fashion has, it had almost furtively returned. The old Cranston house, on Thirty-ninth street, a few doors from Fourth avenue, was dwarfed by the towering office buildings in the neighborhood.

Hated to Believe.

Cranston's sister, Letty, had cabled him, in the height of the boom days, an extraordinary offer for the place. "You'll never get a better," she had told him.

"I hope I don't," he had replied, "because I might be tempted to sell and I never intend to."

It was altogether too big for a bachelor; but it would be a bully home for a man and wife; the old nursery upstairs could easily resound again to the cries of romping children. What gorgeous times he and Letty had had there in the days gone by.

Then he felt himself crimsoning. Good lord, what sort of silly daydreams were these! About a girl, too, concerning whom unpleasant rumors were abroad. Of course, they weren't true. * * * But Brink Towler, who was fond of Martha—Brink Towler thought they were true. Oh, he denied it, but—his denials did not ring true.

Cranston's shoulders were slumped as he heavily climbed the stairs to his bedroom.

Cranston Telephoned.

Martha Blaisdell yawned deliciously. She stretched luxuriously. Yesterday had been just a bit of Hades added to a week of purgatory. Monday had been hot, Tuesday had been torrid, Wednesday had been blistering, Thursday had been scorching and Friday had been a torment.

And then, shortly after luncheon, Cranston had telephoned. And the day had suddenly seemed livable. Not that her heart beat faster at sound of his voice, but security, a security that had seemed dreadfully far away during the five days just past, seemed close at hand.

She had missed Cranston since last Sunday. Not in the way that one missed a lover, but as one misses a gay companion. Also, with each passing day, the necessity of marriage impressed itself upon her more strongly, and Cranston seemed the only possible—even desirable—answer to that need.

Couldn't Marry Him.

Over and over again she had assured herself that she could not do so mean a thing. She couldn't marry a man whom she didn't love. And then she would remember that Cranston had heard Gerrish's remarks, and that it was extremely doubtful that a man of Cranston's antecedents and outlook would permit himself to fall in love with a girl about whom there was the slightest gossip.

This was a lax generation, but Cranston was not spiritually of it. He would insist upon the impeccability of reputation as sternly as his father or grandfather had done. And the fear that she might not be able to attract him, win him, overshadowed her qualms of conscience.

She had received a telegram from him on Wednesday. Just a line saying that he would drive her down to the Lemming. if she would permit. And she had replied that she would permit.

Cranston Disturbed.

She did not know what an inner struggle Cranston had gone through before he sent the wire. He had arrived in Bar Harbor late on Tuesday morning and his sister met him.

She kissed him, hugged him, and fussed over him all the brief ride to their place on the ocean. Then, shooing the nephews and nieces from Uncle Bert's room—his family disdained the Herbie that his friends had bestowed on him—she eyed him sternly.

"Who's the girl, Bert?"

"Girl? Girl? What the deuce are you talking about? And will you get the devil out of my room, Letty? I want to change into flannels, and how can I do it if you stick around here?"

"I'll shut my eyes and turn my back, brother of mine," she replied. "At that," she went on critically, "you look a bit fat to me in clothes. But never mind that now. I want to know who the girl is."

"Who what girl is?" he demanded. He turned away, fussing over dressing-table things, that she might not observe his faint blush. Letty was a devil! How could she guess—or had Millie or Mrs. Dan or some other of those gossiping females on Long Island told her about his mild attentions to Marthat Blaisdell? He wouldn't put it past any of them to ring Letty on the long-disance and spill, not what they knew, hang 'em, but what they imagined.

"You've been promising for a month to come down here. And when you do come, you wire that you must leave on Thursday. It must be a girl. It has to be a girl."

"And you, being a girl, would have to think exactly that," he said. "No girl at all. Don't know any girl. What are girls?" he asked.

Letty pursed her lips and nodded.

"All right, my dear. But I'll find out. And when I do——"

She left her threat unuttered, and, like the good sort she was, dropped the subject, seeing that it brought him embarrassment, if not slight annoyance.

She produced other girls, charming girls, for her brother that afternoon and evening. But his mind was on Martha all the time. They were pretty figures around Letty's pool, but none so divinely young as Martha's. There were pretty faces, but none to compare with Martha's. There was no charm like Martha's, no quick wit like hers.

But—gossip had smirched her. Of course, it couldn't be true, but even swine like Gerrish hesitated to utter insinuations completely baseless. Of course, he put himself in Gerrish's class by even thinking of crediting the gossip, but——

Sent the Telegram.

He argued with himself all the next day and finally sent the telegram to Martha. And when her reply came that night it somehow distilled all his doubts and left them nothing but trust. He was not absent-minded that night or morning and Letty, who knew that a telegram had come for him, also knew that it must have come from a girl. And she wrote to Mrs. Dan Treman the day after her brother left for New York.

Imagination and Initiative Will Create Jobs Where There Were No Jobs Before

Old-Time Table Etiquette Was a Strict Procedure

By Francis Mangum.

THE youth of today might teach his grandfather to trip a new fantastic. He might teach him to shake a cocktail. But when it comes to modern table etiquette—it's grandfather's turn.

Yesterday Mrs. Isabelle S. Farrington, regent of Chevy Chase School, disclosed a letter written in 1846 by her grandfather, the Rev. John Scudder, in which he lays down "ten commandmants for the table."

When the Rev. Scudder was a young man he read of the inhumane treatment accorded Hindu women in childbirth. He was so deeply affected that three weeks later he set sail with his wife and family for Vellore, India, where he took up practice as the first medical missionary from America.

He was the father of ten sons who also became medical missionaries. While they were in the United States at school he wrote them this letter, beseeching them to be truly "gentlemen of the table."

Eating Is an Art.

"For indeed by beloved sons," he writes, "eating is an art and by no means an incident in life, and nothing so betrays the true nature of a man as does the manner in which he bears himself at table. Therefore, my dear sons, in order that I may make certain you will understand thoroughly the rules by which you may perfect yourselves in this noble art of eating, I shall give you what I am pleased to call the ten commandments of the table, so that when it becomes my privilege to sit at table with you again, I may find you all great men in the business of eating.

"1. Let your procedure to the table be one of dignity and cheer, alway prompt, for he who arrives late at any repast is an offense at once to a good hostess and good food.

"2. Sit humbly and with bowed head during the grace. If you note at times among the scantly bred a tendency to levity, I pray you, my sons, partake not of it, for courtesy to God is surely as necessary as courtesy to one another.

"3. I hope my sons that you understand your napkins and that this third commandment may not find you blushing from ignorance. The napkin must be placed across the knees and never tucked in the bosom or at the neck after the unsightly manner of the underbred. Such behavior protects the clothing at the expense of decency.

Restrain Eagerness.

"4. Remember when you are served that you are not the only guest at the feast and restrain your eagerness to appease your appetite until all others have the same opportunity.

"5. And now my sons I come to a most important commandment which I beseach you to observe strictly. Masticate your food silently and not after the manner of some who draw their soup into the mouth with unseemly boisterousness.

"6. The knife my sons is a dangerous implement and one in no sense intended for use save upon the plate. The Englishman of breeding has often a habit of conveying cheese to his mouth upon the tip of the knife. Well, for the good Englishman, but so far as concerns our own family, my sons, let us eat our cheese in a more seemly fashion.

"7. The technique of the spoon is likewise often misconstrued. You have frequently seen this implement left protruding from the cup in very ugly fashion. I beg you lay your spoon in its accustomed place upon the saucer.

"8. And now we come to the greatest of all considerations, my beloved sons, which is the art of conversation at table, an art within an art, most truly. There are many subjects of conversation which may be used indiscriminately in sundry gatherings, but that around the table is a sort entirely unique, for it must always be greatly cheerful and agreeable, rejoicing in interchange of ideas, but never given over to heated argument or to personalities.

Learn From the Wits.

"These are not unseemly from the points of manners, but indeed they foster bad digestion, which is the most hideous of all ills, so completely does it unfit a man for his life apart from the table. You can learn much, my sons, from reading the conversation of literary wits and geniuses, many of whom developed their intellect and sharpened their mental apparatus by much spirited exchange of views across the breakfast and dinner table. I admonish you, my sons, to make of yourselves past masters in the art of table talk, for then you will be able likewise to choose your table companions and your dinners.

"9. Although in our own family, my sons, we do not habitually partake of wine, nevertheless, do not refuse to allow your glass to be filled at the table of your host and hostess. Thus your failure to conform to their custom will not be evident and since the wine is untouched it need not be wasted.

"10. With the close of the feast, my sons, comes the fingerbowl which, though is often omitted in establishments of limited service, is nevertheless an elegant custom. However should your hostess neglect to supply you with this luxury, I beg you do not under any circumstances make a fingerbowl of your mouth, for this is the height of ill breeding and can never be forgiven."

Patriotic Group To Attend Fete In Maryland

Daughters of Colonists and D. A. R.'s to Go to Tercentenary.

THE Daughters of the American Colonists will make a pilgrimage today to St. Mary City, Md., to attend the Maryland Tercentenary celebration and to present gifts to the old statehouse.

Mrs. Joseph S. Calfee, of St. Louis, newly elected president, will present a walnut council table dating back to the early seventeenth century. Mrs. John F. Little will donate, on behalf of the District of Columbia Chapter, a tulip poplar chest over 200 years old. an antique chair will be given by Mrs. John Wineman, of Arkansas.

* * * *

Mrs. Little, State regent of the local chapter, will lead the pilgrimage. Mrs. David D. Caldwell is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Among those who plan to attend the dedication and remain for the pageant to be held in the afternoon and evening are Mrs. Little, Mrs. Harry C. Grove, National vice president; Mrs. David D. Caldwell, National recording secretary; Miss Lilian A. Norton, National registrar; Mrs. A. Y. Casanova, honorary vice president; Mrs. Sol Lansburgh, Miss Helen Stout, Miss Mary Ourslei, Miss Annie Alexander, Mrs. J. Edgar Smith, Mrs. William B. Sinnot, Mrs. Elmer Curry, Mrs. William H. Wagner and Mrs. Lillian Sansford.

A program of educational and patriotic work for the coming year is being planned by the Daughters of American Colonists, under the direction of Mrs. Calfee.

D. A. R.'s to Attend.

MEMBERS of the District of Columbia chapters of the D. A. R. join with the Maryland Daughters for the Tercentenary Cruise to St. Marys City, today, tomorrow and Sunday. The steamer State of Virginia has been chartered for the trip.

Among the passengers will be Mrs. William Louis Dunne, historian general of the D. A. R., and Mrs. R. Winston Holt, State chairman of publicity.

* * * *

The retiring and newly elected officers of the Capt. Molly Pitcher Chapter, of the D. A. R., will be entertained at luncheon by Mrs. Joseph Stiles Wall, former regent, at 1 o'clock today at the Chevy Chase Club.

U. S. Eats Candy At a Great Rate

NEW YORK, June 14 (Spl.). The country is eating more candy, and confectioners point to this as a sign of business recovery.

Reports at the National Confectioners Association meeting here show that in the first four months of this year candy sales rose 28.2 per cent above those of a year ago. These figures were given by Clarence E Birgfeld, who is in charge of confectionery surveys for the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the United States Department of Commerce.

Candy prices on the whole ar lower this year than last, officials of the association say, and point out that the "indications seem conclusive" that Americans have resumed their candy eating habit with enthusiasm.

PILLAR TO POST

A Lonely Pioneer.

THERE is much bemoaning these days that there are no frontiers, yet it wasn't so long ago exquisitely blonde Mrs. Emil Hurja pioneered in a rough, raw country and had thrilling experiences that remarkably paralleled those of Sabra in Edna Ferber's story of the opening of the Southwest, "Cimmarron."

Like Sabra, she carried with her as a bride, silver and embroidery, traditions of a gentle upbringing. She went into the oil fields of Texas during the boom of a decade ago where her new husband hoped to make fame and fortune by founding a newspaper.

* * * *

Over a jerkwater railroad, she and her trunks filled with a dainty trousseau were escorted into the mushroom town of Breckenridge. There the groom led her to the apartment that boasted the only bathroom in the town. There it was, a room lined with sheet tin and with showers in lieu of a tub. But no water to supply it, and in order to get a real bath it was necessary to go 100 miles.

* * * *

Fire, the ever-present menace in such communities swept the tinderbox town, consumed the trunks, her husband's small newspaper plant and all of the large hopes and ambitions of their early married life. But the disaster didn't daunt them. Shortly thereafter they went to New York where he was recognized in Wall street as a financial analyst in gold and oil.

From the Breckenridge "apartment" to one on Park avenue was just one of the jumps that Mrs. Hurja seems to have been periodically taking throughout her life. She was raised in the Yukon, where her father was a mining promoter, and one of her earliest recollections is playing about the cabin of Robert Service.

With her father, she journeyed into far countries, and many of the mining engineers she knew as a child she met later in other distant parts of the world, as in the nitrate fields of Chile, the tin mines of the Malay Peninsula and in Singapore.

* * * *

She was sent to school in Seattle and worked on the Post-Intelligencer there. She has been an apprentice in a repertoire company in New York. She has studied the piano in a serious way. In any one of a half-dozen directions she might easily have made a name for herself. But the lode stone of home, husband, love has always drawn her back from any career she might have pursued.

* * * *

Her chief concern now is keeping her husband from becoming too absorbed in the work he loves, the promotion of the interests of the Democratic party. Home-making in Georgetown has been a joy to her.

Eastern Rumor Factory.

NEXT to living in Washington Mrs. Cabot Coville prefers Harbin, Manchuria. The daughter of Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, whose husband is the consul general at this Far Eastern post, says it is a most exciting place to live, what with bandit raids, kidnapings and rumors of war. It is the center of the section where war is momentarily expected to occur between Soviet and Japanese forces. At the present time, she writes her mother, Harbin is a rumor factory.

* * * *

Her cousin, Miss Nancy Bell Fairchild, is sailing shortly from Vancouver to visit her. With Miss Fairchild is Mrs. Pierrepont Moffat and her two small children.

* * * *

She has accompanied her father on several trips into dangerous zones, but this is her first visit to the seething Far East, where in addition to the prospect of war there is the ever-present danger of kidnaping by bandits. One of Mrs. Coville's friends was recently held for ransom. A charming country, indeed.

Golfers Turn Magnanimous; Men Allowed

National Women's Country Club Opens Its Course to Male Players.

By Ware Torrey.

WASHINGTON men are having coals of fire poured on their happy heads. After years of telling their wives and sisters that a good golf course was for men, and after years of reluctant endurance before a feminine invasion of their fairways, they are now experiencing the women's revenge.

The women have a golf course of their own now—one of the finest nine-hole courses in the country—at the National Women's Country Club. With hospitality and a generous burying of old scores, they invite the men to play on their course.

It goes on record that the men are eager for invitations. The course is an interesting one to play, with many holes that have an individuality that is challenging.

Tournaments are on schedule for the summer, and among those planned is a husband and wife tourney.

Drop in by Plane.

Golf is taken in the modern manner at the club, for when the members speak of dropping in at the club for lunch and golf, they may literally mean dropping by plane. Miss Edith Edwards, of Pittsburgh, frequently flies over from her home, bringing her guests for luncheon and golf by the air route.

The estate and club house of the old Montgomery Country Club, high over the Potomac and looking toward the Blue Ridge Mountains, makes an attractive setting for entertaining. Luncheons and dinners, teas and debutante balls, keep the rooms bright with guests.

One of the rooms that has warm personality is the old English grill, with its warm oak paneling, beamed ceiling and broad bar, and with the wooden three-cornered bench in front of the fireplace. This is a favorite place for parties of the younger members.

Librarian Entices Young Into World of Literature

Specialist in Children's Books Has Been Installed in Public Library to Advise Parents and Offspring on Reading Problems.

WITH school out, children under foot and mothers on the verge of hysteria—what to do? The problem is solved for both parents and offspring by the modern public library.

There are books, worlds of them, that fill the chasm of unplanned days with wonder and delight, that transform a lop-sided existence into one of useful rounded beauty. To top this, such a dream is realized as only mothers threatened with summer madness might conjure up. A specialist has been installed in the Washington Public Library to direct and advise parents and children on the problem of books.

"No longer need reading be limited in its appeal to the studious child," said Miss M. Ethel Bubb, assistant director of children's work. "For there are books now, and methods, too, of enticing even the poor reader into the fields of great literature.

"Begin with a child's own interest. For reading must never be forced or dull For the mechanically inclined child there are splendid books on how to make things. There are 'how to sew' books, 'how to cook' books, 'how to build' books. These, inevitably and subtly lead into other books and gradually cultivate an appetite for reading.

Correct Versions.

"If the child is imaginative, there are fairy tales, the traditional literature of the Nations. Here the problem is to select for the young reader the correct versions, the translations that retain all the character and quality of the originals. What child will not revel in Grimm's Fairy Tales, Steel's English Fairy Tales and the beautiful Irish fairy stories of Ella Young?"

When should a child become acquainted with literature?

"As soon as he is able to listen and look," said Miss Bubb. She took out a beautifully illustrated book of Mother Goose Rhymes. Even here, she said, care must be taken to select the correct versions, as much of the character of these jingles is lost in improper translation.

"The art work in children's books now is a big factor in stimulating his interest in reading," she continued. "The picture books now available for the small child are an invaluable contribution to the first steps to literature."

A child's book should carry conviction above all things, Miss Bubb pointed out. An admirable example of this is the Peter Rabbit series. Another is the Golden Goose Book.

What books are most important in the education of the young child?

There are certain ones, say the authorities, which if a child misses, he will regret to the end of his days.

For instance, what life would be complete without a knowledge of the Mother Goose Rhymes, Aesop's Fables, Grimms' and Andersen's Fairy Tales, "Arabian Nights," "Peter and Wendy," "Alice in Wonderland," "Peter Rabbit," "Gulliver's Travels," "Tom Sawyer," "Treasure Island, "Swiss Family Robinson?"

Amity Between Two Americas Hope of Colombian Senora

A SMALL person with a big ambition is Senora Maria Ordonez de Seeley, native of Bogota, Colombia, who is visiting in Washington. The senora aspires to bring about a warmer friendship, a larger understanding between North and South America.

"It is only natural I should want the two continents to be cordial to one another since I belong to both of them," said the dark-eyed South American yesterday. She is the widow of the late Capt. E. A. Seeley, of the United States Navy, and has lived in the United States for several years.

Senora Seeley has attended a number of Pan-American conventions as Colombia's official delegate. She has also spoken many times before the Pan-American Student Forum in the United States, always with the idea of explaining North American customs to newcomers here.

"Explanation is all that's needed," said the daughter of two countries. "We South Americans are perfectly willing to observe your customs. We think they are very nice. But sometimes we can't help wonder why you do certain things, why you have certain laws. I try to explain those things to my people. And I try to explain to you North Americans why the South Americans live the way they do. It's all a matter of understanding. When people really understand each other they have a good basis for friendship. It is the same with countries, with continents."

Senora Seeley was the first Colombian girl to become a graduate nurse. After her graduation from the Georgetown University Hospital she traveled all over the United States and Mexico, giving lectures on public health. She has always been especially interested in child care and recently offered her services without pay to President Roosevelt for the Warm Springs Institution in Georgia.

She hasn't yet had an answer from the President.

Although Odds Against Them, Many Girls Successful at It

Careful Check of Knowledge and Abilities Necessary, Then a Thorough Survey of the Particular Needs of the Locality.

Failures? The girls who leave schools and colleges this June and find no place in the overcrowded business and professional world? Not at all. Many a girl finding no ready-made job has made one for herself. This, the fourth of a series of articles on careers for women, tells of girls who have seen a gap no one was filling, and have created a business or position to fill the vacant space.

By Elizabeth Perrow.

EVEN the cheery remarks of professional Pollyannas have some truth in them. And the girl who is despondent over not finding a job, may find she has passed through her darkest hour, and that her failure is really the beginning of her career.

For the girl with imagination and initiative will not long remain idle. She will carefully check up on herself, her abilities, her possessions, and set out to make a job for herself.

Every girl who starts a business for herself will not succeed. Truthfully the odds are against her. Competition is keen these days, sales resistance high, small businesses are failing daily.

Yet one woman may fail in running a tea room, and another one will come along and make a success of it in the same shop. What are these seemingly intangible qualities that cause success?

In the first place they aren't intangible at all. They lie within the girl herself.

Imagination.

The first is imagination. The woman who saw babies letting their slippery bottles fall, and the milk getting cold before it was consumed, and who invented a "bottlecozy" to make the bottle easy to hold and keep the milk warm, used her imagination. She also started a paying business. Competition never hurts the imaginative mind.

And the second thing that makes a business succeed is a thorough knowledge of the business before starting it. The woman knowing nothing of business management or dietetics will not make a success of a tea room because she has a good recipe for lemon pie. She must know marketing, food planning, how to work with employes, how to make friends out of customers.

And the woman who starts a new business must be willing to start on a small scale and gradually expand. She is silly to spend a large sum of money in equipment before she finds her business will pay.

In her book, "Make Your Own Job," Violet Ryder tells the story of 20 women who have successfully established little business, or have created positions for themselves.

Job suggestions for all types of girls are offered. The girl with a talent for research makes good money looking up ancestors for women who want to join the Colonial Dames and the Daughters of the American Revolution. The girl with a vagbond spirit and past beauty parlor experience, gets out of a job and opens up a traveling beauty parlor in which she tours the country and works at the same time.

Even in this age of machinery and ready-made clothes, the woman with a talented needle possesses a miniature gold mine.

One such woman made a specialty of outfitting small children. She promised to keep any child well dressed for a certain amount yearly, and soon built up a paying business.

Another had a talent for mending, and started a "mend shop" in a small town. Her friend made paper flowers, and sold them to restaurants, theaters, and department stores. Making stuffed toys with whimsical expressions started out as a hobby for one woman and ended up as a profitable business.

Expanded Businesses.

And those stories of women who have begun candy making or doughnut baking in their own homes, and have retired with a good income a few years later are not so improbable as they sound. One elderly woman, left an orphan with only a recipe for doughnuts, opened up a small, neat shop when she sold two doughnuts and coffee for ten cents. A few years later she was selling doughnuts to retail firms all over town and expanding her own business.

"I just love shopping" one girl thought, "and so many people hate it. Why wouldn't shopping service pay?" She sat down and made out a list of the things a shopper should know, decided she should have a thorough knowledge of the current price of a large number of articles, that she should have good taste, be a good judge of quality, that she must be an authority on where to buy almost anything, of any given quality at the best price. Having decided she possessed these qualities, she set out to learn her business thoroughly. She advertised in the papers, contacted the hotels, build up a business among rural people, and established a successful shopping service.

Women who like furnishing houses often make a success at furnishing and subletting apartments. Others clean houses by contract.

"The worst thing about having a baby is all the washing," thought one woman. "Why wouldn't a baby laundry be successful?" But how to begin. This woman went to the bureau of vital statistics and asked to be sent a list of all the new babies. The need was a real one The service good. The business was soon successful.

So things aren't dark at all for the girl who has no job. She should sit down and take a thorough inventory. Nine times out of ten she will find she can turn one of her talents into money.

Courageous women are never stopped by traditional barriers to success. Read in tomorrow's Post of the women who are forging ahead in new professions.

Necklines Rise Higher Or Else Descend Lower

There's No Middle Course for Smart Dresses This Season.

PARIS.—Necks are back in the news with midseason showings.

What the smart woman wears this summer is up to her, for high necks have gone higher than they have been in many summers, and low necks are slashed lower than those seen for several seasons.

Low necks are newer, for they sound the note of novelty contrasting with the long-popular high line, and stylists say they are the leader of a coming vogue.

Low square decolletages are the newest thing by night, giving a "grand dame" air to satin or crepe frocks. Deep decolletages, slashed as low as they can be worn, mark several lace evening gowns, while others cling to the line which is high in front and low in the back.

Hug the Throat.

The high day necks, though they do not climb up on the throat as some winter models did, are higher than those usually seen in hot weather, for they often hug the base of the throat. There are plain round necklines, simple square necklines coming close to the sides of the throat and almost covering the collarbones, and slightly oval necklines with jabots down the front.

Round shirred necklines are back in the picture—something old converted to something new. Lanvin puts them on black afternoon frocks lavishly printed in white and green flowers. Lelong adds them to striped blouses so the shirring gives a sun-ray effect, and Bruyere finishes them with a band of yellow grosgrain ribbon to match the flowers which pattern a dark crepe.

Pleated Frills.

One designer varies the picture by adding six-inch knife-pleated frills to the round necklines of flowered crepe afternoon frocks or double pleated Pierrot frills of taffeta to restaurant dinner dresses. Necklines pulled to a point on one side and draped necklines cupping fairly close to the throat in front are also seen. A gold dagger, anchor or diamond dart is often caught somewhere in front.

Other afternoon frocks go in for lower decolletages in squares and Vs which fall away from the throat, while another group is draped rather high in front and cut away daringly in the back. When necklines are cut away, they are slashed down in back or front rather than on the sides.

Annual Bay State Fete Set at Olney Tomorrow

Mr. Frank E. Hickey, president of the Massachusetts Society of Washington, announces the society will bring its social season to a close with an outing, dinner and dance at Olney Inn, Olney, Md. The outing is an annual affair celebrating the Battle of Bunker Hill.

Outdoor sports and bridge are on the program for the day. Dinner will be served at 5:45 o'clock, with dancing from 8 until 11 o'clock. Buses will leave the south side of the Treasury Building at 2:30 o'clock. All Bay Staters are invited.

Stocks Turn Heavy as List Sinks 1.2 Points

New York, June 14 (AP).—Bullish interest in stocks ebbed today and the market turned soggy. Traders awaited developments in the threatened steel strike and for the grain market to find firm ground again.

Timidity of buyers increased on announcement of the German suspension of service on its external debt, although German bonds were the only securities to show any response of moment to the news.

Losses to 4 Points.

Losses of fractions to about 4 points predominated among active issues at the finish. The extreme loss was in Auburn Auto. It broke through 6 to the lowest price it has touched since it was listed on the exchange on additional liquidation following omission of the dividend on the stock earlier in the week.

U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and other steel shares sagged fractions to more than a point. Their losses were in line with the general list. Doubt that the steel strike actually would take place continued to grow in Wall street.

American Telephone, American Can, General Motors, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Loew's, Corn Products, Montgomery Ward, J. I. Case, New York Central, Westinghouse Electric and other key issues dipped fractionally to more than a point.

Drop to 79.8.

The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 selected stocks dropped to 79.8, off 1.2 points.

Rail shares moved lower with the market, despite estimates that car loadings last week had recovered to almost the year's top figures. Early firmness in public utility shares was attributed chiefly to the impression made by figures on power output, which has been holding near the best levels of the year.

Member bank reserve balances increased $108,000,000 as the Treasury continued to spend part of its free gold. Member bank excess reserves were estimated to be around $1,800,000,000, a new record high. Many gold stocks increased $30,000,000 and money in circulation dropped $29,000,000 to $5,313,000,000.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Trading was inactive on the stock exchange today. The outstanding feature was the sharp fluctuation and marked weakness in German bonds following the moratorium announcement. Gilt-edged securities and industrials were firm, while home rails and oil shares were easier. Transatlantic stocks and gold shares moved irregularly. The closing was irregular.

Paris—Prices on the bourse were slightly lower, speculators being cautious, but gold mining issues were firm. Dawes and Young issues remained stationary, the German moratorium being anticipated. The closing was steady.

Berlin—The boerse opened with a good tone and the moratorium announcement made by the Reichsbank caused a further improvement, with some issues advancing as much as 5 points. The closing was firm.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Note of Secretary Hull on Interallied Debts Is Almost the First Realistic Approach by the United States to This Problem.

By Ralph West Robey.

No one seems to have any hope that Secretary Hull's latest note on the inter-allied debts can have any tangible result in the way of our receiving payments. Obviously there is much basis for such a point of view. Nevertheless this note represents almost the first constructive approach that has been made to this problem. It may be that receiving payments in kind is not feasible, but if it is not, one may be sure there is no practical manner by which the debt can be paid.

Such a conclusion is justified on the grounds that the only possible alternative to receiving payments in goods is for the foreign nations to ship us gold and at present they are not in a position to do this. Even in the best of circumstances, in fact, a country is hesitant about using gold for such payments. There are two reason for such an attitude: First, such a shipment except in the case of gold-producing countries comes out of the banking reserve; secondly, the mere fact that such shipment is necessary indicates an unfavorable position in the international balance of the country.

Gold Must Be Conserved As Reserve for Credit.

In other words gold, as the standard money metal of the Western World, has to be husbanded by nations as a backing for their credit structures. If they permit it to flow out of the country in payment of a continuous unfavorable international balance, it is only a matter of time until their entire monetary system breaks down. In consequence it has been recognized for a century that when the exchanges start running against a country and gold starts to leave, it is imperative to take steps to correct the trend. The customary method for doing this has been for the central bank to increase its rate of interest.

Such an increase, supported by such other general credit control policies as fitted the conditions of the particular country in question, always were sufficient before the World War to keep the various nations in balance. It was not, it should be emphasized, a question of the gold standard being automatic in its operations, but of the gold standard providing an extraordinarily sensitive barometer of changes in the underlying economic conditions. So long as the standard was used in this manner it operated satisfactorily.

We Abandoned Gold as A Guide to Our Policy.

Trouble with the gold standard came by refusing after the war to use it as a barometer. As a part of the New Era economics of those days it was decided that we should have "rational" credit control—a kind of planned credit economy, if you please. The result was that shipments of gold were permitted to take place in such volume and without underlying corrections that in due time the United States, as the premier creditor nation of the world, accumulated so much of the metal that other nations did not have enough left even to meet the temporary unfavorable balances. Under such a condition it was inevitable that there should be a breakdown.

As yet, of course, there has been no correction of this huge concentration of gold in this country. Foreign nations, with the exception of France, still are running on a gold reserve that is too low for their credit needs. It would be extremely shortsighted of us to continue to demand payment of the interallied debts in terms of gold and thereby still further aggravate the present maldistribution of the metal.

If we are to receive payment, therefore, it must be in kind. If we are unwilling to accept the goods, all idea of payment may just as well be abandoned. The debtor nations, again with the possible exception of France, neither are willing nor can afford to ship gold to us, and were they to do so it merely further would complicate and delay lasting world recovery.

Federal Bonds At New Highs; Others Lose

New York, June 14 (AP).—U. S. Government securities gave another display of strength in today's bond market, while corporation loans were moderately irregular and German obligations, after early heaviness following the moratorium declaration, rallied substantially.

Due to an exceptionally heavy turnover in the Federal section, transfers totaled $17,306,000, par value, against $15,253,000 yesterday.

Federals at New Highs.

Banking and institutional demand for Treasury issues pushed ten of these up to new highs for the year. Federal transactions amounted to some $8,100,000, the largest total in several months. Home Owners Loan 3s and Liberty 3½s also established new 1933 peaks, with the former the most active in the list at a gain of 13-32ds of a point.

Home Loan 4s were the next liveliest with a gain of 2-32ds. Advances in the Treasury Department ranged from 1-32d to 18-32ds.

The run on the governments was highly encouraging to the financial district when it was considered that the Treasury tomorrow will increase the supply of long and medium-term loans by about $1,300,000,000 and the Government's total debt will be raised by some $850,000,000.

German Section Drops.

The German section dropped rather sharply upon publication of the news from Berlin that interest payments on all foreign debts, including the Young and Dawes plan issues, would be suspended for six months.

That this action had been largely discounted was indicated by later recoveries in most of the Reich loans. The Dawes Plan 7s came back nearly 4 points from their low at the day and finished with a net gain of 2 points. The Young 5½s also ended ½ point higher after dropping to a new low for the year along with the 7s.

While prime domestic corporation bonds held around their best levels of 1933, or longer, secondary groups generally reflected the heaviness of stocks.

Moderate Gains Recorded.

Moderate gains were recorded by some issues of American Telephone, Santa Fe, Atlantic Coast Line, Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania, Cleveland Union Terminal, Kansas Gas, McKesson, M.-K.-T., North American, North American Edison, Pennsylvania, Union Pacific and Western Union.

Losers of around a point included some loans of United Drug, Postal Telegraph, Philadelphia Reading Coal & Iron, New Haven, Nickel Plate, New Orleans Great Northern, Missouri Pacific, Hudson & Manhattan, St. Paul, American Water Works, American & Foreign Power and American Chain.

Curb's Prices Drift Lower In Quiet Sales

Utilities End Fairly Steady as Trading Drops to 129,000 Shares.

New York, June 14 (AP).—The curb market underwent a quiet downward revision in price levels today. Utilities ended fairly steady, but fractional recessions predominated at the close in metals and oils. Some specialties lost around a point or more.

The list was quiet all day and dealings dwindled in comparison with previous sessions this week. Transfers approximating only 129,000 shares, against 152,000 yesterday.

Safety Car Heating virtually canceled its 3-point rise of yesterday, while General Tire & Rubber and Bunker Hill & Sullivan each sagged on small offerings. Gulf Oil closed off 1¼.

Technicolor, an isolated firm spot, recorded a new high for the year. American Gas & Electric and Tech Hughes were steady, but fractional setbacks occurred in Lake Shore, Hiram Walker, Electric Bond & Share, Humble Oil, New Jersey Zinc and Swift & Co.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Structural steel—Bookings of fabricated material during May fell short of the volume of the seven preceding months, but were approximately 30 per cent ahead of the same month last year, the American Institute of Steel Construction reports.

Flour—Prices have been lowered 10 to 15 cents a barrel in the New York metropolitan district. Consumers are limiting purchases apparently in the belief that further concessions may be made.

Wool goods—Market reports indicate more active buying of men's wear overcoatings and suitings by clothing manufacturers in Chicago, Baltimore, Rochester and other centers. The New York clothing trade is less prominent in the buying movement.

World Trade Developments

Gains and losses are evenly balanced in the Italian situation, better employment conditions and improved agricultural outlook being offset by the unusually heavy adverse trade balance and reports of accumulation of inventories.

Prolonged drought in Germany makes it probable that this year's grain crop will be 25 per cent under last year's.

Economic conditions in the Irish Free State continue at the same low level; although agricultural conditions are good, live stock prices remain depressed.

The increase in Latvia's import surplus has caused a rather disturbing increase in demand for exchange, but the situation is now being eased by the receipt of deferred payment for earlier lumber exports.

Improvement in Estonian conditions has become more marked, although agriculture is suffering from low export prices necessitating reintroduction of export subsidies.

After a temporary setback during the civil conflict of February, Austrian industrial production has recovered somewhat though remaining below the January peak; the foreign trade balance has been somewhat less unfavorable this year than last.

General conditions in Rumania have failed to show noticeable gain and prolonged drought which was not broken until the middle of May caused considerable agricultural damage.

Industrial conditions in Canada continue fairly good, but the critical agricultural situation in the prairie provinces makes the outlook uncertain.

Trade and industry in Australia are continuing to expand and building is more active than last year, despite a recent slight recession.

The adverse agricultural situation in Japan has been accentuated by the further decline in raw silk prices.

Business sentiment in the Philippines has tended to improve with the close of the election period and progress is generally anticipated.

Gossip of New York Markets

By Claude A. Jagger.

New York, June 14 (AP).—The first provisions of the securities exchange law which will be clamped down on the stock exchanges of the country will make it a serious Federal offense to manipulate prices after July 1.

After that date, pool operators will face a fine of $10,000 and imprisonment for two years, as well as liabilities for losses which they may have caused purchasers of securities, if convicted of having rigged the market.

Margin requirements on stocks bought after enactment of the legislation will not become effective until October 1, and various other provisions which will require time to work out, such as filing information concerning listed corporations with the new commission, will not become effective for some months.

But the Federal ban on market manipulation, one of the most important and popular provisions of the new legislation, will face professional operators in little more than a fortnight.

There has been considerable discussion in Wall street as to whether the old-time operators will find some way to beat the law, perhaps through such a device as trading from a foreign center. The powers of investigation given the commission are so wide, however, that the prevailing opinion is that loophole seekers will eventually come to grief.

Pool operations, insofar as creation of artificial values is concerned, have been banned for years by the New York Stock Exchange, but inasmuch as it held power only over its own members, it could not trace the circuitous activities of clever operators.

I. T. & T. Nets $898,767 in First Quarter

Postal Company Reduces Losses to $176,709; Income Climbs.

New York, June 14 (AP).—Consolidated net income of the International Telephone & Telegraph Corporation for the first quarter totaled $898,767, equal to 14 cents a share, compared with a loss of $854,251 in the same quarter of 1933.

Gross earnings for the period amounted to $20,047,077, contrasted with $15,539,852 last year, and operating expenses were $16,012,578, against $13,550,922 a year ago.

Declines	421	243
Unchanged	121	178
Total issues	628	716

Stocks—Bullish sentiment ebbed and averages sank 1.2 points. Traders waited on the strike outcome and steadier wheat prices. Sales dropped in volume to 632,486 shares.

Bonds—Government securities displayed strength and some issues touched new highs. Demand for Federals drove the sales to $17,306,000. Domestic corporate issues lost and the list averaged two-tenths of a point lower at 86.4.

Curb—Prices drifted lower in quiet trading. Utilities held fairly steady, but fractional recessions predominated in metals and oils. Sales volume decreased to 129,000 shares.

Wheat—Stop-loss selling caused heavy declines in wheat, but a final rally trimmed losses to 1⅝ to 2⅛ under Wednesday's finish. Corn closed higher. July wheat sold at 94 to 94⅛; September, at 94⅞.

Cotton—Prices were pushed lower under scattered selling. July sold at 11.94. The general market declined 17 to 20 points. October closed at 12.19.

Sugar—Raw sugar was 10 points higher at 2.90; refined sold at 4.65.

Dollar—The United States dollar was steady on foreign exchanges. It stood in New York, with reference to other currencies, $5.05 to the English pound; 6.61 cents to the French franc, and 38 cents to the German mark.

The Dollar Abroad

(Associated Press.)

The dollar was steady in foreign exchange markets yesterday. Trading was featured by another dip in the German mark in response to the declaration of a complete moratorium on Reich debts for six months.

The dollar was easier in London at 5.05 to the pound, compared with 5.04 on Wednesday. In New York, sterling held unchanged at $5.05.

The price of gold in London declined 5 pence to 137 shillings 8½ pence a fine ounce (equivalent to $34.75). Bars valued at about $6,307,810 changed hands, reportedly for shipment to New York.

The dollar lost a centime in Paris, closing at the equivalent of 6.61 cents to the franc, compared with 6.60½ cents on Wednesday. The franc remained at 6.60¾ cents in New York.

German marks fell off .17 of a cent in New York to 38.03 cents. Foreign exchange circles held to the belief that the moratorium only postponed the date of official devaluation.

Wheat Trims Losses After Heavy Slump

Closing Rally Cuts Declines to 1⅝ to 2⅛ Cents; Corn Is Up.

Chicago, June 14 (AP).—Dominated by big stop-loss selling, the wheat market crashed today to 14⅛ cents a bushel under 1934 top quotations, attained hardly a fortnight back.

Heavy liquidation of weakly held speculative lines of wheat took place, attributed in the main to disturbing effects of rapidly increased marketing of newly harvested wheat Southwest.

The fact that announcement of the German moratorium happened to coincide and was an unsettling influence on other commodity markets, received no special attention among grain traders, European grain quotations having long been far below an export parity with prices in the United States.

Following an extreme tumble of 7⅝ cents compared with yesterdays high point, wheat rallied at the last, closing nervous, 1⅝ to 2⅛ under yesterday's finish; corn, ⅛ off to ½ up, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 12 cents.

Altogether disproportionate buying support was a feature in the wheat market from the outset. This relative scarcity of purchases added to the cumulative effect of concentrated offerings thrown into the pit, and, although rallies at times were promoted by strength of corn values, the wheat market suffered its worst collapse shortly before the day's final transactions, and showing an overnight drop of more than 3 cents.

One of the most disturbing factors was posting of Enid, Okla., dispatches telling of arrival of 248 carloads of newly harvested wheat in that city today.

Rains in the Northwest both sides of the Canadian border, together with Winnipeg advices of improved crop conditions for wheat in the Canadian prairie provinces had a notable contributing bearish effect. Weakness of wheat was further explained in some quarters by statements that the market had recently advanced unduly as a result of purchases based on strength displayed by corn.

It was added that these purchases appeared to have reached a point where sustained speculative interest on the part of the general public was necessary to support wheat values, and that this interest had failed to develop, leaving the market in a vulnerable overbought condition.

Corn and oats showed stubborn resistance to selling pressure but were unable to escape entirely the results of bearish action of wheat. Prospective increased crop injury by chinch bugs was regarded as having become a major market influence as to corn, with expected Government relief buying of corn also a factor.

Provisions were responsive to soaring of values in the hog market.

U. S. Exports Of Cotton Fall During May

Shipments Total 285,000 Bales; Decrease of 26 Per Cent.

Exports of raw cotton from the United States during May amounted to 285,000 bales, valued at $17,298,000, compared with 387,000 bales, valued at $23,947,000, exported in April and 592,000 bales, valued at $25,787,000, exported in May, 1933, according to an analysis of export figures by the Textile Division, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce.

Exports for May represent a decline of 102,000 bales, or 26 per cent, from the April total, which is greater than the average seasonal decline of 12 per cent for the past ten seasons. May, 1933, exports showed a counter seasonal increase of 35 per cent instead of the normal decline.

For the ten months of the cotton season, August to May, inclusive, the exports aggregated 6,769,000 bales, valued at $373,076,000, compared with 7,113,000 bales, valued at $277,245,000, for the corresponding ten months of last season, representing a volume decline of 344,000 bales, or 5 per cent, but a value increase of $95,831,000, or 35 per cent.

Commodity Prices Still Point Upward

New York, June 14.—Changing factors in supply and demand have created considerable irregularity in commodity prices during recent weeks, although the trend, in the aggregate, continues toward higher levels. This is confirmed by the Standard Statistics Co. daily commodity index which, last week, attained a new peak for the recovery period. There is every indication that a further gradual rise will be registered during the near term.

The disparity between raw material and retail prices is being steadily corrected, partly through actual lower retail quotations and partly through increased firmness in many of the more volatile materials. While no abrupt advances are expected in commodity prices, the line of least resistance still appears to favor gradual strength.

Despite increased costs imposed under NRA policies, strong consumer resistance to high prices is forcing reductions in retail and wholesale quotations of many manufactured products ranging from textiles to more durable goods, such as automobiles. Store advertising again is laying stress on price, after having emphasized quality earlier in the season. As a result, retail price trends currently are running counter to the gradually rising level of raw materials.

Cuba Exports Less Sugar in Half of 1934

New York, June 14.—Cuban exports of sugar since the beginning of the year to June 9 totaled 680,675 long tons raw sugar value as compared with 878,990 long tons during the similar period last year, a decrease of 198,315 tons, or 22.6 per cent, according to advices received by Lamborn & Co.

To the United States there were shipped 431,173 tons as against 621,788 tons for the same period in 1933, a decrease of 190,615 tons or approximately 30.6 per cent. The shipments to June 9 this year approximate 25.4 per cent of the quota allocated to Cuba by the U. S. Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

To other destinations, principally United Kingdom, France and Canada, the exports amounted to 249,502 tons, as contrasted with 257,202 tons shipped during the same period last year, a decrease of 7,700 tons, or approximately 3 per cent.

Sugar stocks in Cuba on June 9 approximated 2,497,000 tons, while on the same date last year 2,703,000 tons were on hand.

Cotton Prices Pushed Lower Under Selling

July Closes at 11.94 as General Market Falls 17 to 20 Points.

New York, June 14 (AP).—Cotton was lower today under realizing and scattered selling promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and reports of more favorable weather in the Eastern belt.

October contracts after selling off to 12.24 at the start, rallied to 12.31 but eased again and closed at 12.19. The general market closed barely steady at net declines of 17 to 20 points.

The opening was easy at a decline of 8 to 112 points. Offerings were absorbed by covering and trady buying, but after selling up from 12.00 to 12.06 for July and from 12.35 to 12.41 for December, prices turned easier. Houses with Liverpool and continental connections were among the sellers.

Trading tapered off later in the morning and fluctuations were small. Bulges seemed to meet increased offerings and the lowest prices of the day were reached in the late trading, with July selling off to 11.94 and December to 12.30 at the close.

The opinion was expressed in some quarters that some of the continental selling at the opening may have been due to the German transfer moratorium announcement, but while this feature was commented upon as a possible cause of uncertainty, it was not generally emphasized in connection with the day's price movement.

The report of the Census Bureau placing domestic consumption for May at 519,765 bales compared with 620,561 bales was a shade below the forecast, but without apparent effect on the market.

Exports today, 19,251, making 7,118,510 so far this season. Port receipts, 5,108. U. S. port stocks 2,691,270.

Daily Oil Yield Averages Up In Past Week

Week's Production Climbs to 2,571,400 Barrels as States Report.

The American Petroleum Institute estimates that the daily average gross crude oil production for the week ended June 9, 1934, was 2,571,400 barrels. Daily production for the four weeks ended June 9 averaged 2,507,850 barrels. Comparative figures are set out below.

Reports received from refining companies owning 89.7 per cent of the 3,760,000-barrel estimated daily potential refining capacity of the United States indicate that 2,305,000 barrels of crude oil daily were run to the stills operated by those companies and that they had in storage at refineries at the end of the week 34,437,000 barrels of finished gasoline, 6,945,000 barrels of unfinished gasoline and 103,559,000 barrels of gas and fuel oil.

Gasoline at bulk terminals, in transit and in pipe lines amounted to 18,329,000 barrels.

Cracked gasoline production by companies owning 95.6 per cent of the potential charging capacity of all cracking units averaged 432,000 barrels daily during the week.

Daily average crude oil production (figures in barrels): Note: The figures indicated below do not include any estimate of any oil which might have been surreptitiously produced.

Bank Rate Unchanged.

New York, June 14 (AP). — The Federal Reserve Bank of New York announced no change today in its rediscount rate of 1½ per cent.

Daily Credit of Reserve Banks Averages $26,000,000 Lower

The daily average volume of Federal Reserve bank credit outstanding during the week ended June 13, as reported by the Federal Reserve banks, was $2,444,000,000, a decrease of $26,000,000, compared with the preceding week and an increase of $235,000,000, compared with the corresponding week in 1933.

On June 13 total Reserve bank credit amounted to $2,472,000,000, a decrease of $3,000,000 for the week.

This decrease corresponds with decreases of $78,000,000 in Treasury cash and deposits with Federal Reserve banks and $29,000,000 in money in circulatoin and an increase of $30,000,000 in monetary gold stock, offset, in part, by increases of $108,000,000 in member bank reserve balances and $22,000,000 in nonmember deposits and other Federal Reserve accounts and a decrease of $4,000,000 in Treasury and National bank currency.

The system's holdings of bills discounted declined $1,000,000 and of United States Treasury notes $13,000,000, while holdings of Treasury certificates and bills increased $13,000,000.

Changes in the amount of Reserve bank credit outstanding and in related items during the week and the year ended June 13, 1934, were as follows:

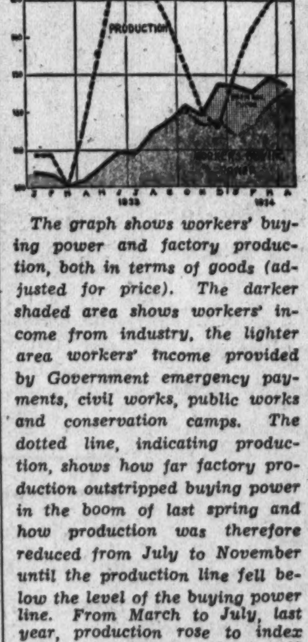
England and France Again Buy Securities in U. S. on Balance

New York, June 14.—England and France during May continued to purchase American securities on balance on New York market according to records compiled by the foreign department of Fenner & Beane, members of New York Stock Exchange. The figures show that France has purchased our securities on balance continuously since last September, while British investors have been steady buyers since May of 1933, regardless of the intermediate fluctuations of the markets, upward or downward.

Purchases by English investors during May, the firm's records show, exceeded sales by approximately 26 per cent. Purchases for the account of French investors exceeded sales by about 5 per cent during May, which was the smallest excess of purchases over sales on balance reported for any month since the beginning of 1933. Total transactions handled for the account of French investors in May were larger than reported for either April or March.

For the first five months of the current year the records show that England's purchases on balance exceeded sales by 82 per cent and that French purchases exceeded sales by 28 per cent.

Production and Buying Power



The graph shows workers' buying power and factory production, both in terms of goods (adjusted for price). The darker shaded area shows workers' income from industry, the lighter area workers' income provided by Government emergency payments, civil works, public works and conservation camps. The dotted line, indicating production, shows how far factory production outstripped buying power in the boom of last spring and how production was therefore reduced from July to November until the production line fell below the level of the buying power line. From March to July, last year, production rose to index 167, buying power only to 109 (March, 1933—100). By November, an adjustment had been made; buying power was up to index 119, production had fallen to index 121. Again this spring production outstripped buying power, but to a much smaller extent; in April, the buying power index was at 128, production, 153. The goods produced but not yet bought are now largely in the hands of wholesale and retail dealers, awaiting further buying power. (Sources: Production—Federal Reserve Board unadjusted index of factory production. Buying power—Compiled by A. F. of L. from Government figures covering 106 industries and emergency work payments; weighted by cost of living index of National Industrial Conference Board.)

Small Coins In Demand; Mints Rushed

An extraordinary demand for subsidiary coins, which has almost completely exhausted the supplies in the Federal Reserve banks, the United States Treasury and the mints, has sprung up within the last few months. The demand is far out of proportion to any that has ever occurred before at this time of the year in the whole history of the mints.

Shipments of subsidiary coins, including half dollars, quarters, dimes, nickels and cents, from the mints amounted to $3,603,000 from January of this year to May 31, which exceeds by more than $1,300,000 all the shipments in the same five months for the 13 years prior to this year. Shipments in the five months, January to May, inclusive, were but $2,477,000 from January 1, 1921, to December 31, 1933.

The extraordinary demand for "change" has put the Philadelphia mint on a three-shift basis and coinage operations have been speeded up at the Denver and San Francisco mints.

The greatest demand is for quarter-dollars. Shipments in 1934 from the mints of quarters alone up to May 31 have amounted to $1,465,000, while for the same months in the 13 prior years shipments of quarters had amounted only to $435,000.

Goodyear Tire & Rubber Pay Rolls Make Jump

Akron, Ohio, June 14 (AP).—Salary and wages of employes at the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. showed an increase of 90 per cent during the first five months of 1934 as compared to the same period last year, President P. W. Litchfield announced today.

"During the months January to May, inclusive, the pay roll was $11,486,000, compared to $6,037,000 a year ago. At the present time, Litchfield said, 19,000 men and women are employed, compared to 14,000 a year ago. This represents an increase of 36 per cent.

Commodity Purchasing Policy

New York, June 13.—Purchasing recommendations as to various important commodities have been made by the Standard Statistics Co. of New York as follows:

Advance purchasing justified around current levels: Brick, butter, cheese, coal, cocoa, coffee, copper, eggs, fuel oil, gasoline, linseed oil, lubricating oil, rayon, scrap steel, sugar, tin, and zinc.

Loans to Brokers Climb $14,000,000

(Associated Press.)

Loans to brokers and dealers held by weekly reporting Federal Reserve member banks in New York City amounted to $1,011,000,000 during the week ended June 13, representing an increase of $14,000,000 for the week.

Loans for the week ended June 14, 1933, totaled $782,000,000.

In making the announcement, the Federal Reserve Board gave the following detailed distribution of the loans over the three weeks dealt with:

Borrowings To Fall Despite U. S. Debt Rise

Total Will Be Decreased $3,000,000,000 Below Roosevelt Plan.

(United Press.)

Despite a rise in the public debt this week to an all-time record, Treasury figures showed that borrowings for the current fiscal year will fall $3,000,000,000 under estimates set by President Roosevelt.

With last week's $800,000,000 security sale, the Federal Government was estimated yesterday to have piled up a record debt of $26,951,036,216, compared with the war-time peak of $26,596,701,648 in 1919.

The current debt is expected to be around $26,800,000,000 by June 30, compared with President Roosevelt's estimate of a debt of $29,847,740,711 on that date.

Curtailed expenditures under the huge budget estimates were responsible for the less than anticipated borrowings. Despite the curtailed expenditures, however, the outpour of Federal funds this fiscal year already have reached the highest level in any peace-time year in history.

Expenditures for the current fiscal year are estimated roughly at $7,000,000,000 and income at $3,000,000,000, leaving a deficit of $4,000,000,000.

President Roosevelt in his budget estimate placed expenditures for the current fiscal year at $11,000,000,000 and income at $3,250,000,000, which could make a deficit of $7,750,000,000.

The $4,000,000,000 deficit has been made up by borrowings which will have boosted the Government's debt of $22,500,000,000 to $26,800,000,000 at the end of the current fiscal year. The excess of $300,000,000 borrowed has increased the Government's cash by that amount.

Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., said that last week's financing, through which the Government borrowed $800,000,000 in new money, would, together with the Treasury's $1,100,000,000 in unobligation cash, take care of the Government's fiscal needs until after Labor Day.

The $1,100,000,000 present cash, proceeds of the $800,000,000 security sale, and an estimated more than $1,000,000,000 in income of the Federal Government over the summer months would give the Treasury nearly $3,000,000,000 in cash to carry through the next few months.

World's Fertilizer Use Registers Sharp Gain

Consumption of chemical fertilizer throughout the world after touching a record low in 1932 recovered sharply in 1933 to the point where the volume applied to the world's arable land was in excess of average consumption for the five-year period 1924-28, according to C. C. Concannon, chief of the chemical division, Department of Commerce.

While data are incomplete it is possible to make some comparisons of the trend of consumption in 1933 compared with the period 1924-28. Of the three chemical elements considered in the purchase of fertilizer—nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium—nitrogen alone registered a gain. Potassium changed only slightly and phosphorus declined.

Use of Cotton Increases to 519,765 Bales

(Associated Press.)

Cotton consumed during May was reported yesterday by the Census Bureau to have totaled 519,765 bales of lint and 63,878 bales of linters, compared with 512,703 and 67,822 in April this year, and 620,561 and 80,442 in May last year.

In consuming establishments, 1,421,428 bales of lint and 270,110 bales of linters, compared with 1,584,746 and 302,450 on April 30 this year, and 1,392,209 and 322,034 on May 31 last year.

In public storage and at compresses, 6,570,664 bales of lint and 36,375 of linters, compared with 7,101,941 and 37,788 on April 30 this year, and 7,323,146 and 55,274 on May 31 last year.

Exports during May totaled 284,764 bales of lint and 9,365 bales of linters, compared with 386,594 and 15,573 in April this year, and 591,647 and 10,288 in May last year.

Cotton spindles active during May numbered 25,891,366, compared with 26,450,750 in April this year and 24,609,908 in May last year.

San Paulo To Pay Weekly On Coffee Loan

New York, June 14.—Speyer & Co. and J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, U. S. A., fiscal agents for the State of San Paulo 7 per cent Coffee Realization Loan of 1930, have been authorized by the San Paulo government to announce that, in lieu of the remittances required under the loan agreement, the Government, in conjunction with the Brazilian federal authorities, has arranged that the amounts required under decree No. 23,829 of the federal government of Brazil, in respect of interest and amortization on the State of San Paulo 7 per cent Coffee Realization Loan of 1930, shall be remitted by weekly installments.

The first remittances for the sterling and dollar tranches have been received. These and future remittances will be applied in accordance with the above decree.

In connection with the above, an adjustment of the stocks of pledged coffees has taken place and such stocks are now as follows: 1,911,893 bags government coffee, 9,702,316 bags planters' coffee. It is not proposed to release any coffees against the weekly remittances for amortization mentioned above, but further adjustments will be made at half-yearly or yearly intervals.

50 National Banks Allowed to Reopen

New List Brings Number Since Start of Year to 273.

(United Press.)

Fifty additional national banks with deposits of $37,488,000 were licensed to resume business during May, bringing reopenings since start of the year to 273 and released deposits to $236,039,000, the Treasury reported yesterday.

Another 12 banks, including the First National, of Glendale, Calif., and the National Bank of Commerce, of Lorain, Ohio, had reorganization plans approved by the Comptroller of Currency and were placed in a position to reopen.

Of the 1,417 national banks which failed to reopen after the March, 1933, banking holiday, all except 126, with deposits of $126,148,000, have been reorganized, placed in voluntary liquidation or placed in receivership.

German Foreign Trade of Cotton Textiles Gains

German imports and exports of cotton textiles in the first quarter of the current year both registered volume increases as compared with the corresponding period of 1933, according to a report from Consul J. F. Huddleston, Dresden, made public by the Commerce Department.

Imports in the January-March period of 1934 amounted to 129,503 metric tons as against 126,304 tons in the corresponding period of 1933. These imports, it is pointed out, consist of raw and worked cotton, cotton yarn and thread, manufactures of cotton yarn and clothing, millinery and other sewn articles of cotton.

Indians Used Bones to Make Precious Gems

Production of Synthetic Turquoise Revealed by Explorer.

New York (U.P.).—Evidence that the Incas possessed a secret formula for transmuting human bones into turquoise, a gem stone, recently has been unearthed by Manual B. Flores, a Peruvian archaeologist.

According to Flores, the transformation was achieved through the application of both heat and chemicals. Tubular ovens in which part of the process was accomplished, found in Ayacucho, a city situated about 10,000 feet up in the Andes, upon research indicated that the bones were put into three large terra-cotta containers in deep beds of clay, with minerals and charcoal added.

Arranged about these containers were placed a number of tubes, one of which permitted the gases resulting as part of the combustion to escape, while through the other tubes air was pumped into each container, providing the air necessary for the fires.

Along with these ovens, Flores discovered minerals used in producing the requisite turquoise hue. The most highly valued turquoise is a robin's egg blue. Chemically it is a hydrated phosphate of aluminum and gets its color from copper phosphate.

Flores has not as yet subjected one of these particular mineral specimens, which he found, to analysis. It is a blue powder and is known to the natives as bincos. Numbered among these minerals, discovered by Flores, were paira, a red mineral, which today is called cinnabar (sulphide of mercury) and a copper oxide known as llacsa. Together with carvamugui, a yellow stone, and huinzo, the local appellation for lapis-lazuli, these minerals were probably used in producing the synthetic turquoise.

Women Found New Industry

Colorful Bedspreads Help Georgians Defeat Depression.

Dalton, Ga., (U.P.).—Out of the depression has developed a picturesque "million dollar industry" of making candlewick bedspreads in this territory.

Tourists drive along a "bedspread route" for the bedspreads, beautifully made in bright colors, are hung out in the front yards to attract buyers.

To Mrs. W. S. Whitener, living in the western section of Whitfield County, goes the credit for first "discovering" candlewick bedspreads.

Mrs. Whitener had sent some of the spreads to relatives and was surprised to learn that they attracted so much attention in other parts of the country that a market could be found for them. In this section the bedspreads had been made for years as just a pretty cover for the guestroom.

Last year about $400,000 was paid in wages alone. There were benefits in addition to the makers of cloth, yarns and other necessary material, the shippers, the haulers and laundrymen.

Caverns Found In Mine Tunnel

Nevadan Makes Discovery in California Area.

Tonopah, Nev. (U.P.).—A cavern of as yet unknown depth has been discovered in Titus Canyon, 24 miles southwest of Beatty, Nev., in California.

The find was made by Roscoe ("Death Valley Curly") Wright, of Beatty, as he inspected an abandoned 400-foot mine tunnel.

The tunnel taps what appears to be the roof of a great cavern. To descend into the cavern it is necessary to drop 75 feet down a rope. The cavern extends more than 500 feet in depth.

Other caverns of immense size lie below and above the first cavern, Wright reported. The cavern he explored lies approximately 20 feet, from another huge cave, he said. He hasn't pierced the wall separating the two as yet, he added.

The ceiling of the cavern is covered by stalatities of sand-white aragonite—a calcium corbonate containing some borax, Wright said.

Eastman Is Honored By Temple University

Philadelphia, June 14 (AP).—Temple University today conferred the honorary degree of doctor of laws upon Joseph B. Eastman, Federal coordinator of transportation.

Honorary degrees also went to the Right Rev. Philip Cook, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Delaware, doctor of letters; James Merritt Hepbron, managing director, criminal justice commission, Baltimore, Md., doctor of science, and the Rev. John Compton Ball, pastor of the Metropolitan Baptist Church, Washington, doctor of divinity.

Has Original Edison Record.

Chardon, Ohio (U.P.).—An original phonograph record of Thomas A Edison's, into which he whispered the words "Mary had a little lamb," is owned by Mrs. Mabel Wilmot here. The inventor said during his lifetime that the nursery words were the first spoken into the original model. The record resembles a flat piece of tinfoil.

Popular Trip Up Bullneck Run Will Be Repeated by Hikers

Flowers, Swimming and Placer Gold Lure Wanderbirds.

By Robert Shosteck.

Last Sunday's trip to Bullneck Run proved so popular with the 55 members and guests of the Wanderbirds Hiking Club that another trip along both Scott Run and Bullneck Run, swimming included, is planned for this Sunday. Club members and Post readers who missed last week's scenic trip will have an opportunity to see Scott Falls on the beautiful Scott Run, enjoy a swim in the Potomac, and perhaps have beginner's luck by finding some placer gold in the sand, as did Titus Ulke last Sunday. After panning at Anne Gordon Falls for about an hour, Mr. Ulke, a veteran of the Black Hills rush in the nineties, found enough gold flakes in the bottom of his pan to decorate the sides of his vial.

The group will meet in front of The Post Building at noon for the bus trip to Swinks Mill, where the hike begins. The round-trip fare will be 40 cents. Those planning to attend are urged to phone in reservations to be sure of a seat. Call National 4200 on Saturday afternoon or evening.

Starting from the mill, the hikers will follow an excellent trail on the right bank of the creek down to Scott Falls. Here the group will lunch and enjoy a half-hour siesta. Just below the falls is one of the largest stands of hemlock to be seen anywhere near Washington. Along the stream, on rich shaded banks, will be found the tall golden wands of the goat's beard, now in full bloom. At many points along the route the Japanese honeysuckle blooms in profusion. This is one flower which hikers may pluck to their heart's content, since it is considered quite a botanical pest, smothering out many other desirable, but less hardy, native species.

Scott Run empties into the Potomac near Stubblefield Falls, a series of rapids which begin at the end of Herzog Island. The trail follows the river's edge for about a half-mile to Bullneck Run. A detour uphill to the observation tower at an elevation of over 250 feet will afford a wonderful panoramic view of the river valley. Thence the group will follow a dirt road a short distance back, turning right on a trail which leads down toward Lynn's cabin. From the cabin the group will follow the trail to Prospect Rock. This promontory rises to a height of 200 feet and will be a convenient resting place. Half way between the cabin and Prospect Rock is an excellent spring.

Those in the group who plan to go swimming will descend the rock by a precipitous downhill trail. A quiet stretch of the river beneath the rock will be selected as the "swimming hole" unless most of the hikers should prefer to swim again opposite Lynn's cabin.

At five o'clock the group from Prospect Rock will meet the swimmers at the mouth of Bullneck Run for the return trip up the Run. Those who bring along flashlights may explore the abandoned gold mine. They might possibly be rewarded by finding a slumbering bat or miner's rusted tools.

Daisies and Venus' Looking-glass grow in profusion in the fields near the Great Falls road. Both varieties may be picked, since they are not in danger of extinction. The bus will probably reach The Post Building about 7 p. m., in time for a late dinner. Readers interestd in the mineral resources of Washington and in the location of deposits of valuable ores should watch for an article on the geology of Washington to appear in Sunday's Post.

Gasoline Price Cut.

Athens, Tenn., June 14 (AP).—Two oil companies here have reduced the price of gasoline from 24 to 20 cents a gallon following the installation of a city-owned pump. The city is selling gasoline for 20 cents a gallon.

Married Her to Show He Could, Says Bride

Atlanta, June 14 (AP).—Charging her 17-year-old husband married her to disprove assertions of his friends that he could not win her, Mrs. M. Elizabeth Chapman Bell Isle, 16, has filed suit for divorce in Fulton Superior Court.

Her petition stated they were married in Heflin, Ala., November 26, 1933, and that immediately after the ceremony her husband drove her to her home and that they had not lived together.

Sophie Tucker Injured Saving Child From Auto

Brentford, England, June 14 (AP).—Sophie Tucker, American singer, saved a child today from being run down on the main street. Miss Tucker jerked the child uninjured from the path of an automobile but she herself was struck by one of the car's headlights.

One of her legs was bruised but she went on to her work in a motion picture production.

Costumer Divorced On 'Drunkard' Plea

Los Angeles, June 14 (AP).—Charging her husband, Maj. Owen Martin, retired British army officer, with periodical intemperance and mental cruelty, Mrs. Corinne A. Martin, costume designer, today was awarded a divorce.

"Every two weeks he would become intoxicated and stay so for two or three days, and then he would sober up for another two weeks," Mrs. Martin testified, adding that he struck her and twisted her arm.

Fighting Plane Crashes; Parachute Saves Pilot

Buffalo, N. Y., June 14 (AP).—A fighting plane, being tested by the Curtiss Aeroplane & Motor Co., Inc., crashed in Lancaster, Buffalo suburb, today, but the pilot escaped with a fractured arm and leg as he "bailed out" in his parachute.

You can thank Prohibition for this Marvelous Whiskey

But when this slim supply of 16 and 18 year old liquor is gone it's gone for good — so be warned and act now!

Whiskey so rare as this is really "occasion" whiskey — not for the everyday cocktail or highball, but for the unusual occasion

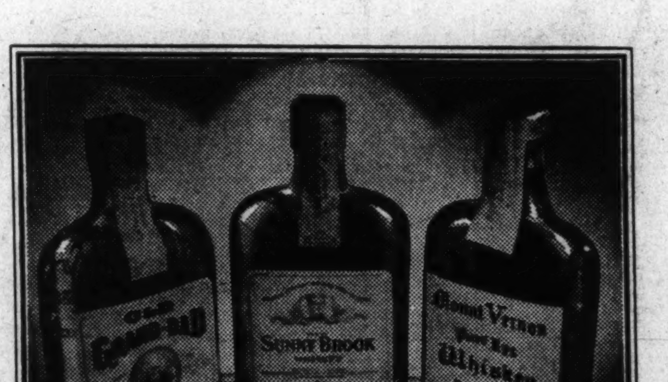
The government permitted this liquor to be held beyond the accustomed 8-year legal limit to meet medicinal needs during the dry regime.

When what now remains of that original pre-prohibition supply is exhausted, it is doubtful if again in your lifetime you will be able to purchase rye or bourbon of such rare excellence and ripe age.

The government, with its pressing need of revenue, will likely again make it mandatory that all liquor be withdrawn from warehouses at the age of 8 years.

How Much Still Exists?

Naturally each year the original stock has been drawn against, so that today only a fraction of these rare 16 and 18 year old whiskies remain.



The famous brands OLD GRAND DAD, SUNNY BROOK and MOUNT VERNON make up the greater part of this special limited stock, but also there are small quantities remaining of HILL AND HILL, OLD MCBRAYER, BOURBON de luxe and BLACK GOLD

We regret we are unable also to include our 16-year-old Old Taylor in this brief list, but the supply has been exhausted for some weeks.*

How Long Will They Last?

We have good reason to believe that within 6 or 8 months at the most there will not be an unsold case of pre-prohibition rye or bourbon in the country.

At the present rate of sale, not only will our own limited supply soon be in private cellars, but also that held by others.

The public, apparently, has suddenly realized that these venerable favorites are fast disappearing from the market — and is acting on this realization.

Certainly at the very moderate prices asked they are prizes that cannot possibly again be duplicated in this generation — if ever.

Broaca Gives 1 Hit; Yanks Lead Race

Ex-Yale Hurler Blanks Browns, 7-0, in First League Victory.

New York Tops Tigers Now by Four Points; Ruth Gets Homer.

NEW YORK, June 14 (AP).—Johnny Broaca, bespectacled product of Yale, pitched the Yankees back into first place in the American League today with a spectacular one-hit performance against the Browns, 7 to 0.

It was Broaca's first major-league victory, although he lost a three-hit game to the Athletics Saturday. Sam West made the only St. Louis blow, a single in the third.

4 Points Ahead.

Cards Win Slugfest; Hold Second Place

St. Louis, June 14 (AP).—Thirty-two hits, including three home runs, a triple and ten doubles rang off the bats of the Cardinals and Braves today as St. Louis defeated Boston, 12 to 9. The victory enabled the Cardinals to remain in second place, ahead of the Chicago Cubs.

Frisch, Delancey and Durocher of the Cardinals hit for the circuit, Durocher's coming in the fifth with the bases full. The ball, hit to center, bounced past Berger and went to the fence.

Sarody Signed On Hunt Club Ring Card

Young Hoff Star, 21, Has Scored 23 Knockouts and Lost None.

MATCHMAKER GOLDIE AHEARN last night signed Harry Sarody, newest lightweight knockout sensation, to appear in the ten-round headline bout at next Monday night's Riding and Hunt Club boxing show.

Sarody is from the stable of "Boo Boo" Hoff, of Philadelphia. He is 21 years of age and has been ranked as the coming lightweight champion of the world by critics who have watched him perform. In 38 bouts he has scored 23 knockouts, won 13 bouts and drew in 2. He has lost none.

Sarody has whipped Johnny Jadick, Lew Feldman, knocked out Buster Brown and Joey Glick. He had Jadick on the floor for a nine count, something Benny Bass was unable to do a little later.

Dodgers Beat Pirates In 10th on Single, 3-2

Pittsburgh, June 14 (AP).—Van Lingle Mungo pitched five-hit ball over the ten-inning route to gain his ninth victory of the season today as Brooklyn turned back the Pirates, 3 to 2.

After Sam Leslie's fumble in the seventh had allowed the home team to tie the score, the Dodger first baseman made up for his misplay by rapping Ralph Birkofer for a double in the tenth and scoring the winning run on Joe Stripp's single.

Dettweiler's Shots Beat Pitt, 1 Up

Junior Champ Victor Over Nee in First Round, 3 and 2.

Dettweiler's stunning victory sent him into the semifinal. In the morning round, the kid star from Congressional put out Maury Nee, of Columbia, 3 and 2.

Ernie Caldwell, of Hillendale Club, Baltimore, medalist, waltzed into the round before the finals by eliminating Tickman Greene, of Argyle, 4 and 3, and W. Beverly Mason, jr., of Chevy Chase, 7 and 6.

Another Baltimore entry, Spencer Overton, of Hillendale, conquered Frank Weller, of Columbia, 2 and 1, and Johnny Brawner, of the host club, 2 and 1.

Although Dettweiler's victory proved the major upset of the day, Jimmy Drain, young Washington Golf and Country Club player, provided a big surprise by winning from Roger Peacock, of Indian Spring, 1 up, after dusting Johnny Greene, of Atlanta, Ga., 4 and 3, in his morning match. Peacock was two down at the seventeenth, Drain laid his second 10 feet from the pin on the home green and jammed his putt for a birdie 3 to Peacock's 4 to win the match.

The finish of the Dettweiler-Pitt match was dramatic. On the nineteenth, Dettweiler was half stymied by a tree after his drive. He knocked his second with an eight iron to within 30 feet of the pin, and was down nicely for his par 4. Pitt's second landed in a trap over to the left of the green. He made a great out to within 6 feet of the pin, and missed his putt.

This morning Dettweiler meets Caldwell and Overton faces Drain. The finals are scheduled for the afternoon. Senator Carey, of Wyoming, will make the presentation.

Giants Take 3d In Row; Beat Reds, 3-0

Schumacher Gives 4 Hits; Beating Foe His 10th Time in 3 Years.

CINCINNATI, June 14 (AP).—The league-leading New York Giants ran into difficulties against the last-place Reds today, but came out with their third straight victory because of Hal Schumacher's "jinx" against the Reds. Schumacher gave only four hits and bested Bennie Frey, 3 to 0.

The young right-hander, who has been pitching to National League batters only three years, beat the Reds for the tenth time in that period. He never has lost to them.

Frey, who was knocked out in the first inning two days ago, fared somewhat better today. He pitched eight frames and allowed eight hits before he was removed for a pinch hitter and Don Brennan finished.

Upperville Show Feature Swept by Peach Brothers

Entries Take All Three Places in Challenge Cup; Victory, Third in Event, Makes Trophy Permanent Property of Upperville Horsemen.

UPPERVILLE, Va., June 14 (Spl.).—Repeating their triumph of the past two years, Peach Brothers, Upperville horsemen, with their splendid bay mare, Dorothy M., won the third leg on the Challenge Cup and gained permanent possession of the trophy, which was the feature of the opening day of the forty-fourth annual exhibition of the Upperville Colt and Horse Show held at Grafton Farm, near Upperville, today. This cup, valued at $500, was offered for the best 3-year-old half-bred, registered in the half-bred stud book. Peach Brothers swept the entire class with their three entries, taking the second with Doody and third with Cataract.

The show, which is situated in the center of Virginia's famous breeding establishments, brought to the ring today a large number of splendid half breds and heavy draft colts, 1, 2 and 3 year-olds.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney, with her splendid showing of gray heavy drafts from her Llangollen Farm, was a large winner in the morning classes. The drivers of her winning two and four horse teams, Clifton Ashby and A. Lee, each won $5.

Other large winners in the heavy draft classes were Harvey Fields, of Round Hill, and C. E. Norman, of Purcellville.

E. L. Redman, Middleburg horseman, swung into the winnings early this morning and kept up a good pace during the day. He won the half-breed yearling class with Our Way, yearling colt, sired by Bureau of Animal Industry stallion with Marksman; 2-year-old hunter improvement with Lucille, and several second and third ribbons with other entries.

Roger Bailey, Upperville horseman, put up a splendid performance on Ganadora and won for the owner, Dr. S. Taylor Young, the Founders Cup, a replica of cups given when the show started.

Good performances were seen in the handicap class and the riding of Mrs. J. C. Hamilton, of Warrengood Irish horse, Dublin, and Johnton, on Annie; Paul Mellon, on his Manuel, on Mrs. A. Mackey Smith's Big Boy was loudly applauded. Whoopee, of the Clifton Farms, with a spectacular performance, won teh class, with Annie getting second ribbo nand W. Frank Burrows' Rosewood third place. Mrs. John Hay Whitney and Manly Carter were winners of several ribbons in the hunter classes this afternoon. A good first-day crowd was in attendance and mingled with the folk of the countryside could be seen numbers of society leaders. Mrs. Patrick J. Hurley, Gen. and Mrs. William Mitchell, Miss Charlotte Noland, principal of Foxcroft School: Mrs. D. C. Sands, Miss Elizabeth Ober, Maryland horsewoman, were among the thousands who attended. Cubs' Homers Defeat Philadelphia, 6 to 4

Chicago, June 14 (AP).—Three Cub southpaw swingers—Chuck Klein, Babe Herman and Don Hurst—swung on Roy (Snipe) Hansen, Philadelphia left-hander, for a trio of home runs and a 6-to-4 victory today.

Between them, Klein, Babe Herman and Hurst accounted for 8 of the Cub's 10 hits and drove in all of the team's 6 runs. Klein's homer was his season's sixteenth.

Dolph Camilli made his debut in a Philly uniform with a .500 day, of a single and two walks in four trips after failing to report for two days because he thought he was entitled to some cash compensation for being exchanged by the pennant-contending Cubs for Hurst Monday.

Tribe Winner As Trosky Hits 2 Homers

PHILADELPHIA, June 14 (AP).—In three big innings, the Cleveland Indians pulled a ball game out of the fire today and administered an 11-to-7 trouncing to the Athletics to even the current series.

The Redman's rallies were featured by a pair of long home runs hammered out by Hal Trosky, rookie first baseman—one in the sixth with one on, and the other in the ninth with the sacks loaded.

Mel Harder held the A's to ten hits, but after a shaky start he had the situation in control all the way. Joe Cascarella, the Philadelphia Italian, started on the mound for the A's, but weakened in the sixth and was replaced by Bill Dietrich, who, in turn, gave way to Bob Kline. Trosky's second four-bagger was made off Kline's slants.

Hurler Wins His Eighth Of Year

Washington's 2 Runs in Seventh Take Lead; Kuhel Bat Star.

By Frank H. Young.

"PROF." MONTE WEAVER, on the hill yesterday for the Nats against the Chicago White Sox, seemed to know all of the answers when it came to figuring out the weaknesses of the visiting batters. He granted but four hits, not more than one in any one inning, and, with the help of his teammates, turned in a 5-to-1 victory. It was his seventh triumph in succession and his eighth of the season, and enabled the Nats to remain within three games of the New York Yankees, who crowded the idling Tigers out of the league lead.

Stepping from the ridiculous to the sublime, as the stage folks say, the two teams, which ran more or less wild in their double-header Wednesday, yesterday settled down and played tight baseball until the sixth. In this latter round, a questionable error by Joe Cronin let the Sox break the ice and prevent Weaver from gaining a shutout, and then the Nats came back with two runs in their half, two more in the seventh and one in the eighth.

Always Master of Sox.

Weaver was always master of the Sox, although four Washington errors, one by him, were charged. Uhalt opened the game with a hit, but got no farther than first, and he came through with another in the third and then carried on two extra bases when Stone let the ball get away from him. This was the only occasion, except in their scoring frame, that the Sox were able to get a man past the middle sack.

Earnshaw also pitched a better than ordinary ball game. His control was not particularly good, for he walked five, but he granted only seven hits in the seven frames he worked, uncorked a wild pitch to let one Nat run score, while Kuhel tripled two others home in the seventh after Shortstop Chamberlain had booted an easy roller which would have been the third out. A pinch-hitter eased Earnshaw out of the picture and Phil Gallivan faced the Nats in their eighth, and his offerings were nicked for one run.

Earnshaw Gets Run.

Earnshaw singled opening the sixth and it was this blow which started the Sox weaving their lone tally of the game. Uhalt sacrificed and, after Mule Hass fanned and Bonura walked, Simmons shot a hot one to Cronin. It could have been ruled a hit with no harm done to anyone, but Cronin let the ball get by him and an error was charged. Earnshaw checked in on the play and Bonura advanced to third. Boken then lofted to Stone for the third out and the Sox were through for the day. True, Bonura doubled opening the ninth, but he got no farther. Stone ended the game by making a great diving catch of Dykes' drive, which was labeled "hit" when it left his bat.

The Nats had two men left in each of the first three frames and could not get close to the bases in the next two. It was different in the sixth, however. With one dead, Kuhel singled and Harris walked. Schulte came through with a one-shot which knotted the string and propelled Harris to third, and the latter tallied a moment later when Earnshaw cut loose with a wild pitch.

Error Helps Nats.

This baby rally gave the Nats a 1-up lead and the next frame showed just how costly an error can be. With Stone on first and

Sun Jo Pays $100.40 in 2d Race

Crossing Over Pairs With B. Langhorne in $26.30 Double.

By Walter Haight
(Post Staff Correspondent).

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., June 14.—Vacillate's victory in the feature race and a $100.40 mutuel paid on Sun Jo in the second race were the high points of hoss racing here in the mountains today. Sun Jo, a 7-year-old gelded son of Sunference and Joanne II, came from seventh place to take a length decision and leave 99 40-100 of the crowd figuratively looking out of the window. There were a few yelping sounds from those who held the precious tickets, but, for the most part, lower jaws hung down as programs were consulted to verify Sun Jo's victory.

The rather unfashionable C. Williard rode Sun Jo and he put up a million-dollar performance. The horse was shuffled back to the rear of the field soon after the start, but Williard went to work and his mount soon began climbing. It was on the final turn that Sun Jo turned on the gas. The veteran fairly flew up on Pukka Heaven, which had displaced Jobs Dido as the pace-setter, and then went on to draw away. There was a length between Sun Jo and Pukka Heaven at the finish.

As expected, Vacillate, Washout and Silverdale fought it out in the feature race, and they finished in that order. Each had a crack at the lead, but Vacillate was there at the all-important pay-off time. Silverdale broke in front, but soon gave way to Washout. However, Vacillate moved around on the last turn, and under Weir's fine riding pulled away from Washout.

Fredericksburg Elks Blank Marines, 3 to 0

Fredericksburg, Va., June 14 (Spl.).—Pitcher Chinn's airtight pitching today gave the Fredericksburg Elks baseball team its second straight shutout and a 3-to-0 victory over the Quantico Marines.

Cutchins and Fenlon, of the local team, and Morris, of the post outfit, led the day's batting with three hits each. The game was marked by the stellar play of three graduates of this year's Fredericksburg High School nine—Ingalls, Jenkins and Shepherd.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUN JO, $100.40, $54.40, $10.40; PUKKA HEAVEN, $3.80, $3.40; CONSUMMATION, $5.00.

SUN JO, well handled, saved ground throughout while working his way to the leaders, wore down JOBS DIDO, and was kept under pressure to the finish. PUKKA HEAVEN, always well up, raced JOBS DIDO into submission, but could not withstand the winner's rush. CONSUMMATION moved into contention and closed well.

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $250. For 2-year-old maidens. Start good from gates. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:51. Off at 3:00. Winner, K. N. Gilpin's dk. b. c. (2), by Dunlin—Lady Emmeline. Trained by C. M. Feltner. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:03.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BUCK LANGHORNE, $5.40, $3.20, $3.00; VITELLA, $3.00, $2.60; DISRUPTION, $3.00.

BUCK LANGHORNE, away well and having good speed, was rushed into command at once to the stretch, where he drew out to win easily. VITELLA broke from outside the stalls, went wide at first turn, and wore down WISE PETE, but was no match for the winner. DISRUPTION held on well under punishment.

THE DAILY DOUBLE (first and third races) PAID—$26.30.

FOURTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $250. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:24. Off at 3:29. Winner, J. Arthur's ch. g. (4), by Noah—Diana. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:22.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HOLLAND, $5.80, $3.20, $2.60; GRACE BUNTING, $3.00, $2.60; DOC CONNOR, $6.20.

FIFTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:52. Off at 4:01½. Winner, W. I. Newmarch's b. m. (7), by Volta—Compose. Trained by H. G. Bedwell. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:01.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VACILLATE, $7.40, $3.80, $2.40; WASHOUT, $4.00, $2.40; SILVERDALE, $2.40.

VACILLATE, away forwardly, was restrained behind the early pace of WASHOUT, came to front at the head of the stretch, and drew clear thereafter. WASHOUT had good early speed to set the pace, but stopped. SILVERDALE, away well, could not outrun WASHOUT, and was tiring at end.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates for all but Dark Star. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:25. Off at 4:27. Winner, J. Handley's b. f. (4), by Canter—Papillon. Trained by J. Hill. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 0:25, 0:50 1-5, 1:16, 1:42 3-5, 1:49 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CHANGEABLE, $4.40, $2.80, $2.20; McDONALD H., $3.80, $2.60; FREE ADVICE, $2.60.

CHANGEABLE, fastest away, was rushed into the lead at once, and rated in front. At the end she was put under punishment when she threatened to stop. McDONALD H., closest to the leader at all times, made a strong bid in the stretch, but could not get up. FREE ADVICE raced evenly, but could not improve his position. CONCORD, practically left, closed a good gap. DARK STAR was unprepared when the break came. She closed a huge gap.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:54. Off at 4:55. Winner, Mrs. E. Jackson's b. g. (6), by Sunference—The Swaw. Trained by R. Jackson. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 0:24 3-5, 0:50 1-5, 1:15 4-5, 1.42 3-5, 1:49 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MUSKODAY, $5.80, $3.20, $2.20; MERRY MISS, $3.60, $2.40; TRENTONIAN, $2.20.

MUSKODAY, away well, was reserved behind the early pace, assumed command easily, was rated in front for the balance of the trip, and easily held MERRY MISS safe. The latter, taken far out of it in the early running, circled the field quickly on the far turn, but could not menace the winner. TRENTONIAN, always a forward factor, tired at the end. ZEBRA had good early speed, but could not keep up. TANCRED stopped.

At the Post . . .

Dear Al: Charles Town, June 14.

That was a narrow escape, men! For six races the Bennings forces were shut out, as far as the front end of races were concerned. We ran into an epidemic of seconds and clocked five place horses out of the first six. They were Justa Sunbeam, Pukka Heaven, Grace Bunting, Washout and McDonald H. Clocker Mike tried all sorts of measures to chase the jinx but they just dropped into the second hole and that was all there was to it. However, in the final—ah, the final—we finally chased one across. Yesterday, pardon for bringing up the subject, I said: "If Muskoday doesn't win this, he should keep running right up the mountain and jump off." He's munching oats in the stable tonight and Bennings, Inc., has yet to suffer a shut out since the meeting began.

BILL.

First Race—The consistent Noras Grace appears to have the edge on this field, in which several previous winners are competing. The five furlongs is about right for the filly. Glisk and Whirry for the place and show awards.

Second Race—Black Dreams and Sambo G. should fight it out for the major portion of this purse. Both are sharp and ready for a fast sprint. Water Lad is a problem. He may awake and then again he may not. I can't recommend him.

Third Race—Steelton may break in front of this group and hotfoot it right into the heavy end of the money. He will have Justa Sunbeam to beat if the latter is sent back. Unfair has a fighting chance to upset both of them.

Fourth Race—Wise Mollie gets a nice break in the weights from Happy Lope and Small Change and the filly may be equal to the task of getting home in front. Happy Lope has that number one post that he likes.

Fifth Race—Fair Billy gets in a field that suits him in this mile and a sixteenth test. He can burn oil in the stretch when the right money is down. Dunstar won easily the other day and figures to be in the thick of this battle. Infilee's light weight must be reckoned with.

Sixth Race—Veritas has been whispered to me by Clocker Mike and I'm giving him a chance to make good. Cantroud's last was a beaut. Golden Castle, Silver Arch and Star Queen all figure to have fighting chances.

Seventh Race—Miss Catalan to take care of those scheduled to face the barrier in the final. The cheap Hosain might do a little running for a change. Dunair and Armageddon may make money appearances.

Vicaress Wins Feature at Aqueduct

AQUEDUCT RACE TRACK, June 14 (AP).—William Woodward's Vicaress, after soaring from 6 up to 10 to 1 in the betting, surprised a good-sized crowd here today when she easily won the Astoria, a 5-furlong condition affair for 2-year-old fillies, which formerly was a stake event. The bay daughter of Flying Ebony completed her trip in 0:59 2-5 to beat Mrs. Damon Runyon's Angelic by two lengths. E. D. Shaffer's Watersplash, coupled with Nectarine, was third, a scant half length behind.

Angelic, which began her career in Florida last winter and has had plenty of it since, while gaining quite a reputation, was favorite. The filly receded from 7 to 10 to even money, and she appears to have lost the fine form that was hers when she came North. She neither looked nor ran like her former self, although hard ridden all the way. The Infinite filly gained a head advantage over Vicaress in the run to the elbow, but the 10-to-1 shot had no trouble drawing well clear when the important running began. Watersplash closed well and easily beat Galomar for the show.

WASHINGTON POST'S FISHERMAN'S TIDE TABLES

Columns under A. M. and P. M. represent the last two (or 2½) hours of ebb tide and the first two or (2½) hours of flood tide, cnsidered the best time to fish in the bay. Center columns represent the last hours of flood tide and the first hours of ebb tide. Flood tide is considered the best time to fish in the rivers.

Gallagher, Galento Fight at Griffith Stadium Tonight Looms as "Natural"

D. C. Mittman Trained to Minute

Gallagher Has Worked Down to Less Than 200 Pounds.

Galento Impressive in Workouts Here; Other Good Bouts Carded.

TWO weeks ago Phineas F. Phightfan would have laid 4 to 1 that Tony Galento would spread-eagle Marty Gallagher for a count of 10 or 10,000 within five rounds and even money that the knockout punch would sever the Irisher's handsome countenance from his King Kong shoulders as neatly as a barber's school freshman cuts himself a hunk of ear. Today, with the 10-round natural between these two promising heavyweights scheduled to pass into history at Griffith Stadium before the mystic hour of midnight, Mr. Phightfan is in a dilemma—trying to figure out who will win the set-to.

Not for years has Gallagher climbed through the ropes weighing less than 206 pounds, and at that weight he fought like a wildcat. Even at 210 pounds, he fought like a fairly wild cat and it was only when he caused the ring to groan under 215 pounds or more that he became a very gentle maulteaser.

May Scale Less Than 200.

If he hasn't caught up with a gallon or two of ice cream (his favorite vice) since his last workout, it is possible he may cause Boxing Commission Secretary Heinie Miller to gulp down his perpetual black cigar, a la Joe Jacobs, by clocking up no more than 195 pounds at the official weighing-in ceremony this afternoon.

Galento, too, is in fine fettle for Washington's battle of the century. He has been indulging in strenuous public workouts since his arrival here Tuesday—and coming out as fresh as a quart of unbonded, straight whisky—and just as strong. His belting about of spar mates for the edification of the cauliflowered fentry and a few handfuls of stray picknickers who have wandered off their course, has been a joy and delight to behold. His left hook is working to perfection and, although he does not believe it will be necessary for him to work more than three or four rounds before laying the smiling Irishman low, he is prepared to go the distance, if necessary.

Kennedy Reported at Top.

Les Kennedy, the transplanted California heavyweight who has campaigned with varying results against the best hereabouts, also is reported in good shape for his semifinal match with George Pavlick. Pavlick stole the show and the sympathies of the 7,118 assembled spectators at the Risko-Brown card by his game, but losing, stand against Steve Dudas. Many thought he had clearly outboxed his rugged opponent, but the judges ruled otherwise.

Ticket sales were reported exceedingly brisk at both Turner's office and the ball park today, presaging another $9,000 gate for the second Turner-promoted boxing enterprise. The first bout is scheduled at 8:30.

Around the ring's selections—

Gopher Golf Ace Is Just a Soph But a Real "Vet"

Minneapolis (AP).—The University of Minnesota's hopes in Big Ten golf this year are built around a sophomore who can scarcely remember when he first began knocking a golf ball around.

He is Pat Sawyer, youngest member of a golfing family, and already his performances have won the favorable comment of such old masters as Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen.

Sawyer began playing golf 10 years ago at the age of 11, when his father and two older brothers introduced him to his first golf course, but years before that he had been using their cast-off irons to knock balls around his yard.

Two years later, at 13, he made his bow in tournament circles when he competed for the Minnesota State junior title. It took him three seasons to win it.

Since then he has competed twice in the National Amateur, in the Minnesota State Amateur and in the National Open last year at Chicago, when he finished with a score of 312.

Although this year's Gopher squad will have only one letter man, Bill Ziesko, the general feeling is that the team will be one of the strongest in years, largely due to work expected of Sawyer.

Shea Back in Uniform.

Catcher Mervyn Shea, of the Chicago White Sox, who suffered a broken hand in Washington on May 8, donned his uniform again last week.

Mr. Gallagher's Playmate Tonight

With Hook and Line . . .

By Jean Monk.

YE OLD Fishing Editor's calendar says today is June 15. And ye old fishing column, April 20 of this year said fishing on this side of Chesapeake Bay would not open "in all of its glory" until "about" June 15. There was the prediction, here is the date, and now for the facts.

A report from Herring Bay, phoned in Tuesday morning by Capt. W. H. Manifold, one of the four wide-awake Manifold fishing captains at that place, assured us in no uncertain terms that the big berthas started booming on that date at that place.

A fishing party made up of G. L. Lightman, ecretary, Washington Terminal Co.; O. R. Smith, W. H. Kinkead, W. C. Lutman and Pete Johnson had just finished extracting 63 croakers from holes not far out from Herring Bay.

And last Sunday, Capt. Roy Ward, one of the four wide-awake Ward brothers at that place, steered one of their big, modern boats across the bay to Sharps Island and thereabout and picked up 168 hardheads, about 50 of them extra large. There were no trout in this catch.

Ten in Party.

The party consisted of F. D. Butler, manager, Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., 409 Third street northwest; Mr. Malone, Mr. Hall and seven other Washington fishermen. They fished from 2 until 11:30 p. m.

Miss Minerva Bitting, 3221 Connecticut avenue, accompanied by Calir Hare, Philadelphia Ledger, and Miss Frances Stern, Washington, fished in the mouth of the Patuxent River at Solomons a few hours Tuesday and landed 86 fish, two of them trout, one of which weighed 2½ pounds and the other 4½ pounds.

It isn't the usual thing to catch trout so early in the season (before July 1) at Solomons or any other place on this side of Chesapeake Bay. And when trout are caught they seldom ever tip the scales above 2 pounds. The 4, 6 and 8-pounders, however, make their annual run on us beginning usually about August 1. From that date till the close of the season, trout and bluefish are in the spotlight at all points on the bay and the rivers.

The phone call from Herring Bay said: "This is the first catch at Herring Bay which really made the locals sit up and take notice." And this makes us feel much better for, be it remembered, Herring Bay, Shady Side, and Galesville all but went begging last summer. They were forced to do most of their fishing across the channel and down the bay in other fields. This report levels things up and may mean that the upper part of the bay this summer will come into its own again.

Capt. Harry Parks, Brooms Island, wrote: "Saturday, June 9, I took a party of five in the morning and caught 46 large hardheads. That afternoon I took a party of 5 and caught 125. Sunday morning, with a party of 11, I caught only 32."

St. Jeromes Creek steps in with another good report. Capt. Brady McKay, June 11, wrote: "Yesterday Mr. Jacobs, of Washington, and three others were fishing with Capt. Lumpkins in one of my boats. They caught 90 hardheads, some of them very large ones. L. C. Dyer and family, of Scotland Beach, were fishing with me and caught quite a nice lot of hardheads and they were large ones, too."

Officer Jim Lowery, fishing with Frank Del Vecchio, fishing tackle merchant, 1212 Eleventh street southeast, Sunday night near Sharps Island, landed more than 100 croakers, many of them extra large. They went across in one of Capt. James Blanch's boats under the command of Capt. Elliott.

Sam Jones Foe Of Crowder In Finale

Nats Hurler Will Seek to Redeem Self Today Before Ladies.

IT'S a case of every man for himself in this baseball racket and so the Nats, thankful for the three victories already recorded in this series with the Chicago White Sox, hope to make it a clean sweep in the final game of the set this afternoon. "General" Al Crowder will draw the native pitching assignment while old Sad Sam Jones, the somber sage of Woodsfield, Ohio, will be trotted on the hill by Jimmy Dykes.

Jones, tossed about the league like an old shoe during recent years, is doing most of the good pitching the Chisox are getting, and, with Crowder still rated as questionable in that little matter of form, a good game is looked for. As is usually the case on Fridays, women fans are invited as guests of the club.

Heinie Manush could have played yesterday, but Pilot Joe Cronin decided to give him a day's rest to let his injured finger get more completely cured. The digit was slightly stiff and affected Heinie's grip at bat. Sheriff Dave Harris, who admits that he pulled a smart play in the second game of Wednesday's double-header, and not a "boner," looked after the left field duties.

On the Wednesday play referred to, Dave scored all the way from second on an infield double play. Bonura thought the twin murder retired the side, and many thought the Sheriff had the same idea. He declares, however, that he knew the exact conditions all the time, although he admits that he did not know Bonura thought the side had been retired when he tossed the ball back toward the pitcher's box.

Joe Judge, Baltimore manager, who starred here for years and years, visited the Nats before yesterday's game. Joe remarked that he could be real enthusiastic over his job if he could get his Birds in the winning habit. Joe has benched himself temporarily because of his inability to hit them "where they ain't." While grousing around the Nats' locker room, Joe discovered one of his old bats and Skipper Cronin presented it to him.

Ed Phillips drew the catching assignment yesterday because he and "Prof." Monte Weaver have proved to be such a winning battery of late. Luke Sewell was ready and anxious to play, his injured finger showing no ill effects after the initial 1934 test in Wednesday's opening game.

Shortstop Luke Appling rejoined the White Sox yesterday after having been lost, strayed or stolen since last Sunday. He was out of the game due to a combination of injuries, and the club could not locate him when it started on this trip. Although there was some talk of fining him, he got off with a good "cussing out" from Manager Jimmy Dykes.

Morgenthau Takes Time About Abbott Successor

Treasury Secretary Henry Morgenthau, jr., yesterday denied he had chosen a successor to Horatio J. Abbott as Detroit collector of internal revenue. Abbott resigned under fire.

Morgenthau said: "I am not going to appoint Abbott's successor until I can get a high-class, thoroughly reputable citizen for the place."

Gold Deliveries Climb at Mint.

San Francisco, June 14 (AP).—Gold deliveries at the Mint here in May were the heaviest in many years, being at the rate of 7,405 ounces daily. The May total was 229,563 ounces, compared with 210,580 in April, and81,134 in May of 1933.

Celanese Association Votes Swimming Pool

Cumberland, Md., June 14 (Spl.). Assurance that the Celanese Athletic Association will have a new $20,000 swimming pool built for the use of its 5,000 members by late July or early August is shown by the fact that 3,500 members have voted in favor of the project, while only 190 voiced opposition in the ballots counted to date.

As soon as all ballots are turned in, the contract will be let for the construction of a modern concrete pool, 75 by 100 feet, ranging from 3 to 12 feet in depth.

The Moochers

By Paul Gallico.

NEW YORK, June 14 (Spl.).—Pity the poor ticket moochers on fight day. They stand first on one leg, then on the other outside the executive offices of Madison Square Garden, their appetites written plainly on their faces, herded and disregarded by office boys and private policemen, insulted, haled, humbled—for a ticket to the fight, a free pass to see two men maul and club one another with their hands. They know no shame or pride. Theirs is the long and tireless patience of necessity. No time is too long to wait outside the sacred offices, no insults too pointed to be swallowed for the chance to slide close to the official ear and whisper huskily who they once were, what they once did, who once was friendly to them, what services they rendered, real or fancied, in the long, long ago that shall entitle them to a free ticket in the now.

Each has a pitiful story, well rehearsed, burned into their brains. For days they have been repeating it to themselves, making it sound convincing, for days they have carried in their heads the picture of the official petitioned handing them a ticket with a smile and a clap on the back because of who they once were.

Know the Old Ones.

"Rickard always used to take care of me—I was a friend of Commissioner Muldoon—Farley always treated me right—District Leader Whosis sent me down here—I'm a friend of Baer's manager, I came on here all the way from California—I used to be lightweight champion of the Army back in 1910—I'm a good friend of Jack Dempsey's—I used to work with Primo when he first came over here—you remember me, don't you, I used to manage old Kayo Kid Finnegan (some wholly mythical fighter)—I used to work for Rickard down in the old Garden."

So they go, the stories, mumbled quickly before the petitioners are shoved aside by the next candidate, whose jaws are already working as he rehearses his lines, "You don't remember me, but I met you in Cleveland."

Pestiferous Side.

They have their pestiferous side, too. They swarm. They cling. They are not militant, but passively insistent. They are like wet flies, impossible to brush off. Their very limpness renders them ten times more difficult to handle than blustering pushers. When I visited Madison Square Garden at 11 o'clock this morning, the morning of the fight, they had swept Reed Kilpatrick and Jimmy Johnston out of their quiet comfortable offices. Reed and Jimmy were holding a business conference out on the fire escape between their two offices.

The lobby downstairs, the lobby upstairs, the hall leading to the anteroom, the anteroom to Jimmy's office and Jimmy's office itself were choked with sad-faced, gray, patient men with tired, seamy faces and lack-luster eyes who stood with their hats in their hands waiting to exchange the information who they had been and what they had done for a free ticket to the big fight.

Venom Bursts.

Once they are ushered from the sanctums, ticketless, friendless, and reach the sidewalk, their patience ends, their venom bursts. Johnston is a this and a that. No wonder boxing is where it is—Rickard always gave them tickets—they wander off, or stand idly on the street outside the Garden cursing Johnston or Kilpatrick, finding plenty of company to listen to and curse with them.

Many of them even go upstairs and beg for tickets. They have no nerve or they have no story. But they are attracted to the Garden by the glamour of what goes on within. They are satisfied with mere proximity to excitement and free tickets. Somewhere inside, some one is getting an Annie Oakley. And so they shift their feet on the pavements on the chance that some one will see them and take pity on them, that somehow luck will favor them if they stand nearby.

Doubtful Present.

A ticket to the fight is a doubtful present today. I saw one gray old man whose story had won him an exchange check for a $25 ringside seat first shuffle away with unconcealed delight. He palmed the ticket in his paw, holding to it with both hands. He read the legends thereon as he threaded his way through the supplicants to the elevators. Then he discovered the barb in the gift, a tax of $3.42 to be paid, part to the Government, part to the State. He shrugged his shoulders and the youth went out of his face again.

Weaver Hurls Eighth Victory Of Season

Grants 4 Scattered Hits as Nats Score Over Chisox, 5-1.

two dead, Chamberlain fumbled Cronin's roller, which should have been an easy out. To show that Chamberlain's act was really appreciated, Kuhel tripled to the score board, cleaning the bases and raising the count to 4-1.

After Ted Lyons had flied out for Earnshaw, Gallivan took up the alien mound burden and Schulte greeted him in the home eighth with a double. He stayed on second watching Phillips and Weaver retire and Myer walk and then scurried home when Stone shot a single to right.

Haas Is Chased.

With Weaver hurling four-hit ball, about the most excitement the Sox caused was when Mule Haas was chased from the bench for making uncomplimentary remarks to Donnelly, the new umpire. The Mule, usually a quiet fellow, evidently came to life as a result of the Sox actually being ahead of a foe—an occurence very rare these days, what with the depression having extended to the team's bats and pitching arms.

Kuhel led the Nat attack with a triple and two singles, while Stone and Schulte cracked out two safeties apiece. Uhalt accounted for exactly half of the alien hits.

Post Mortems . . .

JULES BROULETIER and his beautiful wife, the former Hope Hampton, steal the spotlight from a couple of preliminary stumble bums . . . until Mayor LaGuardia attracts the photographers with an impressive entrance . . . the official program is adorned by a full-page picture of Max Baer . . . who is posed as a southpaw, with his right hand extended . . . Gunboat Smith, the once-in-a-while referee, acting as official in the press box . . . another one of the myriad wearing the Garden's "official" buttons is a dead-pan ringer for Charley Butterworth, the movie comic . . . Bob Tow, Alexandria's heavyweight hope, adoring a fourteenth row ringside seat . . . which is as close as a city block to the ring.

Jack Sharkey and Mrs. Sharkey, the latter looking very intelligenzia in gold-rimmed pince-nez . . . the latter wearing two or three chins, and orange necktie . . . well authenticated rumors have been going around the garden for weeks and continue to dog the principals at the ringside . . . to the effect that the tenure of James Joy Johnston as head of the Garden's cauliflower division is about at an end . . . Dame Gossip favors Jack Dempsey to replace him . . . Porter Moore and Ted Diglin, of the garden publicity staff, are new at the box fight racket . . . but did a swell job on the steam-up for this fight . . . "Toots" Mondt confines his bulk to one working press seat . . . and the laps of the two unfortunates sitting on either side of him.

Freddy Buchholz and Heinie Miller, of the District Boxing Commission, are among the late arrivals . . . Primo Carnera received a large autographed picture of himself, Cleto Locatelli, a flock of gold-braided facisti and Il Duce himself, just before entering the ring . . . Richard Dix, the movie fighter, exchanges punches with lady next to him . . . with gestures . . . incidentally, because of Mad Maxie's popularity in Hollywood, this bout has attracted perhaps the largest number of the flicker famed ever to attend such a contest.

It will be a pleasure!

Indian Medicine Man Quells "Evil Spirits"

Navajo National Monument, Ariz. (U.P.). — Government archeologists camped below Turkey Cave near here were offered protection from evil spirits by an Indian medicine man summoned after strange noises about the cave had alarmed Indian attendants of the party, it was learned from a report of John Weatherill, monument director.

Bedesto Holoney ("The man who raised peaches") was the medicine man called. Three trips from his home 20 miles away were necessary to quell the spirits.

Michigan Naval Reserve Use Insull's Old Yacht

Detroit, (U.P.).—Sturdy Naval Reserve men now hustle about the decks of the training ship, the Truant, once the yacht of Samuel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate.

The Truant was loaned to the Michigan Naval Militia, which bought her from Insull ten years ago. Insull had loaned it to the Illinois organization two years before the militia purchased it. The ship has the speedy lines that appeal to the sportsman, being 130 feet long, with a narrow beam of only 18 feet.

Job Placement Set-up to Stay

One Depression Cure May Result in Warding Off New Slump.

DETROIT (U.P.)—One of the permanent institutions growing out of the national recovery program will be Government employment agencies as new established, in the opinion of Claude S. Carney, chairman of the State Commission of Labor and Industry.

"I believe the Government will use those agencies right along to provide employment in times of depression and to take up the slack in industry," Carney said here recently. "It may be an early step toward unemployment insurance.

"Where the old system of employment had provided jobs for 30 to 40 persons a month," he said, "the new regime has placed 1,100 a month in industry, before the advent of the CWA.

"During March," Carney asserted, "we placed 2,360 persons through the Detroit office and 1,100 through the Pontiac office.

"We were enabled to do this because we have all requirements properly classified and have obtained excellent cooperation from the large industrial concerns. The Federal Government gave us $44,000 for the operation of 11 agencies, and this figure was matched by the State."

Era of Socialized Medicine Visioned

Physicians Told State Will Replace Private Hospitals.

Cleveland (U.P.).—An era of socialized medicine, in which the State will furnish medical services to everyone just as a city supplies its residents with water, was predicted here as not far distant by Dr. A. W. Abramson, of Columbus, speaking at closing sessions of the Homeopathic Medical Society of Ohio.

"Socialized medicine is inevitable. It may be some part of the New Deal. Two-thirds of all hospitals are vacant because people can't pay," Dr. Abramson said.

Officers Installed At Martinsburg

Martingsburg, W. Va., June 14 (Spl.). — Newly elected worshipful masters of Equality and Robert White Lodges, A. F. and A. M., with their staffs, were jointly installed at rites here last night by Grand Senior Warden W. H. S. White, of Shepherdstown, W. Va., assisted by Past Grand Master Vernon C. Eddy, of Winchester, Va.; Grand Lecturer Clyde P. Dutton, of Parkersburg; and District Grand Lecturer Frank L. Ronemus, of Charles Town, W. Va.; District Deputy Grand Master John Osbourn, of Shenandoah Junction, W. Va.

Old Silk Dresses Still Found to Be Wearable

Manchester (U.P.). — Silk dresses manufactured before 1870 are sound today as they were then, whereas those made since that date are extremely short-lived. This, at any rate, is the discovery made by those who are getting up an exhibition here of women's clothes since 1650.

They have borrowed from the London Museum several gowns worn by royalty. The silk dresses belonging to Queen Victoria and dating before 1870 still are serviceable, whereas the silk dresses made for Queen Alexandra in the '80's of the last century are officially pronounced "untouchable" and must be kept in a glass case.

TurkishExperts Revamp Their Own Language

Istanbul, (U.P.). — Thousands of words have been cast out of the Turkish language, and the lexicographers are searching for others to take their places.

The reason is that the newly instituted 29-letter Turkish alphabet is incapable of encompassing many of the terms used in the ancient many-signed Arabic system.

Teams of delvers, searching through all the old books, have discovered more than 30,000 words, which mainly are unused at present, but which can be incorporated into every-day speech under the new alphabet.

All-Women Group Controls Precinct

Roanoke, Va., June 14 (Spl.).—For the first time in the history of the city all officials in one precinct in yesterday's councilmanic election were women.

The places were filled by Mrs. Felix K. Parker, Mrs. J. F. Smith and Mrs. B. H. Overstreet, who served as judges in Highland No. 3 Precinct, while Miss Virginia Hornbarger and Miss Margaret Pearman were the clerks.

Roanoke elected Sydney Small, H. S. Winn, James A. Bear and W. M. Powell to council. Vinton named J. W. Reynolds as mayor, and councilmen as follows: R. L. Meador, H. S. Burkholder, W. R. McGee, C. Y. Yates, C. E. Wright and C. W. Bradley. Salem elected Dean C. R. Brown, of Roanoke College, and W. R. Cross, business man and former councilman.

Beckley Baseball Park Grandstand Is Burned

Beckley, W. Va., June 14 (Spl.).—Fire of unknown origin early today destroyed the grandstand and appurtenances of the Raleigh Mining Institute Baseball Park here, where games of the Middle Atlantic Baseball League have been played.

Officials of the Beckley Athletic Association, lessees, stated that Middle Atlantic League games would be played on the old Raleigh County Fair Grounds for the present. No estimate of the loss was available today.

Suspect Attacks Guard; Flees Jail at Weston

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 14 (Spl.).—Attacking a guard, Alvin Russell Fisher, 35, a Weston laborer, escaped from the Lewis County Jail at Weston today and officers are searching the countryside for him. The guard, William Armstrong, was unhurt.

Unable to furnish bond, Fisher was jailed for grand jury action on a charge of attempting to rob an oil company plant.

G. O. P. Endorses Duer in Worcester

Snow Hill, Md., June 14 (Spl.).—A meeting of the Republicans of Worcester County, called by the State central committee, was held here yesterday.

Judge Robert Duer, of Princess Anne, was indorsed to succeed himself. Duer has been in office since 1916. Frank Truitt, Ocean City banker, was appointed chairman of a committee to interview prospective candidates for county offices.

Mosquito War Waged.

Cumberland, Md. June 14 (Spl.). Continuing the drive against mosquitoes, the city health department has had the Chesapeake & Ohio Canal drained to eliminate breeding places of the insects.

Club Enters Contest.

Hopewell, Va., June 14 (Spl.).—The Hopewell Garden Club has entered into the conservation contest sponsored by the National Federation of Garden Clubs.

G. O. P. Club Formed.

Newark, Md., June 14 (Spl.).—The Young Republican Club for Worcester County was organized here last night. Frank B. Scarborough, Girdletree, was elected president.

BUICK 1931, model 31-67 sedan, 5 pass. This car is fully guaranteed to be in A-1 condition; $495; CCC guarantee.
CAPITOL CADILLAC CO.,
1222 22d st. nw. NA. 3300.

BUICK—1932 Model 57 Sedan. This fine car has a lovely appearance inside and out and a sweet-running engine. The finish is without a blemish and it takes a high polish. The tires are excellent. 30-day guarantee. $595. L. P. Steuart, Inc., 1325 14th st. nw. DE. 4800.

CHEVROLET 1933 Town Sedan. This popular model with built-in trunk was recently traded by two middle-aged ladies who gave it the same treatment one would accord a valuable race horse. Without fail this car was brought to our service department for inspection every 30 days. It was never driven over 35 miles an hour nor left outdoors overnight. Its low mileage can best be judged by the original tires which show hardly any wear at all. The black finish is like new and the mohair upholstery is spic and span; naturally the engine is in prime condition. Some one will get a rare buy at........ $525

FISCHER Baby Grand $495

A piano that reflects, in its distinctive appearance and rich tone, the care with which it was built. The design is the simple modern Colonial style that goes well in any room, the finish a satin mahogany. It has been reduced for a short time but we have done what little was necessary to put it in new piano condition. Unusual at this reduced price.

JOIN AN EXPEDITION

Extensive plans are now being arranged for conducting a high-grade expedition into Yucatan, Central America, Java and India, in a well-considered effort to solve the mystery of the lost Mayan civilization and write its history—the history of the Americas before Columbus came. Different from other expeditions, investments in the enterprise will be secured and repaid with profits. You can join this expedition by becoming a part of it, by taking an interest in its associated publishing syndicate, in which there will be a few openings for activity. The publishing syndicate is being formed as the base for a large general publishing company with headquarters in Washington. It is the most important factor of the expedition. Only financially responsible replies are sought. Take an interest in this sound and unusual enterprise and help to win fame and give America its history before A. D. 1492. For full particulars, apply to THE CAPITAL PUBLISHING SYNDICATE, 948 Shoreham Building, Washington, D. C.

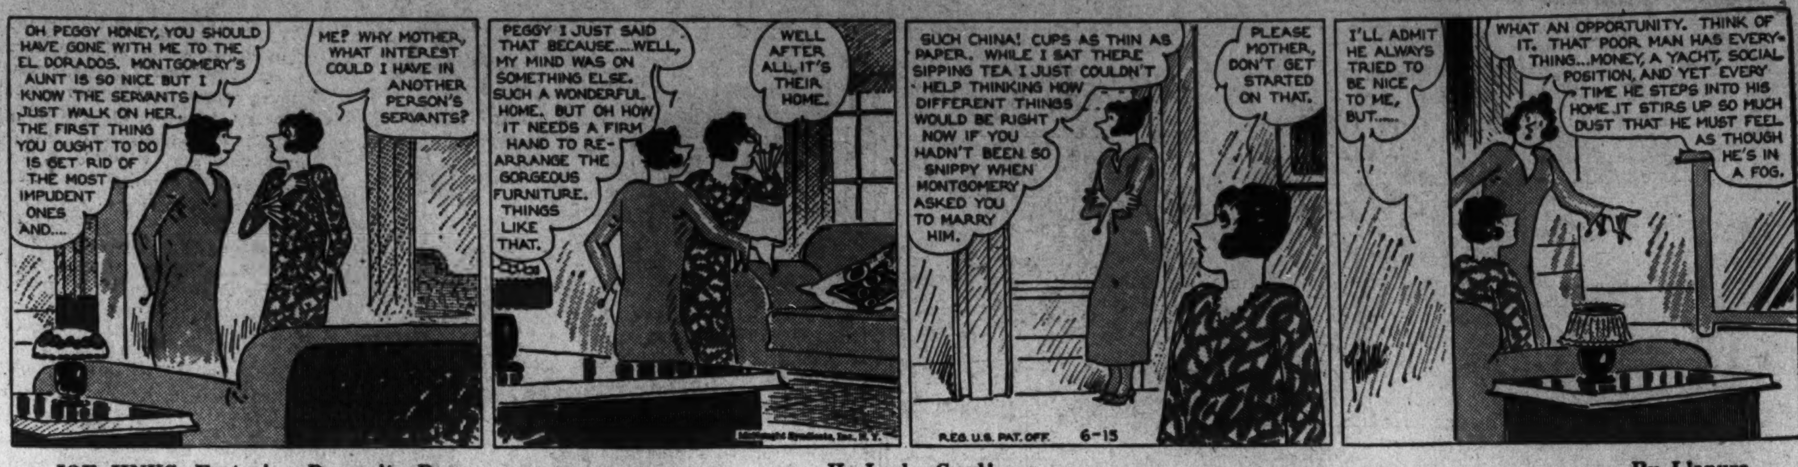
THE BUNGLE FAMILY
The Poor Millionaire
By Harry J. Tuthill



OH PEGGY HONEY, YOU SHOULD HAVE GONE WITH ME TO THE EL DORADOS. MONTGOMERY'S AUNT IS SO NICE BUT I KNOW THE SERVANTS JUST WALK ON HER. THE FIRST THING YOU OUGHT TO DO IS GET RID OF THE MOST IMPUDENT ONES AND....
ME? WHY MOTHER, WHAT INTEREST COULD I HAVE IN ANOTHER PERSON'S SERVANTS?
PEGGY I JUST SAID THAT BECAUSE.....WELL, MY MIND WAS ON SOMETHING ELSE. SUCH A WONDERFUL HOME. BUT OH HOW IT NEEDS A FIRM HAND TO RE-ARRANGE THE GORGEOUS FURNITURE. THINGS LIKE THAT.
WELL AFTER ALL, IT'S THEIR HOME.
McNaught Syndicate, Inc., N. Y.
SUCH CHINA! CUPS AS THIN AS PAPER. WHILE I SAT THERE SIPPING TEA I JUST COULDN'T HELP THINKING HOW DIFFERENT THINGS WOULD BE RIGHT NOW IF YOU HADN'T BEEN SO SNIPPY WHEN MONTGOMERY ASKED YOU TO MARRY HIM.
PLEASE MOTHER, DON'T GET STARTED ON THAT.
REG. U.S. PAT. OFF. 6-15
I'LL ADMIT HE ALWAYS TRIED TO BE NICE TO ME, BUT......
WHAT AN OPPORTUNITY. THINK OF IT. THAT POOR MAN HAS EVERYTHING...MONEY, A YACHT, SOCIAL POSITION, AND YET EVERY TIME HE STEPS INTO HIS HOME IT STIRS UP SO MUCH DUST THAT HE MUST FEEL AS THOUGH HE'S IN A FOG.

TELL ME — WHERE IS THERE SUCH A LAKE?
NOWHERE — I SAID — JUST IMAGINE IT!
SIDNEY SMITH

Walt Mason, Himself

Poor Fun.

The fun some fellows get from crime does not appeal to me; I'd rather have a quiet time beneath my banyan tree. I'd rather sit and read a book, or talk about the crop, than be distinguished as a crook pursued by tireless cops. I would not think it bully fun to dream of bars and jail, to have some fellow with a gun forever on my trail. I know I'd fail to see the joke in being chased around, perhaps to perish in the smoke where bombs and guns abound. If some one properly enthused, set bloodhounds after me, I'd mutter, "We are not amused," while climbing up a tree. No entertainment would I find while hiding in the woods, while officers, severe, unkind, scoured all the neighborhoods. I read about the bandits bold, those men of sin and guile, and I can't see what they behold that makes the life worth while. There is no fun in being chased from frowsy lair to lair, there is no fun in being placed in the electric chair. The bandits nearly all die young, and few of them die free, and some are jailed and some are swung upon the gallows-tree. I can't imagine why a lad should from his homestead run, and leave the good things for the bad, to share that sort of fun.

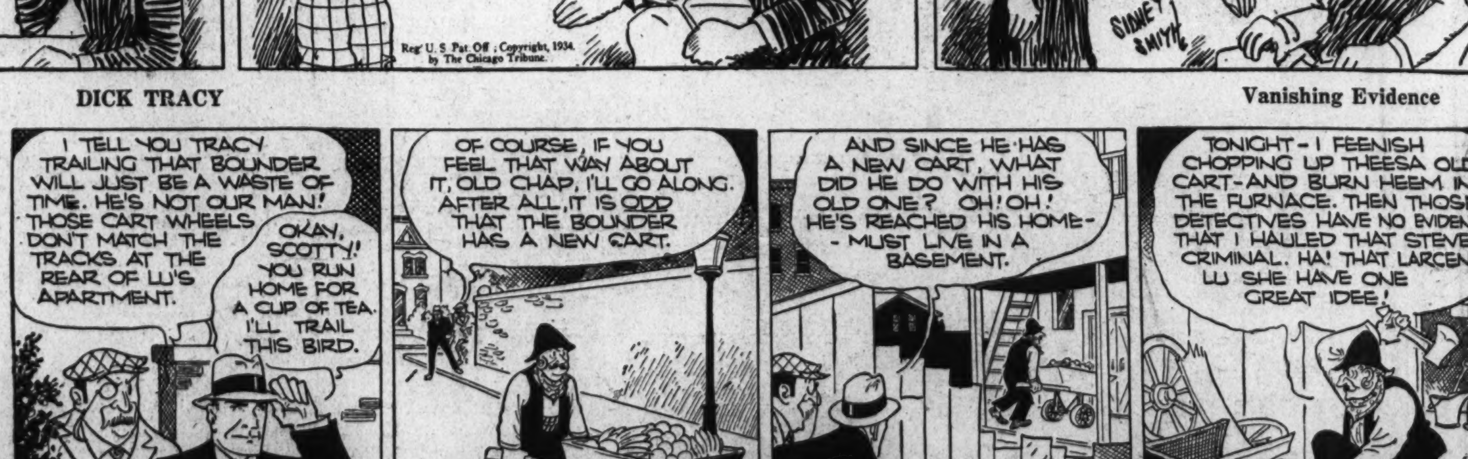
DICK TRACY
Vanishing Evidence



I TELL YOU TRACY TRAILING THAT BOUNDER WILL JUST BE A WASTE OF TIME. HE'S NOT OUR MAN! THOSE CART WHEELS DON'T MATCH THE TRACKS AT THE REAR OF LU'S APARTMENT.
OKAY, SCOTTY! YOU RUN HOME FOR A CUP OF TEA. I'LL TRAIL THIS BIRD.
OF COURSE, IF YOU FEEL THAT WAY ABOUT IT, OLD CHAP, I'LL GO ALONG. AFTER ALL, IT IS ODD THAT THE BOUNDER HAS A NEW CART.
AND SINCE HE HAS A NEW CART, WHAT DID HE DO WITH HIS OLD ONE? OH! OH! HE'S REACHED HIS HOME — MUST LIVE IN A BASEMENT.
CHESTER GOULD
TONIGHT — I FEENISH CHOPPING UP THEESA OLD CART — AND BURN HEEM IN THE FURNACE. THEN THOSE DETECTIVES HAVE NO EVIDENCE THAT I HAULED THAT STEVE CRIMINAL. HA! THAT LARCENY LU SHE HAVE ONE GREAT IDEE!

The Horrible Example

WELL, THAT'S MORE THAN I CAN DO!
JUNE 15
I'VE JUST BEEN CORRECTING SOME OF THE FIRST WEEK'S PAPERS, AND BELIEVE ME, IT'S AN AWFUL HEADACHE!!
YEAH? AS BAD AS THAT?
